CAPITOL HILL REBELS AGAINST FARM AID BILL

Senate May Cut Out Radical Ideas.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—A revolt against the farm bill sent to congress by President Roosevelt last Thursday was in progress today on Capitol Hill.

On present available evidence, unless the President cracks the whip and drives his party followers into line, the bill drawn up by a radical economist in the department of agriculture will be trimmed of all but a straight plan to lease marginal farm lands, with a processing tax calculated to pay for that service.

The Roosevelt bill may get through the house. Democratic leaders announced that it would some time next week. The house agricultural committee met in an all day session to take the measure up in detail.

Two Senators Favor Bill.

But in the senate there is likely to be another story. Gone is the air of supreme compliance with the President's wishes. Only two members of the senate agricultural committee are in favor of the bill as it now stands. These are Senators Fraser of North Dakota and Wheeler of Montana, the former a Republican and latter a Democrat, and both radicals.

The farm bill is the product of Mordecai Ezekiel, now economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and who not long ago returned from a year in Europe, most of it spent in Russia observing the soviet method of national agriculture.

As details of yesterday's executive hearings began to emerge it became known that Mr. Ezekiel made it clear that he would like to see agriculture in the United States regimented into a nationalized system, with the farmers and their production regulated and controlled from Washington.

Seek Views of Ezekiel.

Both Secretary Wallace and Assistant Secretary Tugwell, it was learned, were time and again forced to turn to Mr. Ezekiel when confronted with some question concerning the bill which they were recommending.

They were asked among other things whether a farmer who slaughtered a pig and, having enough meat left over to make some sausage meat sold a few pounds of sausage meat to his neighbor, would he have to have a processor's license. The answer was in the affirmative.

Another question came from a southern senator who said that on his farm he raised corn, took it to a little nearby grist mill, and distributed a portion of the meal to his tenants. He inquired whether the little grist mill would have to have a license under the bill and whether he, as a distributor of a few pounds of meal, would have to be licensed. Again the answer was in the affirmative.

As an answer to the criticisms which have been raised against the farm bill, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace took to the air today with a broadcast defending the measure. In a later broadcast Mr. Tugwell made an address to arouse popular support for the Roosevelt reforestation program.

Secretary Wallace recalled the President's statement that the farm bill sought to follow a new and untried path.

Asks for Coöperation.

"The successful operation of it depends on the wholehearted coöperation of farmers, processors, and consumers," Mr. Wallace said. "Has the time come when all elements of our society are willing to pull together to restore economic balance and attain social justice?

"It may be true that the things which this bill strives to attain here and now may be brought about 10 or 15 years hence by the slow working of economic law. This action, we hope, will speed the inevitable readjustments with much less suffering than under the harsh hand of uncontrolled competition.

"This bill attempts a major social experiment. It looks towards a balanced social state. It is trying to subdue the habitual anarchy of a major American industry and to establish organized control in the interest not only of the farmer, but of everybody else."

Senator Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the Senate agricultural committee, declared:

"I think that to simplify the bill to the leasing proposal with a tax levied and collected for that express purpose will be the most effective and acceptable step we can take."

U. S. WAR DEBT BEFORE FRENCH CHAMBER AGAIN

Bill Aims to Help America in Crisis.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 18.—The first step towards payment of the $19,261,432 war debt installment which France defaulted Dec. 15 was taken today when Rene Richard, Radical Socialist deputy, introduced a bill in the chamber of deputies providing that a credit equal to the amount of the debt payment be placed at the disposal of the United States government.

The feeling in parliament now is that the conditions of the chamber's resolution of Dec. 15, which demanded that the United States agree to a revision of the war debt before any further payment was made, have been fulfilled by President Roosevelt, and there is no longer any strenuous objection against payment of the December installment. Early action on some kind of war debt bill is expected in the chamber, but it remains to be seen whether the government will support Richard's proposition or advance a text of its own.

Sees No Legal Obligation.

In the preamble to his bill, Richard carefully avoids any mention of moral or legal obligation of fulfilling the debt contract, but thinks that in view of the American crisis the chamber is "called on to accomplish the act for international solidarity." Richard adds that he considers the obligation to maintain international solidarity the most imperious of all international obligations. The preamble says:

"A severe crisis has struck the money and the credit of the great American republic. Before this new fact it is no longer for a legal discussion that we summon the chamber but for an act of international solidarity.

"It is because we believe in the duty and solidarity of peoples; it is because we believe this duty of solidarity is the greatest and most imperative of international duties; it is because we believe this constitutes an international morality of peoples and democracies that we ask the chamber to make this gesture which will honor it and honor our country."

Debt Feeling Still Strong.

Anti-debt feeling has by no means subsided in this country. The semi-official Journal opines that it would be folly for France to give up the trump key in the debt negotiations and calls on the government to stand pat on the thesis that France will not pay a sou more to America than it receives from Germany and to break up the Lausanne accords, which reduced Germany's reparations bill to one cent on the dollar, if this view is not accepted.

On the other hand, the afternoon paper Liberté, which in December virtually called on citizens to man and barricade the streets rather than give Uncle Shylock his pound of flesh, now thinks it would do no harm to pay the December installment.

SECRETARY ICKES SEES U. S. ON WAY TO BETTER TIMES

Harold L. Ickes, the new secretary of the interior, who was back in Chicago from Washington yesterday for a one day visit at home, expressed confidence that "the turn has come and there will be a steady march back to prosperity."

"The swing of sentiment toward optimism in Washington has been simply marvelous," said the secretary. "The President, despite the terribly hard work and nervous strain of the last two weeks, looks better than he did when he took office."

Mr. Ickes will leave for Washington today. Private business, he said, brought him back to Chicago.

Pretzel Business Looking Up!Plant Adds 68 Workers

St. Joseph, Mo., March 18.—(AP)—The pretzel business is looking up, with the prospective return of beer. A plant here is working 24 hours a day, has added 68 employés and is two months behind its orders. It is turning out ten tons of pretzels daily, enough to go with 3,900,000 glasses of beer as one expert figures it.

WOMAN FAINTS WHEN 3 BANDITS HOLD UP STORE

A woman patron fainted last night when she and nine other customers and several clerks were held up by three gunmen in Abraham Hofling's dry goods store at 2049 Roscoe street. The customers were not molested, the bandits taking $444 from the store till.

A half dozen customers and employés in the drug store at 2063 North Clark street were frightened last night when a nervous bandit accidentally fired a shotgun during the commission of a robbery. The charge of buckshot crashed into the soda fountain counter, several of the pellets narrowly missing Miss Esthel Osberg, 20 years old, 3233 North Halsted street, a clerk. The nervous gunman and his companion stole $75.

Two bandits obtained $380 last night in a robbery in the offices of the United Artists' association, 4009 Lincoln avenue. Samuel Barron, 5742 North Bernard avenue, head of the association, and clerks were robbed.

Five robbers entering adjoining fruit and meat markets at 2948 and 2946 North Crawford avenue, last night, obtained a total of $223 after herding a dozen customers into a rear room.

WIND AND SLEET CRIPPLE PHONE LINES IN LAKE CO.

Squall-like weather struck Lake county last night, bowling over many telegraph and telephone poles over a mile stretch of Waukegan road, west of Waukegan. Heavy rain and sleet accompanied a strong wind.

Deputy sheriffs sent to that section of the highway used their flashlights and other lights to help keep traffic moving. Wires sagging with ice formations helped to carry down many of the poles, it was found.

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois reported considerable trouble in western Lake county and sections of the north shore. The water pressure in Waukegan went down due to a voltage reduction.

Firemen Rescue Pup from Trap Inside House Wall

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—The fire department was called out last night to save a wire haired terrier puppy. The pup had been placed in a garret over night and had slipped down between brick and lathing of the walls. Six firemen fished for the puppy until a grappling hook connected with a ring on his harness and he was drawn safely out.

Diabetes Delays Recovery of Senator James J. Davis

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—Hospital attachés said tonight that the condition of United States Senator James J. Davis, operated on a week ago for appendicitis, "is about the same." It was explained the senator's recovery is being retarded by diabetes. He may not be able to leave the hospital for a month.

Studebaker Co. Placed in Receivership

South Bend, Ind., March 18.—[Special.]—The Studebaker corporation, manufacturer of automobiles, was placed in a friendly receivership today by Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick.

The petition for receivership was filed by the Edwards Iron Works, Inc., a South Bend company making auto truck bodies. This concern had a claim of $6,229.

Receivers appointed are Paul G. Hoffman and H. S. Vance, vice presidents of the Studebaker corporation, and A. G. Bean, president of the White Motor company of Cleveland.

Plants to Reopen Tuesday.

An announcement was made by the receivers tonight that the South Bend factories, which have been closed since the bank holiday was declared by President Roosevelt, will be reopened on Tuesday and that aggressive production and sales work will be carried on.

It was explained that the directors of Studebaker corporation had consented to the receivership, because such an arrangement would best protect the interests of stockholders, creditors and dealers while legal entanglements in connection with the proposed merger with the White Motor company were being ironed out.

Also, it was specifically stated that the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company and the White Motor company are not involved in the receivership. Pierce-Arrow is a corporation controlled by Studebaker through ownership of a majority of the common stock.

Merger Strikes a Snag.

The status of the merger of White Motor and Studebaker is complex. Several months ago a merger was proposed and 95 per cent of the White stock was turned in. In recent months, however, 3 per cent of the stockholders have threatened litigation unless they are paid more for their stock than Studebaker offered.

In connection with the merger Studebaker issued $14,000,000 of notes, but the directors explained tonight that the litigation and threats of litigation had prevented the use of the White company assets, rendering their position difficult, although the corporation was actually in good financial condition.

It was asserted that the Studebaker corporation and its subsidiaries now have assets that exceed all liabilities by $77,000,000.

Incorporated in 1911.

The Studebaker corporation was incorporated on Feb. 14, 1911, under the laws of New Jersey. It acquired the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing company, pioneer maker of wagons and farm machinery in the middle west since 1852, and the Everett-Metzger-Flanders company. It acquired Pierce-Arrow in 1928.

In the first eleven months of 1932 the Studebaker corporation marketed more than 41,000 automobiles. However, for nine months of the same year, the concern had a reported deficit of $4,390,000, and it was announced some time ago that the dividend due on the preferred shares March 15 would not be paid. The common stock has been on a no-dividend basis since March, 1932.

The common was quoted on the New York Stock exchange today at 2¾ a share and the preferred at 18⅝.

A. R. Erskine, president of the corporation, was in New York today and was on a train en route home when the receivership action was taken.

Arrested as Prowler in Evanston Sorority House

Frank Cichocki, 30 years old, of 1516 Wabansia avenue, was arrested by Evanston police last night when, it is alleged, he tried to loot the Delta Delta Delta sorority house, 625 University avenue. He was seen in the house by Miss Angeline Drake, a resident. She called police, causing his arrest. Police said he admitted pilfering two lockers in the Y. M. C. A., 1000 Grove street, a few days ago.

Bootleg Trade Hit with Real Beer Due Soon

Senators believe 3.05 beer will pass Supreme court test as to its constitutionality. That's chief reason for changing house's 3.2 per cent bill. It is expected the two houses will adjust their differences and pass the bill tomorrow. Details on page 5.

With the return of legitimate beer scheduled to occur within the next three weeks, the traffic in bootleg beer has declined to the point of stagnation.

Inquiry along the channels of the existing beer distributing organizations yesterday disclosed the speakeasy retailers cutting their orders to meet bare current needs. Proprietors of the speakeasies said they were anxious to avoid having large stocks of bootleg beer on hand on the big day next month when real beer would once more flow in the restaurants and hotels at half the price the speakeasies must charge to make a profit.

Syndicate Slashes Prices.

Pinched by the declining revenue, the beer syndicate supplying the loop and most of the city has resorted to price slashing to keep the product moving, inquiry disclosed. Barrel beer, for which the syndicate muscle men were formerly able to command a price of $50, is now being rolled into speakeasy cellars at prices anywhere from $25 to $50 a barrel. Bottle beer has been reduced to $4.50 for a case of twenty-four bottles.

Bartenders in most instances have not passed the price cut on to the consumer, investigation disclosed. The speakeasies see the end of the trade approaching and are determined to squeeze out what profits they may in the last few days.

Bottle beer still is commanding a retail price of 50 cents a bottle, the imported "Riverside" brand from Windsor, Ont., coming even higher, depending on the class of the retailer. Draught beer is still going over the bar at 15 cents a glass and 25 cents a stein. The trade has been stagnant for several months, went almost dry during the bank moratorium, and has failed to revive since. Generally speaking, the boys feel quite morose.

Cast Eyes at Legitimate Trade.

Some of the syndicate men have been casting longing eyes on the legitimate beer traffic, angling for a means of muscling in, but none has yet devised a scheme. The licensed brewers expect to sell their product at $15 a barrel, including the $5 government tax, or at $2.25 a case, including tax. Moreover, the brewers can find armies of sturdy men, glad to distribute the beer for wages of $25 to $40 a week. Such wages would draw sneers from gentry of the gun and blackjack, the syndicate leaders concede.

Gang chiefs hope, for the present, to keep their organizations busy on the hard liquor traffic. Moreover, there are the labor rackets and the county gambling and slot machine concessions to be looked after. But until recent months, beer has been the principal source of gang revenue, and with this slipping from their grasp, the situation looks blue indeed.

ARREST VAGRANT; HAS BANK BOOKS, RELIEF TICKETS

Arrested by the police yesterday as a destitute vagrant, Thomas Geary, 70 years old, who said he had no address, was found to have in his possession bank books showing that he had $2,800 on deposit and a card entitling him to two free meals daily at an emergency relief station.

Geary said he had been employed for many years as a gateman for the Chicago and North Western railway and had saved his money. His wife died 17 years ago. Since then he said he had withdrawn his savings from two banks in small amounts for living expenses and only recently had sought aid from the emergency relief.

He was arraigned before Judge George V. McIntyre in the Desplaines street court, who continued the case for further investigation.

Charges Blizzard Kept Jury from Giving Fair Verdict

Fort Worth, Tex., March 18.—(AP)—Because a January blizzard shrieked around the courthouse here while a jury deliberated his fate, a new trial has been asked for Bill Thomas, Negro, sentenced to 99 years for murder. The cold weather prevented proper deliberation by the jury, attorneys for the defendant claimed in an application for a new trial on file today.

Los Angeles Hit by New Earth Shock; No Damage

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—[Special.]—Another fairly strong earth shock was felt here today. The shock occurred at 12:53 p. m. It caused no damage. It was the first shock of noticeable intensity in two days. Last Friday nearly 120 persons were killed in a series of quakes in southern California.

MUSSOLINI TOLD OF WAR DANGER BY MacDONALD

Premiers Seek Deal to Soothe Nations.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 18.—Whether Premier Benito Mussolini, the logical Latin, and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, the persuasive Scotchman, have laid the foundations for a European "peace club," which brought the British prime minister and his foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, to Rome, remained the secret of the guests at an official dinner given by Mussolini for the Britishers tonight in the Palazzo Venezia.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI.

A brief official communique late tonight announced merely that the two prime ministers had exchanged toasts to the sovereigns and peoples of England and Italy. Attending the dinner were only government ministers and officials and a select personnel of the Italian foreign office at the British embassy.

Discuss Europe's 'Sore Spots.'

The official dinner followed a 55 minute talk between Mussolini and the British ministers, at which the sore spots of Europe were discussed briefly. The statesmen will go more deeply into the situation tomorrow and Monday. MacDonald was said to have frankly asked the Italian dictator tonight for his ideas on the danger of hostilities in Europe and the extent to which he thinks it is useful for Britain and Italy to collaborate to avoid the danger.

The subjects mentioned are reported to have included the question of disarmament, Italy's relations with France and Jugo-Slavia, the rise of nationalism in Germany under Chancellor Hitler's Fascist government and the new status of the little entente [Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugo-Slavia], which recently strengthened its union.

Conclusions Kept Secret.

The strictest secrecy was maintained concerning any conclusions the statesmen may have reached, but it was reliably reported that Premier Mussolini reiterated his viewpoint that the peace of Europe can be stabilized only through coöperation among the four big powers—Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany. The Italian premier is also said to have assured Mr. MacDonald of Italy's close coöperation in disarmament efforts.

The seriousness with which Mr. MacDonald views the situation in Europe was emphasized in a statement made by him upon his arrival here by airplane today, in which he said there was "no time to waste" in seeking a solution.

"It is to exchange views with Italy's famous chief on intricate problems concerned with the organization of peace that I am here," he said, "and I have come with much confidence as to the results of my visit.

Impressed with Difficulties.

"I am impressed with the difficulties confronting us, but believe that with vigorous coöperation, especially among the great nations of the world, we shall make the world a safe and pleasant place for this and future generations.

"We have no time to waste, however. My visit to Geneva and my contacts there with representatives of countries in all parts of the world have impressed me more than ever with the gravity of the problems which confront us.

"Sir John Simon and I welcome this opportunity for a preliminary exchange of views regarding these problems with Signor Mussolini. His invitation came at a timely moment and we were delighted to accept."

Greet Britons with Flowers.

The Italian government overlooked nothing to impress upon Mr. MacDonald how great is Italy's pleasure at his visit. The British premier and his daughter, Ishbel, and Sir John and their suite arrived at Genoa from Geneva at 10 a. m. There they were met by Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, who personally piloted a huge trimotored seaplane which brought the British party to Ostia, Rome's hydroplane base. An escort of twelve military seaplanes followed.

Gen. Balbo brought the huge seaplane to a perfect landing on the yellow waters of the Tiber. Premier Mussolini, surrounded by a small group of high state officials, was waiting on a jetty which had been made gay with flowers hastily planted overnight. As Mr. MacDonald, hatless and coatless and wearing a brown tweed suit, came ashore Mussolini, lifting his silk hat, advanced smilingly with his hand outstretched in welcome and inquired in somewhat halting English how Mr. MacDonald had enjoyed the journey from Genoa. Flowers were showered in profusion upon the British delegation.

Sees Pope Tonight.

After this initial meeting, the British and Italian statesmen separated and drove to Rome in separate motor cars. Mr. MacDonald was accompanied by the British ambassador, Sir Ronald W. Graham. After a short stop at the British embassy, MacDonald and his party went for a sightseeing trip around Rome. The prime minister and Sir John went to the Palazzo Venezia at 6:30 p. m., where the conference with Mussolini was opened. The contact will be renewed tomorrow at the British embassy, where Mussolini will meet MacDonald and Simon at lunch.

At 6 p. m. tomorrow the British ministers will have an audience with the pope. No time has yet been fixed for their audience with King Victor Emmanuel. In order not to prevent this part of the ceremonial, public announcement of the death this morning of the duke of Abruzzi, cousin of the king, has been postponed. Public announcement of this on Monday will put the court in deep mourning.

Press Praises MacDonald.

"It was a frank and cordial declaration," La Tribuna said. "It confirms our belief that the fundamental purpose of these conversations refers not only to disarmament but to all the great problems of the European powers. This is as it should be."

The Giornale d'Italia declared that MacDonald had "made a profound impression in Italy. He will have the solid coöperation of all Fascists."

France Insists on Guarantees.

PARIS, March 18.—[U. P.]—France must have guarantees of peace before it can consider making disarmament concessions proposed by Prime Minister MacDonald, Premier Daladier of France said today. The MacDonald plan would reduce France's army by one-third.

The French premier expressed sympathy with the viewpoint advanced by MacDonald before the league of nations disarmament conference, and was hopeful of the outcome of efforts being made to achieve arms reduction. But, he said, France must have assurances of international order from Germany.

Daladier indicated that MacDonald's discussions with Premier Mussolini in Rome will involve a plea that Italy detach itself from the influence of Chancellor Hitler in Germany and act in concert politically with western Europe.

Little Entente Opposes Plan.

GENEVA, March 18.—[UP]—The British disarmament plan today met opposition on one aspect or another from various nations in informal conferences. Most of the powers clung to the cry of "security" as a prerequisite to accepting the plan.

The permanent council of the little entente [Rumania, Czechoslovakia, and Jugo-Slavia] met for three hours and discussed the plan. They decided that although it "might be useful as a basis of discussion," its security provisions needed considerable strengthening.

ANTI-HITLER PROTEST HALTED IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—Seventeen persons were arrested today by police who broke up two disturbances in the business district.

Seven men, alleged radicals, were part of a crowd of 50 which tried to storm the German consul's office with placards denouncing Adolf Hitler, German chancellor. The others, including two women, were members of a group of idle who sought to picket a state senator's office.

The two disturbances occurred simultaneously and only a block apart.

Arno P. Mowitz, German consul, has offices on the eighth floor of a Walnut street building, and the anti-Hitlerites were near there when a mounted policeman ordered them to disperse.

They refused, and the officer rode into their midst. Other police came to his aid and a brisk scuffle lasted for about ten minutes.

In the other demonstration members of the Unemployed Citizens' league tried to picket the office of Senator Thaddeus D. Krause, saying he had "shelved" a bill providing for a "moratorium" on evictions. This was denied by Krause.

HITLER EASES TAX BURDEN OF MIDDLE CLASS

Will Also Aid Poor and Small Merchants.

Calls National Holiday

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 18.—Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of enlightenment and propaganda, today ordered all Germany to celebrate the convening of the new reichstag Tuesday in the Garrison church at Potsdam. The manifesto declared the day a national holiday. The black, white, and red emblem and the Nazi swastika flags will be flown everywhere. Torchlight processions and "liberty" bonfires have been ordered for the night.

BERLIN, March 18.—[U. P.]—A broad plan easing the financial burdens of the poor, the middle class, and small business man, was introduced tonight in a presidential decree inaugurating part of the Adolf Hitler financial program.

The decree gives sweeping powers to the government to reorganize the administration of taxation, the dole and domestic debts, restricting forced auctions and granting an immediate credit of 30,000,000 marks [nearly $7,500,000] to the middle class trade credit association, designed chiefly to aid small business enterprises.

Eliminate Extra Levies.

The decree forecast extension of the period within which the salaries of civil servants might be reduced and also reclassified the taxes on small incomes, eliminating a series of small extra levies inaugurated in the last two years.

Reapportionment of the federal taxes allotment of the states is foreseen in the decree, which prohibits states from raising business taxes. In compensation, however, it permits states to increase the tax on branches of department and chain stores and also provides for an increased silver content of metal money and other money changes.

Germany will recognize her commercial debts and maintain the gold standard, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, new head of the reichsbank, pledged in an address to the nation tonight.

To Replenish Gold Reserves.

The reichsbank's primary aim, he said, is to replenish its gold and foreign currency reserves, the total of which actually belonging to the reichsbank had dropped one-ninth since he resigned the presidency on March 7, 1930.

"If foreign countries continue to hinder German exports," he said, "we will be obliged to take the initiative. Our foreign creditors may be assured we fully recognize the commercial debts but we hope, however, that foreign countries will coöperate with us in restarting international payments which are essential for an exchange of goods."

Luther New Envoy to U. S.

BERLIN, March 18.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Luther, who resigned yesterday as president of the reichsbank, has been appointed German ambassador at Washington, it was learned today from a high authority.

Official announcement of his appointment was withheld but the Wolff and Telegraphen-Union News agencies, with the approval of the government press department, disseminated dispatches from Washington, D. C., saying that the American government had approved the selection.

Served as Chancellor.

For brief terms in 1925 and 1926 Dr. Luther was chancellor of Germany. He became president of the reichsbank in April, 1930, succeeding Dr. Schacht. He was born in Berlin and is 54 years old. Dr. Luther's wide acquaintance with American financiers, business men and leaders in intellectual and social life was a factor in the selection of Dr. Luther for the Washington post. He speaks four languages — English, French, Spanish and German.

The ministry of interior today forbade the importation of a number of Russian, Danzig, Polish, French, Dutch, Swiss and English leftist organs. At Worms the police closed four department stores owned by Jews.

SEMINOLE INDIANS GIVE REX BEACH AND EDISON'S WIDOW NAMES

Sebring, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—Rex Beach, the novelist, now has another name. It's On-Ta-Kee [Father of the Big Hammock] and was conferred upon him today by the Seminoles as they inducted him into the tribe as a "white brother."

While Mrs. Thomas A. Edison widow of the inventor, looked on at another ceremony the Indians named a Seminole baby girl Mina Miller Edison as the child was christened with the name of a "revered white sister."

The ceremonial was in conjunction with the dedication of Highlands Hammock, 2,100 acre tract which is to be maintained as a tropical park. Beach is chairman of the board of directors.

LEAGUE RULES ON CONFLICT IN THE NEW WORLD

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, March 18.—With the American hemisphere represented only by Mexico, Guatemala, and Panama, the council of the league of nations today established a precedent which had been judged inconceivable here even six months ago.

It passed judgment in a conflict threatening war in the new world and it recommended how to settle the conflict; it told all of its fifty-seven members, in every continent, including seventeen in America, what they should do to promote settlement; it established an advisory committee to execute the recommendations to settle the dispute.

Invites U. S. to Help.

Having thus taken as complete legal direction of the world's peace machinery on the American as on the Asiatic shore of the Pacific, Geneva then invited the United States and Brazil to "collaborate" with the work of the committee "in the manner they shall consider the most appropriate"—confident that Washington, without whose advance coöperation and approval none of this would have been posible, would accept.

The case was that of Colombia versus Peru, the interest in precedents far transcending the interest in their conflict over a wilderness as wild as Arizona in President Monroe's time.

The details went as expected—the council found unanimously against Peru, recommending the evacuation of Leticia followed by direct negotiations and with members of the league bound not to recognize anything done in violation of treaties.

Peru Walks Out.

The Colombian delegate, Santos, then accepted the decision unreservedly and the Peruvian delegate, Garcia Calderon, without categorically voting "no," projected it effectively and following the example of Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan, withdrew from the council table leaving behind ambiguity as to whether Peru was withdrawing from the league. His lonely departure, there were no other Peruvians present, had none of the dramatic effect of the Japanese move. It was done, indeed, in a way to cause many smiles. Even the French and German delegates exchanged laughing comment.

The meeting throughout lacked the dignity, let alone the solemnity of the adoption of a similar report in the Manchuria conflict. Partly through mistakes made by the president, Count Piola Caselli of Italy, a ridiculous descent from the lofty to the common place ruined the effect of even the roll call vote, though it was the first the council had ever taken which was binding on all members of the league.

In short, today's action was regarded in diplomatic circles as a distinct nullification of the principles of the Monroe doctorine.

Peruvians Flee After Battle.

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 18.—(AP)—The war office announced today that Colombian troops had attacked the Peruvian position at the town of Buenos Aires, in the Leticia territory yesterday afternoon and that the Peruvians had fled after a battle which lasted until dawn, abandoning quantities of arms and ammunition.

One Peruvian airplane was shot down. The Colombian casualties were one dead and 6 wounded.

ROOSEVELT GETS READY TO CALL FOR NEW ACTION

Hopes for Congress O. K. by May 1.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Winding up his second tempestuous week in the presidency, Franklin Delano Roosevelt is ready for a steady drive until May 1. Then he hopes his full economic program will have been carried through congress.

Confident that he has launched the nation well on the way to a steady recovery, the President is preparing to see that whatever gains are made are held. He would set up legislative restraints against speculation and the wild financing which he believed started the wave of depression.

To Sign Economy, Beer.

His first major steps of the coming week will be to sign the economy and beer bills, to put federal machinery in order for collecting the new tax on beer, and to sign executive orders which will cut millions off the payments to war veterans.

The President conferred again today with Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, and with his budget director, Lewis Douglas, on the details of the economy orders. He urged both to set their staffs to work at once on reorganization of government departments and bureaus to save millions for the taxpayers.

Indications from Capitol Hill were that the farm bill, which the President sent to congress, may have tough sledding was reported to be ready to swing the first truly heavy influence of the administration to put it through.

Plans Jobs for Idle.

Immediately after the farm bill is disposed of, perhaps sooner, the President will submit a message and bills providing for relief to the idle, a plan for sending 200,000 unemployed into the national forests for preserving the great timber resources of the nation.

Following this stage of the program the President will submit, in quick order, plans for the rehabilitation of the American railroads, for laws to curb speculation, to reform the banking system, and for extending his plans to give work to the idle rather than paying them a dole.

Among the President's visitors today was Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, heading a Maryland delegation consisting also of Senator Millard Tydings, Howard Bruce, chairman of the Baltimore Trust company, and Provost Boyce, a director of the Union Trust company of Baltimore.

Although Gov. Ritchie would say only that the discussion was on "local matters," it was reported he sought to have the two banks included in the national banking system.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.] spent fifteen minutes with the President.

"I am convinced," Senator Nye said, "that the President will put through a refinancing program for agriculture and small home owners, and I am highly elated at what is in prospect.

"I am satisfied that the congress will not quit until legislation is passed which will salvage homes and farms for their rightful owners."

For Unified Banking.

Senator Thomas P. Gore, blind Democratic senator from Oklahoma, gave the President a copy of an amendment to the constitution he has proposed to congress which is aimed at creating a unified, national banking system.

Shortly after noon the President cleared his desk and went over to the White House to join with Mrs. Roosevelt in receiving several guests at tea. He expects to spend a quiet Sunday, but White House correspondents, growing accustomed to daily, if not hourly, developments of national interest, planned to stand by.

TWO BANDITS ROB HOTEL.

Two robbers escaped from the Billboard hotel, 357 North Clark street, with $15 early yesterday after they had locked Morris Minsky, night clerk, and Nate Silberg, manager, in a closet.

CARL ANDERSON SELECTED HEAD OF MORTON HIGH

Alderman, Boys' Dean, Made Principal.

Carl Anderson, dean of boys, has been appointed principal of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, it became known last night. He was elected at a secret meeting of the board on Friday, but official announcement coming in the form of confirmation of reports, was not made for 24 hours.

Indications were that some opposition against the appointment would develop, particularly on the ground that with the election of school trustees approaching, the present board should have refrained from action.

Succeeds P. R. Shelley.

In naming Mr. Anderson, the board restores the title of principal, replacing the title of superintendent. The new school head succeeds Paul R. Shelley, who was named acting superintendent several months ago following the ouster of Superintendent Harry V. Church.

Principal Anderson is an alderman of the 1st ward in Berwyn, and has been dean of boys at Morton for eleven years. He is said to be well regarded by teachers and others.

"I intend to put Morton back where it previously stood scholastically," said Principal Anderson last night. "I expect to effect some economies which will involve the curtailment of some of the courses we are now offering. I also plan to give the taxpayer more for his money. What the school needs first is a financial bath."

Some Criticize Appointment.

The appointment of Mr. Anderson was received variously by some of those at loggerheads with the board. Jerome C. Cerny, head of the Parent-Teachers association, said: "I don't know the man." Dr. Henry Stimson, of Berwyn, head of the citizens' committee, indicated he disapproved of the appointment.

"I regret the board ignored the offer of the North Central association of a list of thirteen educators from whom five men might be selected to act as advisers in picking a new school head."

SHOT IN LEG BY STRANGER.

Steve Bozadich, 47 years old, 8947 Mackinaw avenue, was taken to the South Chicago hospital this morning suffering from a bullet wound in the right leg. He said he was wounded by a stranger in front of his home. Police are investigating.

SENATOR LEWIS FINDS PLACE FOR UNCLE JOE'S NEPHEW

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The fortunes of James Cannon, deaf mute nephew of the late Uncle Joe Cannon and grand-nephew of the late Senator McKinley, were repaired today. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois obtained his appointment to the senate document room.

Cannon, a Republican, formerly of Danville, was employed for 14 years as a proofreader in the senate clerk's office. He was discharged when the Democrats took over control of the senate.

"I believe Cannon's misfortune justifies my giving him a post that is considered Democratic patronage," Senator Lewis said.

Cannon will receive $1,800 annually. He formerly received $2,800.

VETERAN AWARDS AWAIT SIGNING OF ECONOMY BILL

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—With all determinations and awards suspended in veterans' cases, the veteran's bureau tonight awaited the signing by President Roosevelt of the economy bill on Monday before announcing where slashes will be made in ex-soldier benefits.

The bureau was busy throughout the day in drawing up plans for operations under the new bill, which is expected to reduce veterans' expenditures by more than 300 million.

Pending the signing of the economy measure, however, neither Administrator Frank T. Hines of the bureau nor any of his aids would comment upon what will be done upon pension and bonus outlays.

ECONOMY BILL MEANS BALANCED BUDGET: DOUGLAS

Hopes to Slash Expenses One Billion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget for the Roosevelt administration, tonight asserted that adoption of the half-billion dollar economy bill had destroyed all possibility that this government would embark upon a policy of uncontrolled inflation.

Mr. Douglas stated that passage of the economy measure made certain that the budget would be balanced, the fiscal affairs of the government put in order and the costs of government radically reduced. Although no mention of possible economies were outlined by Mr. Douglas in his speech on inflation tonight it was learned from other sources that he now expects to cut federal expenditures one billion dollars.

Tells Danger of Inflation.

In praising the action of congress in authorizing new reductions in the cost of government, Mr. Douglas asserted that it had prevented this country from being placed in a position where inflation would have been necessary. Such an inflation policy, he warned, would have been ruinous.

"The only alternative to retrenchment is uncontrolled inflation," Director Douglas said. "This is ruinous to the man who works, it is ruinous to the widow and the orphan who receives an annuity on an insurance policy, it is ruinous for the disabled veteran who receives a pension from his government on account of a disability incurred in its service. We cannot, must not, and will not follow that ruinous road.

"The economy bill definitely means that for the first time since the depression started the fiscal affairs of this government will be put in order. It definitely means that very substantial reductions in cost of government will be made, and it definitely means that development of a sense of security—of stability of the credit of the United States government."

Blames Spending for Panic.

Mr. Douglas asserted that the recent banking panic had been largely due to the government's practice in recent years of living beyond its means. He declared that "in large measure the happenings of that period culminating with March 4 can be traced to the fact that for three years the United States government had been continuously expending billions of dollars in excess of its revenues."

CRUSADERS TO SET UP A LEGISLATIVE BUREAU IN CAPITAL

Col. Ira L. Reeves, western manager of the Crusaders, announced yesterday that the anti-prohibition organization soon would establish in Washington a legislative bureau. The object of the bureau will be to keep battalion commanders of the Crusaders informed on pending legislation, particularly that concerning economy and taxation.

"It is now the purpose of the Crusaders," said Col. Reeves, "to carry on an aggressive campaign for the elimination of waste and extravagance in government. The campaign will be carried on from every important center in the country where the Crusaders have strong organization."

CERMAK LEAVES $250,000 TO HIS KIN AND CHARITY

Estate Dwindles from $700,000 in 4 Years.

The will of Anton J. Cermak, disposing of an estate which had dwindled from $700,000 to $250,000 in four years, was filed for probate yesterday by Attorney General Otto Kerner, for many years personal counsel for the slain mayor.

When Mr. Cermak signed the document on Jan. 25, 1929, he believed his three daughters would each receive $100,000 and his seven grandchildren would share $200,000. Attorney General Kerner said Mr. Cermak estimated that the residue of his estate—after deduction of about $188,500 in specific bequests which included three parcels of real estate valued at $50,000—would have approximated $500,000.

$12,500 to Each Daughter.

Shrinkage of the estate to $250,000 has reduced this residue to $61,500. The specific bequests are not affected by the depreciation. Under the terms of the will each daughter will actually receive about $12,500 and each grandchild about $3,500. It is reported, however, that the mayor had previously settled large sums on each of his daughters.

Under the specific bequests a considerable part of the estate goes to more distant relatives. The will leaves $17,000 to various charities. Among the charitable bequests are these:

St. Joseph orphanage of Lisle, Ill., $4,000; Bohemian Charitable association, $4,000; Bohemian Old People's Home and Orphan asylum, $4,000; Skola Vojta Naprstek, $1,000; Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, $1,000; German Old People's home, $1,000; La Grange Masonic Orphans' home, $1,000.

$1,000 to Polish Charities.

The will also provides that $1,000 be distributed to Polish charitable organizations to be selected by City Controller M. S. Szymczak. It leaves $2,000 to the Bohemian National cemetery for the perpetual care of the mausoleum in which Mr. Cermak is buried.

The largest specific bequest is one of $10,000 to Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d], for many years the late mayor's secretary. Cermak's sisters, Mrs. Emma Kalal and Mrs. Antonie Stepanek, and a brother, Joseph Cermak, will each receive $5,000.

Eight nieces and nephews, children of the two sisters and Joseph, will each receive $5,000. These are Mildred Giuntoli; George, John, and Jerry Kalal; Joseph, Sylvia, and Charles Stepanek, and Emilie S. Graves.

$45,000 for Brother's Family.

For the family of James Cermak, another brother, $45,000 is left in trust. The income of the trust is to be paid to the brother's wife, Mrs. Mary Cermak. When the seven children of the couple all reach their majority the fund is to be divided into nine parts, so that Mary and James and each of the children will receive $5,000. The children are Anton, James, Frank, George, Eleanor, Helen, and Marion Cermak.

Albert, Joseph, and James Horejs, brothers of Mayor Cermak's wife, who died in 1928, will each receive $3,000. A niece of Mrs. Cermak, Mary Pesek, will get $500.

The mayor's home at 2348 South Millard avenue and his summer home at Antioch are willed to his youngest daughter, Mrs. Helen C. Kenlay. The building in which the mayor had conducted his real estate and insurance business at 3347 West 26th street is left to his three daughters, Mrs. Kenlay, Mrs. Ella Jirka, and Mrs. Lillian Graham.

Residue Put in Trust.

The $61,500 residue of the estate is to be held in trust by the Lawndale National bank, of which Cermak was an official. The fund is to be administered by the bank for 20 years, the beneficiaries to get 5 per cent of the principal each year until it is exhausted.

Each daughter will get one-fifth of the fund. The remaining two-fifths will go to seven grandchildren, Vivian, Anton, Richey Jr., and Robert Graham, Frank Jr., and Mariella Jirka, and Mary Kenlay.

State Senator Richey Graham, son-in-law of Cermak, and Attorney General Kerner appeared before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the Probate judge, to file the will. Proof of heirship was given in the office of Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. Graham was the only witness.

No bond was posted because the will specifically waived the customary bond. The trustees are the three daughters.

OPPOSE PENDING BILLS TO ABOLISH TOWN ASSESSORS

Officials of the Suburban Area and County Towns Association of Cook County launched an offensive yesterday against bills pending before the Illinois general assembly, which would abolish the offices of town assessors and collectors and combine the county under one division.

The association members met in the Maywood village hall. Walter P. Saunders, president of the La Grange village board, presided.

It was voted to send Jacob E. Dittus, village attorney of Maywood, to Springfield, to urge the rejection of the pending bills. It was also voted to seek legislation enabling village policemen from one community to make arrests in another community. The association will meet again next Saturday to hear Mr. Dittus' report.

Fairbanks Denies He Plans to Obtain Divorce in Paris

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 18.—[Special.]—Douglas Fairbanks Jr. today vehemently denied that he planned to obtain a Paris divorce this summer from beautiful Joan Crawford of the films from whom he is separated on her initiative. Then he sent an armful of white roses to his estranged wife as the first step in a reconciliation campaign.

Mrs. Jorgan Dietz, former wife of the chemical engineer who has sued the young actor for $60,000 on charges of alienation of affections and false arrest, was quoted in a Copenhagen newspaper to the effect that Fairbanks proposed to sever his marital ties in France and then wed her.

"Absolutely Untrue."

"The report that I planned to go to Europe and marry this woman is ridiculous," Fairbanks asserted. "It is absolutely untrue. It is too silly to discuss. Any European trip that I might have been planning naturally would have been with Mrs. Fairbanks."

The roses that Fairbanks sent to his actress-wife were delivered at the 15 room mansion in Brentwood Heights which she built prior to her marriage in June, 1929, and from which the actor withdrew yesterday, but whether she was there to receive them or what she thought of her husband's efforts to persuade her to return to him could not be learned.

Miss Crawford had confided to friends that she was "leaving town for a while." Whether she did leave could not be learned, but at any rate she was in seclusion. Inquiries developed the fact that her telephone number had been canceled. Telegrams for her have been piling up since last night's announcement that she was leaving her husband.

"Only Woman for Me."

Young Fairbanks said he planned to take an apartment for the duration of his estrangement from Miss Crawford, but that he was "determined to attempt to effect a reconciliation." He said he planned to "make dates" with his wife, "send her flowers every day, and talk to her whenever I get the chance, because she is the only woman in the world for me."

Fairbanks declared he would fight Dietz' suits to the limit. Two suits are based on accusations that the actor wrecked Dietz' marriage in 1931 when the former Mrs. Dietz was employed in the scenario department of a film studio. A third suit asks damages on charges that Dietz had been falsely arrested.

Dietz on Honeymoon.

Dietz, who was divorced by the wife whose love he asserts Fairbanks stole, is on a honeymoon in Arizona with Lucy Doraine, actress, whom he married two days ago and involved last December in the episode on which Dietz bases his charge of false arrest.

Fairbanks complained to authorities that Dietz attempted to sell him a necklace belonging to Miss Doraine for $6,000 that was not worth more than $300. This was an attempt at "extortion," the actor charged. District Attorney Buron Fitts caused Dietz and Miss Doraine to be "questioned," he said, but denied that they had been "arrested."

Part of "Crown Jewels."

From Dietz's attorney, Harry K. Sargent, today came the statement that "Miss Doraine informed me that the so-called necklace was a tiara and a part of the former crown jewels of the Hapsburgs. She said it was fashioned of gold and platinum, set with emeralds and diamonds, and worth $10,000 when purchased in Vienna a number of years ago."

The Fairbankses' separation was still one of the chief topics of studio conversation in Hollywood today. Discussing recent public appearances of the principals in filmland's newest marital rift, friends of the couple recalled that Miss Crawford had been seen in public frequently with Ricardo Cortez, also a well known motion picture actor, as her escort. On several occasions young Fairbanks joined his wife and Cortez at restaurants or on dance floors and made it a public threesome.

REPORTS DIVORCE PLANS.

COPENHAGEN, March 18.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Jorgen Dietz, whose former husband has accused Douglas Fairbanks Jr. of alienation of affections, asserted today that Fairbanks would go to Paris this summer, divorce Joan Crawford, and marry her.

TIES IN ELECTION, THEN WITHDRAWS.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TAKES CHILDREN TO VIEW PLAY

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt, who attended the performance of "Pinocchio" at the National theater under the auspices of the Women's International league, smilingly acknowledge the applause given her. Her guests were Mrs. E. C. Fay, wife of an Associated Press correspondent, and their 5 year old daughter, Barbara, as well as Stephen T. Early Jr. and Virginia Early, young son and daughter of a member of President Roosevelt's secretariat.

Introduced from the stage between the acts by Mrs. Clare T. Major as "a valued friend and patron of the children's theater of New York." Mrs. Roosevelt stood up in her box, and smilingly acknowledged the applause of children and grownups.

"I hope," she told them, "that you are enjoying the play as much as I am."

Another party of children in an adjoining box were the guests of the counselor of the Italian embassy and Marchesa Diana.

PICK NASH TO WIN CERMAK'S PARTY COMMITTEE SEAT

Illinois Democrats to Fill Vacancy Tomorrow.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A successor to the late Mayor Cermak as Democratic national committeeman from Illinois is to be selected by the Democratic state committee tomorrow in a meeting at the St. Nicholas hotel, Springfield. The call was sent out yesterday. Among the local leaders, the expectation is that the choice will fall upon Patrick Nash, county chairman, who was unanimously picked last week as leader of the Cook county Democrats to take the place of Mayor Cermak and was indorsed for the post of member of the national committee.

In the question of federal patronage, the local Democrats hold that next to the late mayor, Mr. Nash has been in closest touch with the situation.

Consult Horner on Mayoralty.

Meanwhile emergency measures relating to the Chicago mayoralty are occupying the attention of the Democrats over the week-end. Gov. Horner arrived last night for conferences with officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. During his stay the Democratic leaders expect to formulate a program for legislative action concerning the post of mayor.

Gov. Horner was consulted last night by Mr. Nash and other organization leaders. The status of the de facto mayor of Chicago, Frank J. Carr, was the first item on the agenda. Other conferences are set for today.

The expectation was that a validating bill will be introduced Tuesday at Springfield to clothe Acting Mayor Corr with full power to sign bonds, warrants, and other documents. This measure is expected to meet with little opposition among the Republicans, as it is for the purpose of removing any cloud from acts performed by the de facto mayor who was elected by the city council Tuesday night. The Republicans take the view in general that to oppose it would be regarded as delaying attempts to pay overdue salaries to the city employés.

Adamowski Bill Up Tuesday.

The program outlined by the Democrats a week ago still seems to be in favor among the organization. It is embraced in the Adamowski bill, which comes up in the house on second reading Tuesday.

This measure gives the city council the right to elect a mayor from inside or outside the ranks of the aldermen, who shall have full powers as mayor. It provides that the council shall fix the time of the special election to fill the rest of the unexpired term, which runs to April, 1935.

Whether this program is to be modified will be decided at conferences today and tomorrow. It has been pointed out that the Adamowski bill is broad enough to enable the city council, if it picks a satisfactory outsider as mayor, to retain him in office for the whole unexpired term. This might be done by calling the special election on the same day as the next regular election of mayor in April, 1935.

Whether Republican votes will be forthcoming to pass the proposed measure by an emergency vote—two-thirds being the requisite—is still in doubt. Democrats yesterday began to talk of the possibility that the Adamowski bill might be passed by only a majority vote, which would make it effective July 1, and that De Facto Acting Mayor Corr might be retained in office until after that date.

MIAMI WILL BUILD CERMAK MONUMENT AT SCENE OF SHOOTING

Miami, Fla., March 18. — (AP) — A monument to Anton J. Cermak is to be erected in Bayfront park here. There the Chicago mayor was wounded fatally Feb. 15 by one of five bullets Giuseppe Zangara fired in attempting to assassinate President Roosevelt.

George E. Hussey, general chairman of the city memorial committee, announced plans today for raising funds to erect the monument Feb. 15, 1934.

Cermak died in a hospital here March 6. Zangara is in the death cell of the state prison at Raiford awaiting execution next week.

Three Bandits Hold Up 20 Men in Cigar Store

Three gunmen held up twenty men in John W. Healy's cigar store at 5831 West Madison street last night and escaped with known loot of $231. Healy told police he lost $75 and John G. Williamson, 517 South Oak Park avenue, a customer, reported he lost $156. Some eighteen other customers left the store immediately after the robbery and police could not learn their losses.

COME, REFRESH YOUR MEMORY, BEER DRINKERS

These Words Returning to Our Vocabulary.

And now, gentle reader, we are about to be led out of the wilderness of bootleg booze, out of the jungles of the speakeasy, and into the promised land which flows with beer and where perhaps the pumpernickel shall fall as manna.

Therefore it is mete that we should return to the terms of the past. Some, perhaps, have forgotten them; some of the younger generation never learned them. It was the custom in the long ago to start the evening with:

A stein—A heavy vessel of glass with a handle. Usually is held a pint of foaming brew, ice cold. Down the sides slowly ran a beady "sweat," caused by the contract of the chilled receptacle with the warm air. It could be open; topped with the foam welling over the brim, or it could have a pewter top which would rise gracefully when the thumb pressed down on a lever near the handle.

But there also were steins of pottery; majestic utensils of German or Austrian design, with single or double handles, with fat German madchen engraved or embrossed on the side; or perhaps with hunting scenes depicted. They were surmounted with silver tops bearing little metal statuettes to Teutonic hearts. In size they graduated up until two hands were needed to lift them and a stout heart and stout stomach were needed to encompass them.

Later, there would be a modification and steins would be deserted for:

A shell—A tall, straight glass, holding perhaps 2-3 of a stein. It's thin glass made it seem more comfortable than the weighty stein.

Still later it would be "John give me—"

A glass or a little shell, which held the same but were of different shape.

Along toward closing time, there would come the calls for:

Snips—The last refuge of a convivial evening. A couple of sips and it was done. The consumer had observed the social amenities and had avoided becoming overset. The more sturdy ones went down only to short beers.

Over in the more aristocratic places imported beer was being absorbed from:

Seidels—Originally a German liquid measure of a short quart, but finally elastically applied to a glass small at the bottom and pyramiding up to a wide top. It gradually became known from its shape instead of size and was interchangeable with the term Stein or the Lifer.

Out back of the yards and in the residence districts, they were applying themselves to the:

Growler—A synonym for rushing the can. The family gathered around the home fire would send one member over to Mike's on the corner with a tin can, preferably a lard can. He or she would bring it back filled to the brim with amber liquid. This was "The Nickel of Beer" made immortal in the romantic story: Frankie and Johnnie. At times the family would attempt hoarding and thence grew the:

Butter-top—An ingenious device of a thin smear of butter or lard on the rim which prevented foam and insured a meaty pail of real beer.

And down on Clark street and out on West Madison, where thirsts were great and cash small, they toyed with:

Schooners—Hefty glasses, big enough to drown a lamb in. They had quantity if not quality in their contents and their huge and heavy bowls erected on thick stems and wide bases, which made them ideal for drinking, and an effective armament if differences arose.

In the transported English ale houses there were:

Noggins and Mugs—Pint sized steins of earthenware and in the German restaurants there existed a few imported.

Boots—Giant steins with which mankind was tested to see if he had real capacity.

The bartenders' tools of trade consisted of his:

Rubber—An ivory or rubber spatulate with which he swiped the foam off the glass and his:

Squeegee—A rubber-faced utensil with which he kept the bar free of spilled beer.

Beer, of course, was primarily a beverage, but sometimes a medicine. They had their:

Bock—A spring tonic as efficient as sulphur and molasses, the arrival of which was announced by a sign beside the door bearing a goat rampant and:

Weiss—The panacea for the ills which beset the one who imbibes too freely the night before.

WISCONSIN BILL TO CONTROL SALE OF BEER DRAWN

State Expects $1,000,000 Yearly Revenue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., March 18.—[Special.]—A Democratic administration bill containing more than 4,000 words regulating the manufacture and sale of beer in Wisconsin was whipped into final form late today and is to be introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Assemblyman Louis Leidiger, Merrill.

A companion bill establishing a sales tax to be applied to each barrel of beer manufactured for sale is to be written by Monday evening and probably will be introduced at the same time.

The second bill is expected by Gov. A. G. Schmedeman and other administration leaders to produce about $2,000,000 in state revenue during the next two years.

Word "Saloon" Barred.

Under the regulating bill completed today the word "saloon" becomes "tavern" and barkeepers are called "operators." Neither taverns nor any other establishments to be issued licenses to sell beer will be permitted to dispense it after 12:30 a. m. or before 8 a. m.

Brewers would be permitted to operate taverns on brewery premises provided they obtain licenses from the treasurer of the city, town, or village in which the manufacturing plant is located. Brewers, bottlers, or dealers will not be permitted, however, to be financially interested in the business of an individual retailer, the bill stipulates.

No sales of beer will be permitted to persons less than 18 years old unless they are accompanied by parents or guardians, and an intoxicated person will not be permitted to purchase the beverage.

Two Kinds of Licenses.

Two kinds of licenses are provided under the bill. Both of them would supply local governmental units with additional revenue. Grocery and drug stores or similar establishments where beer is to be sold for consumption elsewhere would be charged not more than $5 a year for sales licenses.

Taverns would pay fees, however, according to the size of the communities in which they are located. The fees would be $100 for each tavern in cities of the first and second class, $75 for cities of the third and fourth class, and $50 for taverns in villages and towns.

Must Be U. S. Citizens.

The word "saloon" would be prohibited for advertising use under a clause of the bill which reads:

"No person listed under this subsection shall use the word 'saloon' upon any sign or advertising or as a designation of any premises in which fermented malt beverages are sold."

Tavern operators must be citizens of the United States and must live in Wisconsin at least a year before they will be permitted to sell beer. There is to be no license fee imposed upon railway trains or steamboats where beer will be sold.

The bill stipulates that local governments may impose additional regulations upon the sale of beer.

KILLS EX-HUSBAND; ASYLUM.

Pekin, Ill., March 18.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Kate Lantz was ordered committed to the state penitentiary for the criminal insane at Chester today. She shot and killed her former husband.

A Wonder of '93

When congress and the President make the sale of beer legal, the fine old crystal bar at the Brevoort hotel, which was one of the wonders displayed in connection with the World's Fair of 1893, will gleam again as of old.

The crystal bar was a rendezvous, between 11:30 and 2 o'clock daily, for some of the city's leading business men. The management expects it to return to its oldtime status.

Daniel Hogg of the liquor firm of Hannah and Hogg, who purchased the bar and installed it in the Brevoort, is refurbishing it. Needed repairs were being carried out yesterday. Oldtimers who worked behind the bar in prohibition days and will return to their tasks in the post-Jry era are Max Fumbanks, Jimmie Gilmer and Joe Miklas.

QUESTION UNION OFFICIALS ON EGG STORAGE BLAST

Three officials of the Poultry Handlers' union, 1021 Fulton street, were questioned yesterday by Lieut. John Treacy at the detective bureau in connection with the bombing early in the day of the storage depot of the Getz Poultry and Egg corporation, 350 North Carpenter street.

Alex Getz, president of the company, told the police he believed the bombing was the result of his refusal to employ members of the union at his plant. The attack was the second bombing of the plant within two days. A week ago Mr. Getz's home at 6707 Newgard avenue was mysteriously burned.

The men questioned were Harry Thieme, 5361 South Artesian avenue, business manager and financial secretary for the union; Martin O'Brien, 7948 Rhodes avenue, president of the union, and John Mallec, 2246 West 24th street, vice president. All denied knowledge of the bombings. They were charged with disorderly conduct on orders of Capt. John Stege and released on $25 bonds each to appear in the Des Plaines street court tomorrow.

Governor Lets N. Dakota Beer Bill Become a Law

Bismarck, N. D., March 18.—(AP)—Gov. William Langer said today he would allow a beer bill recently passed by the state legislature to become a law without his signature. This was the last day for a veto of the bill. The law, effective July 1, provides for sale and distribution of beer and wines in the event congress makes this possible. There is no provision for manufacture of beer and wines in the state.

WATCHMAN DIES OF WOUND.

A bullet wound in the neck, which he received Thursday when he was shot by a Negro thief, caused the death early yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of William E. King, 40 years old, 1532 East 65th street, a railroad watchman.

24 NEW MASTERS OF BREWING ART GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Henius Warns Them Against Politics.

"Make all efforts to keep the industry on a high level, freed from the fetters of politics and saloons," was the parting counsel offered the first graduating class in 17 years at the old Wahl-Henius institute, 2374 Lincoln avenue, yesterday. Dr. Max Henius, president, gave the graduation address to the 24 newly created brewmasters.

"Beer should be served with the strictest propriety, with the greatest freedom, in elevated surroundings, affording that relaxation which the human engine craves as urgently as sleep, and without the slightest suggestion of or incitement to anything in any way improper or undesirable," the veteran brewer informed the men who have just completed a five months' course in brewing chemistry, physics, botany, bacteriology, microscopy, yeast culture, and mechanical and electrical engineering and refrigeration.

"Saloon Out of Place."

"It is entirely out of place," he said, "to speak of the coming back of the saloon, as there are now in existence plenty of dispensing places for such beverages. In Chicago alone there are 20,000 places where beer can be served at tables or counters.

"I desire to emphasize that the new beer, containing about 3 per cent of alcohol by weight, will be a wholesome, palatable, refreshing beverage that will compare well with the average beer made today in the leading beer producing countries of the world. The $5 tax per barrel is proper taxation, since it allows selling at retail at 5 cents a glass and 10 cents a bottle. This will give the brewers and dispensers a reasonable profit.

"Since this beer is a nonintoxicant, it can be sold with other nonintoxicants in restaurants, cafeterias, cafés, drug stores, groceries.

Hits Senate Amendments.

"Unfortunately the senate has offered amendments to this bill which are irrelevant. The amendment allowing so-called wines with 3 per cent of alcohol is ridiculous, as you cannot produce wine with 3 per cent of alcohol.

"The senate amendment making it unlawful to sell or give this beverage to any child below 16 years is illogical, for the reason that if it is supposed to be intoxicating, it can neither be manufactured nor sold under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and if it is nonintoxicating a child should be permitted to drink it as well as other nonintoxicating beverages.

PITTSFIELD MERCHANT KILLED.

Pittsfield, Ill., March 18.—[U. P.]—Harry Shriver, 50, owner of a large clothing store here, was killed today when the automobile in which he and two other men were riding crashed into a culvert on highway 36, two miles west of here.

GETS FIVE YEARS FOR THREATS TO ARMOUR FAMILY

U. S. to Prosecute Writer of Patten Notes.

The new federal law which defines the writing of extortion letters as a felony was invoked yesterday to send one man to prison for five years and to transfer the case against another from police to federal jurisdiction.

CHIEF FREEMAN.

Walter J. Radavicius, 18 years old, 914 West 18th place, who confessed writing a series of threatening letters to members of the Armour family, was given the prison sentence by Judge John P. Barnes. At the same time the district attorney's office requested Evanston police to turn over Axel Peterson, accused of writing five threat notes to Mrs. James A. Patton, widow of the wheat king.

Peterson was seized Friday night in a police trap set by Lieut. Carl Ekman of the Evanston force. After receiving the request from Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Fisher, Lieut. Ekman and a squad took the prisoner to the federal building and turned him over to the United States marshal.

Confesses Notes to Mrs. Patten.

Before leaving Evanston, Peterson, an unemployed landscape gardener and the father of three daughters, made a full confession of attempting to extort $50,000 from Mrs. Patten, so, he explained, he could pay a mortgage on his home. The confession was made to Chief of Police William O. Freeman.

At the Patten home it was stated that if Peterson had asked Mrs. Patten for aid he would have received it. It was denied that Peterson had been refused a loan two years ago, as he stated to police. His wife, Hilda, expressed amazement yesterday when told of her husband's arrest.

"I cannot imagine what got into his head," she said. "He didn't have to do such a thing. He has had violent fits of temper for some time and has always been very sorry afterward. Several times recently he threatened to commit suicide."

Peterson is 52 years old and lives at 1212 Elmwood avenue, Evanston. He sent the first of the five threat letters to Mrs. Patten on March 3 and the others at intervals of two or three days. In each he threatened death if Mrs. Patten refused his demands.

Walks Into Police Trap.

On Friday night an Evanston policewoman, Mrs. Vera Everett, dressed in Mrs. Patten's clothes, left the Patten home at 1426 Ridge avenue at 7:30 o'clock, in compliance with directions contained in the final extortion letter. Under one arm she held a dummy package. She carried a revolver in her hand. She walked south slowly. Detectives were hidden along the street and a squad, led by Lieut. Ekman, followed in an old automobile.

Several blocks from the Patten home Peterson was observed walking in pace with the policewoman on the opposite side of the street. Several times he started to cross over to her, but each time turned back. Finally he faced about and started to hurry away in the opposite direction. He was seized by Lieut. Ekman.

The extortion case against young Radavicius followed the receipt of A. Watson Armour, Laurance H. Armour, and A. Watson Armour III, of letters demanding a total of $18,000. Radavicious surrendered after a police trap had been set near his home. No members of the Armour family were in court yesterday when he was sentenced. Judge Barnes directed that the prison term be served in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O.

URGES RETURN TO 2C POSTAGE, END 3D CLASS

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—A plan whereby the first class 3 cent postal rate would be cut to 2 cents if the present laws governing the third class matter be abolished was proposed today by Representative D. C. Dobbins, Democrat, of Champaign, Ill.

It found considerable support among others of the Illinois delegation.

"I propose," Dobbins said, "that all third class mail now carried at 1½ cents per two ounces be treated as first class mail and carried at 2 cents per ounce.

"Third class matter now is made up of circulars. It is carried in unsealed envelopes. It requires as much time for handling as any sealed envelope carrying a 3 cent stamp.

"I believe these envelopes should be sealed and carried at the first class rate.

"It has the added advantage of assuming the dignity of a first class letter, and the added revenue will assist the postoffice department in eliminating its shocking deficit."

His plan was supported by Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Democrat of Chicago.

GIRL SWINGS CHAIR ON TOUGH BEER RUNNER

George [Yama] Downs is a south side beer runner associated with Bubs Quinlan and Danny McGeoghegan. All are tough men.

But George met his match yesterday at 5:30 a. m. when he called at the flat of the Misses Laura Wojich, Florence Jackson and Betty Blake at 4636 Drexel boulevard. He insisted on being admitted and broke in when his plans were ignored.

He seized Miss Wojich, it is charged, and attempted to strangle her. This made Miss Jackson angry. She seized a chair and hit Yama on the head. He laid on the floor quietly after that. The police, summoned by neighbors, arrived to find him still laid out while the three pajama clad girls sat watching him.

Downs, protesting he was going to "get the jobs" of Policemen Joseph Hanlon and Con Czernikowski, was taken to the Woodlawn station, where Miss Wojich charged him with assault.

STEVENSES SUED FOR $5,978,985 ILL. LIFE LOANS

Receiver of Company Acts to Recover Funds.

Collateral loans made by the Illinois Life Insurance company when it was under the control of the Stevens family resulted yesterday in suits for $5,978,985, filed in the federal District court by Gen. Abel Davis, receiver of the insurance company. The defendants named, and the amounts they owe, in addition to interest since Jan. 1, 1932, are:

JAMES W. STEVENS, former chairman of the board of the insurance company, $2,500,000.

RAYMOND W. STEVENS, son of James W., former president, $300,000.

G. F. RAMER, auditor of the company and dummy for James W. Stevens, $1,808,500.

Declare Stevenses Are "Broke."

Various lawyers who have been interested in the affairs of the insurance company say the information they have gotten is to the effect that the Stevenses are "flat broke," and that suing them for millions is a futile formality.

The loans and the collateral on which they were made, mostly stock in the Stevens and La Salle hotel corporations, had been explained previously in reports to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson by Receiver Davis. They were made over a six year period, from 1925 till 1931, and the money thus obtained by the Stevenses was used in an effort to save the two hotels controlled by the same family.

Besides these loans, secured by collateral now worth scarcely $100,000, the insurance company invested $13,000,000 of its funds in securities of the hotels, now having a corresponding value.

Now Under Indictment.

The two Stevenses named and a third member of the family, Ernest J., former president of the Stevens hotel and director of the insurance company, are under indictment in the State court on charges of defrauding the company of some $4,000,000, and a federal government investigation is expected to reach the grand jury stage soon.

Receiver Davis, it was reported yesterday, will present a contract for the reinsurance of the company by Associated Mutuals, Boston, this week. A proposal of this company to reinsure the 75,000 policyholders of Illinois, with a total of some $140,000,000 insurance, was selected by the receiver and approved by the court from a total of 12 bids.

A message of progress and happier living

The Spirit of Chicago. The great Century of Progress Exposition — the progress made by mankind in one hundred years.... Here, the Hall of Science uses more electric light in this building than was used in ALL buildings of Chicago's World's Fair of 1893.

At Hotel Shoreland 13,726 electric bulbs give cheer, brightness, radiate happiness in this charming hotel-home.

Here our problems deal with the human equation — a daily striving to give to men a happier, more cheerful, brighter home in which to live. Our daily work to assume more responsibility for others that they may have the joy of living in ever greater measure.

So the myriad lights that glow from Shoreland windows are but silent evidence that scores of families have found cheerful happy homes here. That Shoreland recognition is but the result of consistent and conscientious effort to keep step with progress—to light the way to a service for others that shall make the word "Hotel" mean more than ever before.

BACK SALES TAX, IS HORNER'S PLEA TO ENTIRE STATE

Sees New Levy as Source of Relief Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Appealing to the "patriotic and devoted" spirit of America in critical times, Gov. Henry Horner today issued a formal plea for complete coöperation of all citizens of Illinois in bringing about true effectiveness for the sales tax. It is taken here as an argument against efforts to block the tax by injunctions or other court proceedings.

"All citizens of the state," he said, "can aid by displaying the same spirit which has manifested itself when calls for other sacrifices have been made upon them."

The governor feels that the new retail tax, which will go into effect after the bills receive his signature next week, will mean real aid in continuing the present relief for the idle. But he is worried about the scarcity of funds before the collections begin to come in.

For that reason, he left here this afternoon to spend the week-end in Chicago, the primary purpose of his trip being a conference with Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission, upon methods of procuring funds for the commission's operations between April 1 and May 1.

Text of Horner Appeal.

The text of the appeal follows:

"The patriotic and devoted spirit which has made it possible for the people of the United States to meet and deal with each crisis that has arisen in their history is still alive and dominant. They have shown their willingness to do all in their power to insure the success of the measures which have been proposed by state and nation to remedy the conditions from which they have suffered. As a result of this patriotic unanimity better things are already in sight for all of us throughout the nation.

"Here in Illinois the same coöperation of all citizens will bring about the same results. In our state the crisis that has confronted us has been met in part by the passage of the 3 per cent sales tax by a vote in which the members of the legislature of all parties joined. With this measure now a law, the way out of our dilemma is clear.

Sees Beneficial Results.

"With the full patriotic support of all citizens for this measure beneficial results will be obtained.

"The machinery for the operation of the sales tax is now being planned by the state department of finance, which is charged with the duty of collecting the tax, and with authority to prescribe rules and regulations governing its operation.

"This is no small task, and perhaps two or three weeks will be required to perfect the arrangements that will be necessary to guarantee the smooth functioning of this new measure, and make it as facile to those who pay the tax as possible.

"While the sales tax has operated successfully in other states, it is entirely new to Illinois, and misunderstandings of its provisions may arise from time to time.

Coöperation Is Sought.

"In order to keep these to a minimum, it is essential that the merchants of the state coöperate to the fullest extent with the department of finance, not only in upholding the law, but in aiding the department to set up the collection machinery.

"The department of finance will welcome the advice and assistance of the merchants and others interested. It is to be hoped that they will bring all moot questions to the department prior to the date on which collections are started. This will avoid much confusion later and will prevent the slowing up of collections.

"In these critical times I feel that the people of this state will emphatically resent any effort by individuals or groups, impelled by selfish motives, to frustrate the collection of this needed tax or avoid the obligations of honor and self-respect it imposes.

"Owing to the fact that many counties of the state will use the proceeds of the sales tax for relief purposes, it is imperative that collections be made with the least possible delay."

Louis Lipsky Here to Plan Palestine Exhibit at Fair

ACTION PLANNED DOWNSTATE TO BLOCK SALES TAX

Merchants to Seek an Injunction.

In the face of a statement by Gov. Horner, calling for statewide "patriotic support" of the sales tax, a downstate movement to sue for a federal court injunction to block the tax was launched yesterday at Rockford and other towns. With the sales tax bill approved as constitutional by Attorney General Kerner, Gov. Horner was expected to sign the bill tomorrow, thus making it effective April 1.

Rockford retail merchants, backed by the Rockford chamber of commerce, were laying plans to join delegations from other cities in Springfield probably next Wednesday to discuss plans for obtaining an injunction to block collection of the tax. State Representative Leroy M. Green of Rockford is a leader in the movement.

Plan Action at Danville.

The injunction, Mr. Green said, probably will be sought before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, the contention being raised that the tax is too great for merchants and consumers to bear and that it violates the constitution.

Cities on state boundary lines, including East St. Louis, Danville, Rock Island, Moline and Quincy are expected to give the Rockford group strong support, their fear being that customers will take their trade to nearby cities in Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana and Missouri, unless the tax be blocked.

Merchants Raise Objection.

L. Penn Owens, prominent Rockford drygoods merchant, will represent that city at Springfield. He and other merchants declared they would be unable to pass the burden of the tax on to the consumer, as the law provides, because of the competition from merchants of Beloit, Wis., only eighteen miles north.

Attempts to induce Rockford stores to take concerted action to boost food and merchandise prices to pass the tax on have been unsuccessful, dispatches from there stated.

PROTESTS NEW RESTRICTIONS ON VETERAN RELIEF

L. R. Benston, department service officer of the American Legion, protested yesterday against the new veterans' relief restrictions which are based on the national economy bill voted at Washington.

These restrictions provide that veterans' hospitals shall not accept hospitalization cases unless the cases are of an emergency nature. They also provide that government expenses for the funerals of dead veterans shall not be above $107.

Mr. Benston declared that these restrictions were unjust. The maximum funeral allowance of $107 will be insufficient in many cases, he said. The emergency treatment provisions will work greater hardships, he added. He cited the case of Clayton Armstrong, a veteran, who died yesterday in the county psychopathic hospital. Armstrong had been denied admittance to the Hines hospital because his case was not deemed emergency.

SHOWS THAT SENATE TOOK 18 DROPS OF KICK OUT OF BEER

Dr. Frederick Cleveland Test, assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at Northwestern university and a member of the Cook county hospital staff, says the public should not be deceived by the apparently slight difference between senate beer of 3.05 per cent alcoholic content and 3.2 per cent house beer.

Figures produced by Dr. Test show that the senate amendment, which the house rejected on Friday, would decrease the alcoholic content of an 8 ounce glass of beer by 18.68 drops.

"A dram of alcohol," said Dr. Test, "has 146 drops in it and there are eight drams, or 1,168 drops, to an ounce. Water, having a greater viscosity, which determines the size of a drop, has only 480 drops to an ounce."

Dr. Test then carries on his computations as follows:

Beer of 3.05 alcohol by weight is equivalent to 3.8 by volume, because alcohol is lighter than water, and 3.2 beer by weight is 4 per cent by volume. Therefore the difference in alcholic content by volume is .2 per cent. Multiplying 8 ounces, the measure of an average glass of beer, by .2 per cent gives .016 of an ounce, the actual alcoholic difference between a glass of senate beer and a glass of house beer.

Since there are 1,168 drops of alcohol in an ounce, the alcoholic difference between glasses of the two beers is 18.68 drops. On the same basis of reckoning, there are 373.760 drops of alcohol in an 8 ounce glass of 3.2 beer and 355.072 drops in a similar glass of 3.05 beer.

"Just try 18 drops of alcohol on your tongue," advised Dr. Test, "and you will appreciate that there is a real difference between the senate beer and the house beer."

Dr. Test pointed out, however, that 18.68 drops of alcohol is not as much as it might seem, for the average teaspoonful of alcohol contains 194.66 drops, so that the difference between a glass of senate and a glass of house beer would be less than 1-11 of a teaspoonful.

DRYS IN RALLY BID GOOD-BY TO COACH STAGG

Start State Straw Vote on Repeal Tomorrow.

A house to house canvass throughout the state will be launched tomorrow to reveal the attitude of each voter toward repeal of the 18th amendment and to give "information" to ex-drys who are now wet. This campaign is to be conducted by the Illinois Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, and many of the canvassers will be Saracens, a group of younger drys organized to combat the efforts of the wet Crusaders.

A rally for this campaign was included yesterday in a farewell luncheon given by the dry groups in the Great Northern hotel to Amos Alonzo Stagg, for 41 years football coach at the University of Chicago. Mr. Stagg will leave today for Stockton, Cal., to become coach at the College of the Pacific. He has been allied with the dry forces here for many years.

Lauds Stagg as Dry Leader.

"We have come here today to rally behind the leadership of Coach Stagg," declared Arthur M. Barnhart, president of the conference, who was toastmaster. "We think of him not only as a coach but as a leader who will help vindicate the American people as to self-rule on the liquor question."

In his response to tribute paid him by those at the speakers' table, Coach Stagg called on the members of the organization to save prohibition.

"Last fall our opponents blocked the ball, recovered it, and the game was lost," he said. "We are in the minority, but we can be proud to be there. What does it matter if we are in the minority if we have the courage and endurance to fight on?"

Speak for Prohibition.

Among the speakers who praised the veteran coach and spoke on the prohibition situation were Ernest L. Waldorf, bishop of the Chicago area of the Methodist church; Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary; Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago chapel; Dr. Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college; Miss Mary Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college, John Nuveen, banker and president of the American Baptist Publication society; Kenneth "Tug" Wilson, director of athletics, Northwestern university; Henry E. Wilson, University of Illinois; Harry Eugene Kelly, and W. D. Bayley of Winnipeg, former member of parliament.

HOPE 3.05 BEER WILL PASS TEST IN HIGH COURT

Senate Leaders Explain Change in House Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—In putting the finishing legislative touches to the beer bill, which leaders now hope to see passed finally in both houses on Monday or Tuesday, the ultimate Supreme court test of the measure's constitutionality is what congress intends to keep in mind.

This was evident today as the conferees of the senate and house prepared to meet in order to adjust the differences between the house and senate versions of the bill. The chief differences are three:

The house bill legalizes beverages of 3.2 per cent, the senate bill beverages of 3.05 per cent of alcoholic content by weight, or respectively about 4 per cent and 3.8 per cent by volume.

That Borah Amendment.

The senate bill includes wine and fruit juices among the lawful beverages. And the senate bill includes the Borah amendment, making it illegal to sell or give any such beverages to persons under 16 years of age.

With the constitutional test in mind, it was thought today that the wisest course would be to agree on the lower alcoholic content. A percentage of 3.05 was recommended by the senate judiciary committee at the last session as the highest that would come within the prohibition of the 18th amendment.

The committee based its recommendation in large part upon an exhaustive study by a British commission. Back of no higher percentage, it is thought, can such a distinguished and weighty volume of support be offered.

Wine May Stay in Bill.

Whether wine shall stay in or come out is at present a matter for conjecture. But there is little doubt that the Borah amendment will be discarded. In addition to burdening the bill with a police regulation properly belonging to the field of local administration, the members of congress who passed the bill are quite aware that to allow the amendment to remain in would mean sending the final act up to the Supreme court carrying an open confession that 3.05 beverages were harmful and presumably intoxicating.

While preparations are thus being made for an agreement, both the beer bill and the economy bill were hanging fire with both houses of congress in a week-end recess, resting from the strenuous work which they have performed since the special session began ten days ago.

The economy bill, delegating to President Roosevelt arbitrary power to slash half a billion dollars from veterans' benefits and federal salaries, is likewise mired in congressional inactivity. Speaker Henry T. Rainey was unable to sign it because of a technical parliamentary detail following its passage on Thursday. By the time it was in form for his signature, the senate had recessed and the Vice President was in turn forced to postpone his signing until the senate is again in session on Monday.

Robinson Bank Bill Delayed.

Delay along with the beer and economy bills is the Robinson bill amending the emergency banking law to permit nonmember state banks to obtain the new currency authorized in the emergency act. The house yesterday held up consideration of this measure on the ground that the banking and currency committee chairman, Representative Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], was trying to railroad it through.

Had the senate been in session yesterday, representatives who held up the Robinson measure said they would have approved it. With the senate in recess and with no prospect of final action on the bill until Monday, they insisted on delay until they have had more opportunity to study it.

OFFICIALS CONFER ON PLAN TO PAY CITY AND SCHOOL SALARIES

At a conference yesterday between city fiscal and legal officers the opinions of Corporation Counsel Sexton and Henry Cutler, bond law expert, relative to the authority of an acting mayor were discussed at length in an effort to determine what steps may be taken to obtain a pay day for city employés.

The conference adjourned without any decision being made, but tomorrow Acting Mayor Corr is expected to make an announcement on the pay prospects for city and also school employés. Meanwhile, Thomas Marshall, attorney for City Treasurer Kearns will study the Sexton and Cutler opinions for the purpose of advising the treasurer as to the legality of any action that may be taken to turn over salary checks to the employés.

"I am anxious to have the employés paid as quickly as possible," said Mr. Corr, "and we are working toward that end. We discussed a program for setting the city's finances in order, and I think the situation will be sufficiently clarified in a few days so that we can get started on whatever action is deemed necessary."

MINERS DISABLED BY SILICOSIS SUE FOR 5 MILLIONS

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—(AP)—The Post-Dispatch says that hundreds of damage suits and notices of suits, embodying claims totaling more than $5,000,000 have been filed within the last year against the St. Joseph Lead company and the National Lead company by idle miners who allege disability from silicosis, a disease caused by rock dust.

The newspaper says the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which carries the group liability insurance for the companies, has approved claims of $475,000 being paid to the miners in monthly installments. Demands in the suits range from $15,000 to $50,000, and officials of the mining companies estimate the claims at more than $5,000,000.

Seek 3 Millions From Contractor.

Fayetteville, W. Va., March 18.—(AP)—Suits for $3,000,000 against a construction company for deaths or disability allegedly resulting from silicosis began this week in Fayette county Circuit court. All the suits revolved about the construction of a tunnel at Hawk's Nest, W. Va., for the New Kanawha Power company.

Alaskan Senate Repeals Dry Law; Up to Governor

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 18.—(AP)—The territorial senate today passed a bill repealing the Alaska "bone dry" law, with only one opposing vote, and the measure probably will reach Gov. George A. Parks Monday. He has made no statement of his attitude. The house passed the bill several days ago by a unanimous vote. It carries an emergency clause, which would make it effective as soon as the governor gives his approval.

THREE PIONEERS DIE.

Coldwater, Mich., March 18.—[Special.]—Three Branch county pioneers, Fay D. White, 62, who was a member of the highway commission; William E. Foster, 79, and Arthur J. Clearwater, 77, were dead at their homes here today.

BEER TO ARRIVE IN CHICAGO ON WINGS OF SONG

Plans Are Laid for a Gay Celebration.

Plans for a celebration of the return of beer, now deemed probable April 4 or 5, were being laid yesterday by Chicago breweries, hotels, restaurants, clubs, cabarets and summer gardens which view a merry season of prosperity with the legalization of a brew of more than 3 per cent alcohol by weight.

In the loop, the rejoicing is expected to combine the elements of a Mardi Gras, New Years' eve, Fourth of July and Armistice day demonstration. Tentative preparations were being made by some of the big breweries to stage parades of beer trucks manned by brawny, leather aproned delivery men yodeling old drinking songs to the oom-pah of German bands.

Beer Night Programs.

Much of the festivity will be spontaneous, but the loop hotels are scheduling special Beer night programs after the fashion of the New Years' eve celebrations. The guests will be served hearty, substantial food such as is properly consumed with beer, and will be allowed to join in the community singing of "Sweet Adeline" late in the evening.

It is estimated that 500,000 of Chicago's 3,000,000 population will take an active part in the jubilee. Ultraconservative predictions were that each of the 500,000 would partake of an average of five steins of beer on the first night alone. Thus, 2,500,000 steins of brew will be consumed on the first day of the new era.

6,250 Barrels of Beer.

This represents 6,250 barrels or beer which will be sold by the breweries to retailers at $15 a barrel, a total of $93,750, and will be bought by the public at 10 cents a stein. At 400 ten ounce steins to the barrel, a total of $250,000 will be spent in the celebration for beer alone.

While the festival in the loop will be the most spectacular feature of the return of beer, the quaffing in private homes will be widespread, it was indicated. Orders for more than 100,000 cases of beer have already been placed with breweries for delivery the day that the beer law goes into effect, and it is estimated that at least 300,000 cases will be delivered to homes in the first days of legal beer at a total purchase price of close to $1,000,000.

$40,000 BONDS FOR AUTO THIEF.

Joseph Drizal, 21 years old, 1959 South Spaulding avenue, confessed automobile thief, was yesterday held to the grand jury in bonds of $40,000 by Judge Frank M. Padden.

BRITISH CABINET TO ACT IN SOVIET SABOTAGE CASE

May Warn Subjects to Leave Russia.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—The British government still is not satisfied as to what the arrests last Saturday and Sunday of six British subjects is all about, but the penalty the soviets will have to pay is receiving greater emphasis concurrently with wider acceptance of the belief that the arrested officials of the Metropolitan-Vickers Ltd., an electrical machinery company, will be forced to stand criminal trial.

Negotiations for a new commercial treaty between Great Britain and Russia, necessitated by the Ottawa economic agreements, have been suspended and it is a foregone conclusion that if the Gay Pay Ou, soviet secret police, persist in carrying out their plans, all commercial relations between the two countries will be broken off. It was also learned that the British government may warn all British citizens to leave Russia if the British prisoners are brought to trial.

Eye American Attitude.

The British are manifesting some interest in the American attitude toward the arrests. Metropolitan-Vickers, a subsidiary of the huge British Associated Electrical industries, itself will lose only $150,000 should the contracts the company holds with soviet Russia be broken off as a result of the arrests. The British now are wondering what attitude American companies, which have built large Russian industrial plants, will adopt in view of their own interests there.

Should commercial relations between Britain and Russia be disrupted the soviets are certain to be the biggest losers. The soviets are far more interested in acquiring British credits and developing markets in Great Britain than the reverse.

Should trade relations cease, then Arcos, Ltd., which is the Russian trading company in Great Britain, would be compelled to shut its doors, as it did after a British raid eight years ago.

Unable to Visit Prisoners.

Diplomatic relationships await the result of the trials which Moscow has announced will be held within a month. The British ambassador to Moscow, Sir Esmond Ovey, is making constant and most urgent protests against the proceedings against the men, but without result. The ambassador is still not allowed to visit the imprisoned men privately and official circles here fear that they are being subjected to ruthless third degree measures or worse in the Moscow prison.

Should the defendants receive a death penalty, which is considered improbable, or even lengthy prison sentences, Sir Esmond is expected to be recalled from Moscow. A cabinet meeting has been called for Monday at which it is understood the Russian situation will be considered.

[The soviet authorities arrested six Britons and 35 Russian employés in raids at Moscow and Leningrad. Two of the British subjects later were released.]

Involves $100,000,000 Plant.

Reports published in London this afternoon indicate that the charges against the British subjects involve alleged sabotage of the gigantic hydraulic works at Dnieprostroi, which was completed at a cost of $100,000,000 last May.

The soviets claim that the steel of the great turbine blades, which were supposed to be noncorrosive and rust-resisting, are already corroded. The claims, it is reported here, are that sand or acid were injected into the generators.

The Gay Pay Ou further declares, it is reported here, that the mishaps would have been impossible except through the coöperation of somebody in charge of the work.

Metropolitan-Vickers supplied steel for the turbines. The dam on the river Dnieper is nearly a half mile long. It was built under the supervision of American engineers, but the work was taken over by soviet authorities last September when it was indicated that the British company's officials had assumed the work of installing the turbines. It is alleged that the sabotage occurred at that time.

The British are aroused at reports from Moscow that one of the accused men has broken down and made a confession. It is considered strange that any counter revolutionary activity could be attributed to Metropolitan-Vickers engineers.

PEASANTS OF RUSSIA FORBIDDEN TO LEAVE COLLECTIVE FARMS

MOSCOW, March 18.—(AP)—New measures against recalcitrant sections of the peasantry were taken by the Soviet government today. A decree issued through the central executive committee and the council of the peoples commissars forbade peasants to leave collective farms to seek work elsewhere without special permission of the presidium of the respective farms.

Heretofore there have been no such restrictions. This resulted in recent months in a mass movement of peasants to industrial centers seeking better living conditions because of crop failures in many districts.

The new order was another indication of the government's determination to apply strictest measures in an effort to overcome serious setbacks to agriculture which have been responsible for a food shortage in most sections of the country.

HORNER OFFERS HIS LINCOLNIA AS FAIR EXHIBIT

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Gov. Horner today offered his collection of Lincolnia, or any items from it, to the Lincolniana committee of the Illinois commission on the Century of Progress for display during the World's Fair at the Illinois Host building.

The governor and J. F. Cornelius, chairman of the Lincolnia committee, also visited the bank vault where the $100,000 portrait of Lincoln is kept, and arranged with the estate of the late Edward Payne to display it in the Host building. This painting, Lincoln's favorite, was made in 1861 by George F. Wright just before Lincoln left for Washington.

Prominent collectors have tried to get it, among them J. P. Morgan, whose offer was refused, Mr. Cornelius said.

The Lincolnia committee, which today ended a three days' inspection of Lincoln relics in and about Springfield with the idea of getting the best of them for the fair, included Mr. Cornelius, Paul Demos of Chicago, Senators Richard F. Barr, Joliet, and Roy C. Woods, Chicago, and Rep. Richard E. King of Chicago.

Two hours were spent with the governor in the Lincoln room, adjoining his bedroom, at the executive mansion.

JEWEL THIEF SUSPECT FREED ON $4,500 BONDS

Miami Beach, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—Ralph Krakower of New York, arrested as a suspect in the jewel thefts of Harry Sidmor, was released from custody today on bonds totalling $4,500.

Meanwhile Sidmor, who confessed he stole jewelry valued variously at $225,000 to $500,000, and his alleged accomplice, Charles Yacht, New York golf professional, remained in jail.

Bart A. Riley, retained by Sidmor as his attorney, said today habeas corpus proceedings were not planned for his client.

"He [Sidmor] intends to plead guilty," Riley said, "and I see no reason for attempting to get him out of jail now."

Sidmor told police the jewelry he turned over to them after his arrest was worth $500,000 but Police Chief Robert T. Teaney said jewelers and insurance agents placed the value at $225,000 to $250,000.

NAILS MORTON'S BROTHER LEAVES TO ENTER PRISON

Paul Morton, brother of the late Nails Morton, early prohibition gangster who will killed by a fall from a horse, left Chicago last night in a prison shipment for Leavenworth, Kas., to start serving 18 months for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Three weeks ago, the time set for the beginning of his sentence, Morton refused to surrender to the United States marshal and went to prison by himself. He was arrested at the prison gates and sent back to Chicago. He was jailed for three weeks and cited for contempt of court by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. The citation was dismissed Friday, but his bond of $10,000 was forfeited.

Also in the prison shipment of eleven under the direction of Deputy Marshal Steve Cusack, are three men sentenced to 25 years in prison for robbery of the mails with a gun. They are Michael O'Brien, brother of "Smiling Jack," who was hanged for the murder of a policeman; Charles Fusco, and Lee P. O'Connor.

Cottages at Bangs Lake Ransacked by Thieves

Ten cottages in the vicinity of Bangs lake, western Lake county, have been broken into in the last few days, Sheriff Lester Tiffany learned yesterday. Only two yielded loot. The cottage of Charles M. Holmes, 200 Belle avenue, Highland Park, president of the W. M. Welch manufacturing company, was ransacked, the thieves stealing silverware and linens valued at $2,000. Linens worth $200 were stolen from the cottage owned by Mrs. Anna Bartell, 1313 North Hoyne avenue.

MARCH 18 WRONG DAY TO LET GEORGE SWEEP CHIMNEY

After another try, he made the roof. Then he fell down on the roof. Hardly had he arisen, before he fell off the roof.

Disheartened? Not George. He climbed back on the roof, then promptly fell down the chimney. He became wedged but managed to free himself. Then George fell off the roof again.

Mrs. Frank Lavinge, owner of the house, called the police.

Officers found George, between falls, still trying to sweep the chimney. They smelled his breath; advised a day off.

FIRE THREATENS WINDSOR CASTLE IN KING'S ABSENCE

LONDON, March 18.—(AP)—Windsor castle, for years a residence of the English royal family, was threatened last week by fire, it was learned today.

The king and queen were not in residence at the castle at the time. The rulers are expected to return from Buckingham palace to Windsor early next month.

The blaze started in one of the older portions of the castle, in the residence of Canon Blackburne. The canon discovered that one of the oak beams in the dean's cloisters, which were built by Edward III., was afire. The castle fire brigade extinguished the flames before much damage had been done.

Motor Toll for County Is Increased to 167.

Mary Lou Russell, 17 years old, 1013 North Ogden avenue, Oak Park, a student at the Oak Park High school, died at the Oak Park hospital yesterday from injuries incurred Friday evening when the automobile in which she was a passenger collided with another machine while speeding at 65 miles an hour in an attempt to escape a pursuing police squad. Three other students riding in the car were seriously hurt.

The four were participating in a "treasure hunt." When they sped past the police squad car the police gave chase and the crash at Washington boulevard and Gale avenue, River Forest, followed when the students refused to stop.

Others in Accident.

The others injured were Margaret Wood, 16 years old, 800 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park; Louis Hammel, 17 years old, 551 Clinton place, River Forest, driver of the car, who suffered fractures of the skull and ribs, and William Troxel, 17 years old, 611 Jackson avenue, River Forest, who sustained a fractured jaw. Marjorie Townsfield, 19 years old, 1429 North Massasoit avenue, who was riding in the other automobile, suffered fractures of several ribs.

Miss Russell's death and one other yesterday increased the Cook county automobile toll for 1933 to 167. The other victim:

Anders G. Johannsen, 69 years old, of 3239 Belle Plaine avenue. Died yesterday in Martha Washington hospital of injuries suffered a short time before when he was hit by an automobile at Sawyer and Irving Park avenues. The driver was Frank Meschung, 4032 North Mason avenue.

Two Sisters Injured.

Evelyn Richards, 18 years old, 6005 Warwick avenue, and her sister, Sue, 21 years old, were struck and severely injured early yesterday morning by the car of a hit-and-run motorist as they were crossing Central avenue at Waveland avenue after alighting from a motor bus. The automobile sped away. The girls were taken to the Belmont hospital.

Henry Neidor, 40 years old, of 9341 South 55th avenue, Oaklawn, was seriously injured last night when his automobile was struck by a freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio tracks at 71st street, near Leavitt street. Emil Baggs, 1306 Sedgwick street, the flagman, told police that Neidor disregarded his warnings and drove upon the tracks. Neidor was taken to the county hospital.

WOMAN HANGS SELF.

Pontiac, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Mrs. George Kridner, 50, wife of a retired farmer, hanged herself today in the garage at their home. A note found near the body said she was afraid of losing her mind and becoming a burden to her husband.

SILLY FOR U. S. NOT TO JOIN LEAGUE, SAYS DR. WOOLLEY

An assertion that it is "silly and childish" for the United States not to belong to the league of nations was made last night by Dr. Mary E. Woolleey, American and only woman delegate to the disarmament conference at Geneva last year.

She spoke at a dinner gathering of Chicago members of the American Association of University Women at the Chicago Woman's club. Dr. Woolley is president of the association and also president of Mount Holyoke college.

"We have handicapped the world by not being in the league of nations," asserted Dr. Woolley. She pictured how American delegates to the disarmament conference, including herself, were "roped off" while unofficially attending a session of the league of nations one day.

DIES FROM BULLET WOUND.

Frank Smith, 29 years old, 459 East 31st street, a Negro, found suffering from a bullet wound early yesterday in the street at 30th and Federal streets, died on the way to the county hospital without making a statement to police.

AIR LINES GET READY TO BRING CROWDS TO FAIR

New High Mark in Travel by Plane Predicted.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Air transportation activity will reach an all time peak in the United States this summer at Chicago airport during the Century of Progress exposition, according to Lester D. Seymour, president of American Airways. Plans for the handling of an unprecedented amount of passenger traffic at the Chicago terminal are well under way.

The air lines serving Chicago, which include the three largest systems of the nation, are planning many additional schedules to accommodate the thousands of visitors to the World's Fair that are expected to come by air, Mr. Seymour said. Reductions in passenger fares have been discussed by officials of some of the lines as a further incentive to air travel.

Organize Complete Service.

American Airways have organized a complete service for visitors to the fair, he said. The prospective fairgoer may buy tickets to the fair, may make hotel reservations, and obtain complete information of the fair activities at any of the American Airways ticket offices throughout the country.

"At the time the Century of Progress exposition opens this summer, the equipment and service of the air lines will be at a new high mark of efficiency," Mr. Seymour said. "The air lines are reëquipping themselves to offer faster services at more frequent intervals. This will be the first fair in history to which any sizable amount of attendance will travel by air.

"This is only fitting, because Chicago unquestionably is the center of the nation's system of airways, and will continue to be the center of air transport activity because of the natural flow of traffic."

Predicts Increased Speed.

Mr. Seymour also predicted that before the end of the year the cruising speeds of air transport planes would be increased by an average of thirty to forty miles an hour, to above 150 miles an hour, an improvement that marks more advance in one year than in the five preceding years.

GOVERNOR BACKS STATE DAIRYMEN IN MARKET FIGHT

Farmers of Boone County Demand Inspection.

The milk problems of the Chicago metropolitan area were affected yesterday by four developments.

Gov. Horner issued a formal statement promising support of a protective system for Illinois dairymen. The dairy farmers of Boone county organized a movement to demand inspection of their farms by the Chicago board of health. Hearing of an injunction suit brought by a Wisconsin dairy company against the board of health was begun in federal court here. Joliet milk dealers stopped deliveries of milk by locking out union drivers.

The most recent troubles of the dairy farmers center in the curtailment of dairy inspections by the board of health because of a $500,000 cut in the board's annual appropriation, and an order issued by the board limiting the approved Chicago milk area to a radius of 130 miles for milk and 250 miles for cream.

Gov. Horner's Statement.

The statement made in Springfield by Gov. Horner follows:

"I am in favor of a program of milk marketing in the Chicago area which will assure Illinois farmers every opportunity to market their milk and cream in the metropolitan area.

"I am opposed to any action by which the health department of Chicago would discriminate against Illinois dairy farmers. For these reasons I would favor an equitable marketing plan which would help the dairy farmers of Illinois to market their milk in Chicago."

The Boone county dairy farmers, meeting in Belvidere, were addressed by Don M. Geyer, secretary of the Pure Milk association, and by Edward Foley, manager of the Boone county farm bureau. The farmers unanimously agreed to demand adequate inspection of their dairies by the Chicago board of health and decided to enlist the farmers of other districts in the movement.

Wisconsin Concern Asks Writ.

The injunction suit against the board of health, in which the Amacker Milk Products company of Stanley, Wis., is seeking to restrain the board from enforcing its order limiting the approved milk territory, was begun before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The Amacker plant is 265 miles from Chicago.

The petition of the company sets forth that enforcement of the order would destroy the business of the company. The company sells its entire output of milk and cream to the Bowman Dairy company here.

Attorney William H. Dillon, representing the milk concern, attacked the order on the ground it was not published in accordance with law, and that it was issued without the formal action of the entire board of health.

Asistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman, representing the board of health, argued that the federal district court had no jurisdiction to hear the case. After considerable discussion of this point between the judge and counsel an agreement was reached whereby the order of the board of health will not be enforced until the present litigation has been decided. Judge Wilkerson then continued the hearing until Wednesday.

No Joliet Milk Deliveries.

The lockout of union milk drivers in Joliet and the stopping of deliveries came as the climax of a wage dispute between the union and the milk dealers. Residents of Joliet got their milk from grocery stores and dairy stations.

The drivers immediately formed picket lines at each of Joliet's twelve dairy plants, but no violence was reported.

The price of milk until yesterday has been 11 cents a quart delivered in Joliet. The price charged by the dairies and groceries yesterday was 6 cents a quart. The milk sold at this price was in paper containers.

Joliet Prison Rations Bread as Economy Move

Warden Frank D. Whipp of the state penitentiary at Joliet yesterday announced that as an economy measure the custom of allowing prisoners to take as much bread as they pleased from baskets in the prison dining rooms would be discontinued. Hereafter three slices of bread will be placed on each plate.

OPPOSE CHICAGO HAVING 14 SEATS IN CONGRESS

Majority of Members May Approve 12.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—A majority of the Illinois house delegation of twenty-seven today appeared emphatically opposed to proposals of reapportion of state representation to give Chicago fourteen seats in the house instead of ten.

Republican members of the delegation met in executive session in response to a request from Frank W. McClure, chairman of the Springfield congressional reapportionment committee, but announced that they were unable to agree on recommendations to be made to the state legislature. Representative Frank R. Reid of Aurora, secretary of the Republican delegation, said a committee would be appointed Tuesday to go to Springfield and present the views of the Republican members of congress.

Britten Presents Plan.

Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago, it was learned, urged the adoption of the fourteen district plan for Chicago at the meeting this morning. Downstate Republicans were said to have opposed this recommendation, however, insisting that any increase in the Chicago representation in Washington be limited to the allocation of the two Illinois seats at large to the city.

Democratic members of the delegation, according fto Speaker Henry T. Rainey, definitely are opposed to the redistricting plan, which would give Chicago four additional seats. The speaker stated, however, that he believed the majority members would agree to a reapportionment plan under which the two representatives at large would be allocated to Chicago.

Chicago Entitled to More Seats.

"No sitting member is satisfied with the proposed setup," Mr. Rainey said. "They would like to see the situation left as it is, although I believe the delegation would be willing to see the two seats at large go to Chicago. That is where they ought to go; Chicago is entited to them on the basis of increased population."

The speaker complained, at the same time, that the proposed redistricting plan would place two Republican districts within his own Democratic stronghold.

TREASURER GETS $3,023,779 MORE TAX PAYMENTS

Owners of 9,696 pieces of property yesterday paid $8,023,779.62 in 1931 taxes to the office of County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. Of this amount $998,878.22 was paid in tax warrants.

Collection of delinquent taxes amounted to $107,990.19, of which $14,835.58 was for 1928, $32,276.45 for 1929, and $60,878.16 for 1930.

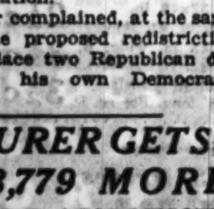
A major portion of the collection figures of yesterday represent numerous payments made by mail and with tax anticipation warrants preceding the March 15 penalty date.

The county treasurer's office will remain open all day today to receive current and delinquent tax payments.

STEAL SEWING MACHINES.

Thieves early yesterday smashed a plate glass show window of the Singer Sewing Machine company shop at 1015 West Jackson boulevard and removed two machines.

....WHAT DO YOU GET FOR Your Money?



There is the biggest question this year.

And we take it for granted that you know what you want for your money.

As to pianos, let us look at them from an angle you may not have considered.

Entirely aside from the all-important facts of the enjoyment latent in a fine piano—entirely ignoring its cultural value in the home—

Your carefully poised dollars will never again have such a condition-created opportunity to do double duty.

Here's why:

Kimball has been all through the economic stresses and recoveries of the last seventy-five years. This is not the first time we have had to fit the prices of Kimball Pianos to the times—it is the first time we have been able to offer almost two hundred cents' worth of piano for one dollar. That's provable history. Take our word for it.

Thinking, then, of this year—come to our showrooms—and make us prove to you that the particular Kimball that fits your pocketbook is the outstanding bargain in the history of the industry.

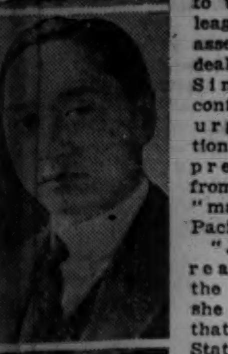
JAPAN MENACES THE LIFE OF U. S., DR. KOO WARNS

Diplomat Charges Tokio's Pledges Mean Nothing.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 18.—(AP)—Dr. Wellington Koo, principal Chinese delegate to the special league of nations assembly which dealt with the Sino-Japanese conflict today, urged international action to prevent Japan from establishing "mastery of the Pacific."



WELLINGTON KOO.

"Japan is already menacing the life of China; she will menace that of the United States," Dr. Koo, who was educated in the United States, said. Japanese "protestations and pledges" mean nothing, he said, in the light of Japan's course in Manchuria, Shanghai, and Jehol.

"There can be no prosperity unless there is a prospect of permanent peace," he said. "For China and the United States, as well as for other countries bordering on the shores of the Pacific, peace in the regions of the Pacific is essential to their economic welfare.

Charges Treaty Violation.

"Japan, in invading and occupying Chinese Manchuria and Jehol, is violating the nine-power treaty upon which depends the equilibrium of the far east and demolishing the foundation on which rests the peace structure of the Pacific.

"After seventeen months of prolonged and considered study of the Sino-Japanese dispute, the special assembly of the league of nations has adopted unanimously a report condemning Japan as the aggressor and invader.

"Japan's complete disregard of her treaty obligations to the United States and the league member states, her continued defiance of the international verdict of 'guilty' and her studied indifference to world opinion, are making it abundantly clear that she proposes to stop at nothing in the prosecution of her ultra-nationalistic policy. Japan is already menacing the life of China; she will meance that of the United States.

Flounts Authority of League.

"She flouts the authority of the league of nations—an authority she would have accepted in virtue of her membership. She ignores the just and fair sentiments of the American people as expressed by their public leaders, such as Col. Stimson, Senator Borah and President Roosevelt. Should she be left alone to consolidate her immense geographical and material gains from the possession and exploitation of Manchuria and Jehol, it is extremely unlikely that she would refrain from proceeding to establish her mastery of the Pacific.

"The danger is growing daily. In the interests of the new order of international life and for the peace and security of the Pacific nations, this danger must be arrested. And it cannot be arrested except by common and united international action.

"China is bearing the brunt of the Japanese onslaught on world peace. For seventeen months, she has been sacrificing tens of thousands of lives, hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property, whole cities and provinces.

"China Entitled to Support."

"This sacrifice is made in order to shield the new structure for peace and security from ignominious demolition, as well as to protect Chinese territory against foreign invasion. In this great defensive 'war,' China is entitled to the moral, diplomatic and economic support of all those powers whose signatures are to be found in the Washington treaties, the covenant of the league of nations, and the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact.

"Thus far, Japan has not given the slightest indication that she will change her aggressive continental policy out of respect for the conscience of mankind as well as her own solemn obligations. Has not the time arrived for the United States and other member states of the league to consider other means? Let the world not be deceived for a moment by fresh Japanese protestations and pledges. She has not yet redeemed any of those already given."

"The United States of America being the principal country, apart from China, that depends upon tranquillity in the Pacific area and the equilibrium established by the Washington treaties for security, will, I am confident, in collaboration with the principal member states of the league of nations, take effective steps to uphold all the international instruments of peace in order to save the world from relapsing into barbaric militarism and pave the way for the restoration of prosperity in a world assured of peace."

KILLS CHILDREN AND HIMSELF ON GRAVE OF WIFE

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—[Special.]—Gilbert Friend, 28 year old railway mail clerk of Plant City, Fla., is believed to have murdered his three young children and then committed suicide while grieving over the death of his wife. The bodies of Friend and the children were found on his wife's grave today.

The bodies of the children were close together and were covered with a blanket. Each had been shot through the head. They are Robert, 8; Helen, 6, and Kenneth, 7 months. Friend's body was a short distance away, a revolver at his side. The tragedy is believed to have occurred about midnight.

Mrs. Friend, a former Philadelphia girl, died in January in their Florida home. Her body was brought here for burial. Friend was morose after his wife's death and had been closely watched by relatives. However, of late he seemed more cheerful and the vigilance was relaxed.

Friend left several notes. One of them gave the "correct" family history and the other said: "I must go to join her whom we love so greatly."

Dixie Judge Orders Test in Barring Negro from School

Durham, N. C., March 18.—(AP)—Judge M. V. Harnhill today ordered Thomas J. Wilson Jr., registrar of the University of North Carolina, to show cause before him in Durham, March 24, why a writ of mandamus should not be issued compelling him to admit Thomas R. Hocutt, Durham Negro, to the university's school of pharmacy. The case is viewed as a test to decide the university's legal right to bar Negroes from matriculation. Hocutt applied for admittance and was turned down by Wilson in his official capacity as registrar and dean of administration. Hocutt, backed by a group of Durham Negroes, then took the case to court.

Farley Appoints Two Illinois Postmasters

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[U. P.]—Postmaster General Farley today named the following acting postmasters: Bloomington, Ill., Thomas Salmon; Eureka, Ill., Harold Tomb.

COURTNEY RAIDS CICERO GAMBLING DENS; ARREST 400

Shortly before 7 o'clock last night fifteen squads from the office of State's Attorney Courtney swept into Cicero and raided sixteen alleged gambling houses.

The keepers and nearly 400 patrons were arrested, and taken to the Cicero police station. They were booked on various gambling charges, and ordered to appear in court tomorrow before Magistrate Henry Sandusky.

The raids were led by Capt. Dan Gilbert, chief investigator for Courtney, and Lieut. Frank Johnson. The places raided were 4738 22d street, 2142 South Cicero avenue, 4742 22d street, 2316 South Cicero avenue, 4636 22d street, 6042 22d street, 2313 South Cicero avenue, 6003 Roosevelt road, 2502 South 52d avenue, 5531 22d street, 5937 Roosevelt road, 6132 22d street, 6136 22d street, 2101 South Cicero avenue, 5743 22d street, and 5914 22d street.

IDENTIFY DROWNED GIRL'S BODY.

Through a photograph sent by Chicago police to Julia Potar of Hartford, Conn., the body of a young woman, taken from the lake here on March 8, was yesterday identified by Miss Potarz as that of her sister, Mary, who had been missing since March 4.

JAPAN'S LEAGUE DELEGATE MAY SEE ROOSEVELT

Matsuoka Due in Capital Latter Part of Week.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate at Geneva prior to Japan's split with the league of nations over Manchuria, will be received this coming week by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull if such a conference is requested by the Japanese embassy.

While no arrangements for meetings between the Japanese diplomat and the President have been arranged as yet, administration officials said they anticipated the Japanese embassy would ask for a conference for Matsuoka. The Japanese delegate left London Thursday for New York and is expected in the capital the latter part of next week.

Criticized U. S. Policy.

The meeting of the President and Japan's spokesman at the league during the flareup over Japan's activities in Manchuria is certain to attract worldwide interest in view of the fact that on several occasions Matsuoka has sharply criticized the United States for its action in keeping the fleet concentrated in the Pacific. Matsuoka has stated publicly that he thought this country should act at once to return the scouting fleet to Atlantic waters.

Washington officials said today that there was no immediate intention to break up the fleet. The plan, it was said, is to keep all modern warships in the Pacific, where they will be available in event of an emergency. The announced reason for keeping the fleet in the Pacific is that of economy.

Minor Victory for Diplomat.

The disclosure in state department circles that the Japanese delegate was to be received by the Roosevelt administration represented a minor victory for the little diplomat. Several weeks ago Matsuoka inaugurated a campaign to win an invitation from the American government to stop over at Washington on his way home from Geneva. All these indirect bids for an American invitation to visit were received coldly.

Undeterred by the lack of a response from Washington, Matsuoka went ahead with his plans to go home via this country. The result is that the Roosevelt administration decided it would be good policy to receive him if an interview was requested. Whether the President and the Japanese delegate will take up Japanese-American relations exhaustively could not be foretold today. Indications were, however, that President Roosevelt would take advantage of the opportunity to indoctrinate his oriental visitor with American far eastern policy.

SILLY BIRD
Isn't He?

THIS old bird buries his head in the sand and then thinks nobody can see him. Silly, isn't he? And yet, let's be sure we haven't any silly notions ourselves before we condemn him.

Last week, for instance, a lady came into one of our A & P stores and refused to buy one of our best brands of food because, if you please, it cost so little! "I prefer expensive food," she told us. Now we're perfectly sure that she had no idea that she was harboring the silliest of silly notions—the notion that high quality and high price must go together.

Until we met this lady, we didn't believe that there were still women in existence who thought good food need be expensive. It needn't be. And a few trips to an A & P store soon show even the most old-fashioned shopper how true this is.

CHINA OPENS BIG COUNTERATTACK; BATTLE RAGES ON

Japan Claims 3,000 Slain in Jehol Campaign.

HSIFENGKOW, China, March 18.—[U.P.]—Japanese positions were strafed by fire of Chinese troops late today in a vigorous attack near Fanchiakow.

Fierce fighting was reported in the sector as Maj. Gen. Hattori's Japanese infantry responded with a counter attack. The battle continued despite the lowering shades of dusk.

The Chinese launched the offensive after suffering a serious reverse at Chiehlingkow, a gateway of the Great Wall. Lieut. Gen. Matsuzaki's Japanese troops captured this stronghold after a brisk engagement, marked by hand to hand fighting. The Chinese defenders were routed southward.

Chinese Losses Put at 3,000.

Chinese losses for the entire Jehol campaign were reported by Japanese sources today at 3,000 killed and 6,000 wounded.

Sporadic activity of Chinese troops was reported in Jehol. The Japanese army headquarters announced that "considerable remnants" of Gen. Chang Hsueh-liang's Chinese defense forces were active near Lingyuan and Chienpin. They were offering but feeble resistance to Japanese troops, the announcement said.

The headquarters said the Japanese army expected to annihilate the stragglers before many days. A unit of Gen. Tang Fu-ting's Chinese defenders was dispersed near Chaoyang after a brief skirmish early this week. Gen. Chao Kuo-tseng, commander of the former Chinese Chienpin cavalry brigade, proposed to surrender, it was claimed.

200 "Bandits" Slain.

MUKDEN, March 18.—[U.P.]—Two hundred alleged communist bandits were killed Monday by the Japanese garrison in the Hailung district, which invaded a stronghold where 600 bandits were encamped, according to reports received here today.

The stronghold was east of Kuangchengtze. Survivors of the battle were driven back, escaping between Kaiyuan and Shanchentze toward Jehol province, the reports said.

The communist band was said to have included ten Russians and a dozen Czechoslovakian women.

Anti-Japanese Terrorism Grows.

PEIPING, March 18.—(AP)—A sharp outbreak of terrorism by Chinese against countrymen suspected of maintaining commercial relations with Japanese firms was reported today from Hankow, important treaty port of Hupeh province.

Anti-Japanese societies in that city and at Wuchang, also in Hupeh, the United States consulate at Hankow informed the legation here, murdered one and kidnaped two Chinese merchants who were accused of handling Japanese goods.

Approve Quitting the League.

TOKIO, March 18.—[U. P.]—The special committee of the privy council unanimously voted today to approve Japan's withdrawal from the league of nations. The committee decided to draft a recommendation which it will submit to a plenary session of the council on March 25 or 27. Acceptance by the council was considered assured.

PERSIAN LEADER SENT TO PRISON AS EMBEZZLER

TEHERAN, Persia, March 18.—(AP)—Abdul Hussein Khan Teymurtash, once the most powerful man in Persia next to the shah, was sentenced today to three years' imprisonment and a heavy fine for embezzlement, swindling and extortion.

He was dismissed from the post of court minister last Christmas eve. He had held the position since the beginning of the reign of the present shah. It was charged that he had interfered with the foreign exchange transactions of the National Bank of Persia, which showed a heavy deficit. Creditors filed a huge total of claims against him.

It is understood that the ministers are petitioning the shah to pardon him because of his past services to Persia.

Not long ago Abdul Khan Diba, close friend of Teymurtash and former controller of the shah's household, was sentenced to ten months in prison on a charge of bribery.

COLLECT HALF MILLION TO SUE ON BOGUS CLAIM

Boston, Mass., March 18.—(AP)—The Boston Post says almost $500,000 has been collected in Massachusetts, most of it in Greater Boston, by agents who represented that they had a claim of 200 million dollars against the United States government.

The Post says the money was solicited as "expenses" to fight for recovery of $84,000,000 and interest, the principal of which was alleged to have been deposited with the treasury by former United States Senator Charles Durkee of Wisconsin to guarantee completion of the Union Pacific railroad.

The article sets forth that a detective is investigating the affair for District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county. The treasury is said to have issued a warning in 1914 that United States records showed that no such bonds as described were deposited and that certain bonds required under a congressional resolution were returned when the road was completed.

POSSE RESCUERS' DEBATERS TIED UP IN SNOW DRIFT

Denver, Colo., March 18.—[U. P.]—Stalled all night in a snowdrift while a mountain blizzard raged, a Catholic priest and five companions fought their way to safety with the aid of rescuers today.

The party was returning to Denver from Idaho Springs when the automobile of the priest, the Rev. C. M. Johnson, assistant pastor of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, was trapped by the storm.

His companions were Sisters Ethelbert and Finian of the faculty of Cathedral High school and the school's debating team, Josephine Fitzsimmons, Ida Donato, and Jack Callahan.

After a debate with the team of Idaho Springs High school the party started to Denver by way of Echo Lake and Chicago Creek instead of by the direct route. Near the summit of Echo Lake road snowdrifts stalled the machine.

Searchers started out at midnight, but it was not until 10 a. m. today that a posse headed by Sheriff E. B. Burns of Georgetown found the stalled auto. The two nuns and the two girls were in the car.

PORTUGAL VOTES TODAY ON ITS NEW BASIC LAW

LISBON, Portugal, March 18.—(AP)—A national plebiscite to determine whether Portugal will accept the projected new constitution will be held tomorrow. It will be the first vote of the people in seven years.

The new constitution provides for the election of a president by the people instead of by parliament, as heretofore. All members of the assembly would be elected by direct suffrage. The government would be responsible to the prime minister and the prime minister responsible to the president, with only the president having power to dismiss the ministry.

Enemies of the proposed constitution, who threaten to refrain from voting, have been outwitted by a decree announcing that all those on the electoral roll who abstain from voting will be counted as approving the constitution. The result will be announced on April 9.

RICH FURNISHINGS IN BAIN BANKER'S HOME AUCTIONED

Some Ex-Depositors Admire the Gold Ceiling.

More than 1,200 persons crowded the home of Frank A. Mulholland at 9924 Longwood drive yesterday to attend an auction of household effects.

Mulholland, formerly a real estate broker, was a director in one of the closed Bain banks and has been indicted with John Bain and three of the latter's relatives for conspiracy. The residence, an eleven room structure with a gold ceiled breakfast room, was much admired by the crowd, many of whom were losers in the crash of the Bain institutions.

Bidding Is Spirited.

The auction continued for seven hours. So great was the crush that the auctioneers made no attempt to display the pieces of furniture offered, contenting themselves with reading descriptions from a catalog. The bidding was spirited. A $4,100 walnut grand piano was sold for $950 and walnut chairs and love seats brought $50 to $56.

The real estate, on which a value of $141,000 had been set, was also offered at auction, but there were no bids for it. The auctioneers pleaded for a $35,000 offer, but failed to get it. It was explained that the property is subject to a $15,000 mortgage, due in 1936, and $4,600 in delinquent taxes.

Rumors circulated among the attendants that the sale was designed to raise funds for Mulholland's defense. At the time the Chicago Lawn State bank, of which he was a director, was closed, he owed the institution a total of $358,461. This was the largest loan made by the bank to any individual except John Bain.

Refuses to See Visitors.

During the sale and for several hours preceding it Mulholland was locked in a room on the second floor, refusing to see any visitors. It was said he had not authorized the sale. The authorization was given by Mrs. Mary Bray, his sister-in-law, in whose name the real estate and the furnishings were officially recorded.

Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer, who will prosecute Mulholland, John Bain, the latter's sons and son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, for conspiracy, said that Mrs. Bray had been the official owner of the home for several years and that the sale could not be construed as an attempt to evade a transfer of the property to the receiver o fthe closed bank.

The crowd at the auction trampled down shrubs in the yard and damaged some of the evergreen trees that had been set out by Mulholland in his more prosperous days.

U. S. DEMANDS MITCHELL CASE BANK RECORDS

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—United States Attorney George Z. Medalie returned from Washington today with orders from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings to continue his investigation into the failure of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, to file an income tax for 1929.

It also was learned that the National City bank has been served with a subpœna duces tecum for records bearing on Mr. Mitchell's affairs. These are to be at the United States attorney's office Monday morning. The subpœna was served while Mr. Medalie and his chief assistant, Thomas E. Dewey, were still conferring with Mr. Cummings in Washington.

The principal transaction in which Mr. Medalie is interested was the sale by Mr. Mitchell of 18,000 shares of National City bank stock to his wife at a $2,000,000 loss.

By that, according to Mr. Mitchell's testimony before the senate banking committee, he avoided paying an income tax for 1929. It is estimated that this tax would have amounted to more than $400,000.

TORNADO HITS ARKANSAS TOWN.

CHURCHILL LEADS FIGHT AGAINST AWARD TO INDIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—A conservative revolt over the government's white paper on the future government of India was threatened today by the Evening News, owned by Lord Rothermere. It indicated that a wider Conservative following for the opposition led by Winston Churchill is certain.

"There will be implacable resistance in the house of commons to the proposals as they stand," the newspaper said. "Every effort will be made by a campaign of meetings in the country to make it clear that the application of the government's policy as now set forth means the beginning of the end of British control and influence in India."

Most of the attack is directed at the proposal to fix rights of retirement to British members of the Indian civil service. It is claimed that it is an abrogation of parliamentary rights.

Walsh Urges Return to Pre-War Moral Principles

Causes of the depression are to be found in the abandonment of social, religious, and financial morals in this country, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts declared yesterday. He spoke before a luncheon meeting of the Holy Cross-Fordham-Boston College club of Chicago at the World's Fair administration building. Senator Walsh declared that the country's salvation lies in a return to the moral principles practiced before the war.

Frankfort, Ill., Merchant Found Guilty of Arson

Benton, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—A jury in Circuit court here found Harry M. Zwick, West Frankfort merchant, guilty of conspiring to burn his store, July 26, 1931. The fire caused $100,0000 loss. Louis Boltzman, St. Louis, testified Zwick paid him $700 to burn the store.

Doctor Offers to Accept Farm Products on Bills

Pana, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Dr. William F. Hager, prominent Pana physician here offered to settle all accounts of 14 years standing on his books for 50 per cent and accept live stock, grain and farm products in payment.

MILK MAN ROBBED OF $12.

Two armed men yesterday halted a delivery wagon of the Wieland Dairy company at Kolmar and Diversey avenues and compelled the driver, Charles Pugh, 5415 Roscoe street, to surrender $12. They escaped in an automobile.

NO HOPE OF PARDON FOR SCHOOL YOUTH IN DEBTOR'S CELL

There can be no pardon for William Weber, 15 year old sophomore of Fenwick High school who is in jail because neither he nor his father can pay $2,500 judgment resulting from an automobile accident. This was the consensus of legal authorities yesterday.

It was explained that Gov. Horner has the power to pardon in criminal cases alone and the youth was imprisoned through a civil action. The governor has no more power to pardon Weber than he has to reduce the amount of damages allowed in a civil suit, one authority declared.

Imprisonment of Weber for failure to pay the judgment was made possible through the insertion of a malice count in the action brought against him. As long as $3.50 a week board is paid in advance by the injured party Weber can be kept in jail. His only hope of release before the six months' sentence is served is that the injured party will relent or fail to make the payment. At the end of six months he can apply for release under the pauper's act.

Maj. Gen. Harry G. Bishop Recovers from Heart Attack

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Harry G. Bishop, chief of field artillery of the army, who has been confined to Walter Reed hospital here for some time, has fully recovered and was discharged from treatment. He was several weeks convalescing from a heart attack.

3 GUNMEN GET $300 IN HOLDUP OF A HOSPITAL

Three men who held up the Edgewater hospital at 5700 North Ashland avenue yesterday escaped with the contents of the cash register and a wall safe totaling $300.

The robbers, all armed, covered Miss Alice McLean, cashier; Miss Mayme Quinlan, telephone operator; and Louise Kalkman, superintendent of nurses, with their pistols while they looted the cash register in the first floor office. Then they tried to force the switchboard operator to open a safe holding patients' valuables, but turned to an open wall safe when she told them she didn't know the combination.

Officials of the hospital said the cash register contained about $100 and that there was about $200 in the wall safe. Miss McLean, the cashier, and a physician, summoned from the second floor as the robbers fled, tried to follow them in an automobile without success.

Taxpayers of Bloomington Demand City Cut Salaries

Bloomington, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—The Taxpayers Protective league of McLean county represented by Frank H. Funk, president of the state organization bearing that title, today demanded that municipal salaries and educational costs for the city of Bloomington be reduced. The slashes in salaries of city officials asked by the group were as follows: Mayor, from $3,240 to $2,500; superintendent of streets, from $2,400 to $1,800; city engineer, from $2,700 to $2,000; and aldermen from $9 per regular meeting to $5 per regular meeting.

CITY STATE BANK CASE TRIAL PUT OFF 49TH TIME

Another effort to continue indefinitely the trial of Attorney Seymour Stedman, one time Socialist candidate for mayor, and seven other defendants in the City State bank case failed yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court. This was the forty-ninth appearance of the defendants in court since the indictment was returned more than two years ago.

Attorney Louis Greenberg appeared yesterday and said that he had just been retained by some of the defendants and that he would like to have time to argue a motion to quash the indictment. The same motion has been argued three times before by other lawyers. Judge Prystalski said that he did not object to such an argument, but it must be made then and there. It was, and the motion was overruled.

The attorney asked that a ruling be held in abeyance until June, when he said that the Supreme court is scheduled to render an opinion in another case wherein the same legal points are raised. This request was refused. The case will go to trial Tuesday before some judge yet to be named, the chief justice announced.

Ex-President Leaves from Elmhurst.

His movements closely guarded, former President Herbert Hoover, who had been in Chicago since Friday, boarded a train at Elmhurst last night, en route to his home in Palo Alto, Cal. His party included his son, Alan Hoover; his secretary, Lawrence Richey; former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills; Mrs. Mills, and Mrs. John Pratt.

The ex-President was expected to leave on the Chicago and North Western railroad at 9:35. At the station, inquirers were informed that Mr. Hoover and his party already were on the train. A few miles out, it was learned they were not yet aboard. Subsequently, a member of the train crew disclosed that the party would entrain at Elmhurst, where a special flag stop had been arranged.

Detectives on Hand.

Between six and eight detectives and two railroad officials were on hand to guard the entrainment.

Mr. Mills arrived in Chicago over the Pennsylvania line at 5:30 last evening. At the time he said he "understood" that Mr. Hoover would leave at 9:35 and admitted he would be on the same train with his former chief. It was said that the former President might return east within two weeks.

Visits World's Fair Grounds.

While in Chicago, Mr. Hoover was the guest of A. W. Shaw, a publisher, of 50 Locust road, Winnetka, a close friend. The visit was described by Secretary Richey as "just a break in the journey to Palo Alto." There was no political or other significance, he added. Mr. Hoover saw a bit of Chicago yesterday. He visited the Century of Progress grounds with Gen. Charles G. Dawes and others. Later, it was reported, he was a dinner guest of Alexander Legge, former head of the Hoover farm board.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

PUBLIC WORKS AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

Views of Prime Minister MacDonald on state-assisted unemployment relief will interest the American public and their government now canvassing plans to meet the same gigantic problem. In a letter to a local council Mr. MacDonald, explaining why this system has been discontinued, says, through a deputy: "Experience has shown that the amount of employment provided by the vast expenditure on these schemes has been very small in comparison with the total volume of unemployment, and that this policy is completely unequal to the task of dealing with unemployment on a large scale."

In support of this conclusion it is pointed out that "during the period in office of the last government, between June, 1929, and August, 1931, when this policy was being most vigorously pressed forward, the number of persons registered as unemployed in Great Britain increased from about 1,100,000 to over 2,700,000, despite the putting in hand of relief works of an estimated value of nearly £192,000,000. The greatest number of persons directly employed on works falling under the main classes of relief works (comprising practically the whole) at any time was some 114,000 at June, 1931. At approximately the same date the number of persons registered as unemployed was over 2,600,000."

Confronting this situation, with the persistence of the depression and the financial crisis of 1931, the present British government, holding that the heavy unemployment in Great Britain had its roots in world conditions, felt that there could be no longer any justification, "especially in view of its now evident ineffectiveness, for continuing the policy of relief works, which, by reason of the burdens it imposes on the finances of the state and local authorities—and so ultimately on industrial enterprises and activity—could only serve to reduce the competitive power of British industry and to delay its ultimate recovery. Instead, the government has directed its policy towards a revival of ordinary industrial activity by creating the conditions under which industry can thrive."

The alternative chosen, for which Mr. MacDonald claims a success his critics will doubtless deny or disparage, need only be summarized for illustration of the measures adopted: "The conversion operations successfully carried through last summer have reduced the price of money to industry and will lead to a considerable reduction in the sums required to provide for the service of the national debt, while the policy of economy in national and local expenditure must also serve, now or ultimately, to reduce the burdens of national and local taxation. In addition, on the one hand a comprehensive and adjustable system of import duties has been introduced; on the other, agreement was reached at Ottawa on the lowering of tariff barriers within the empire. Negotiations directed towards the same end have been initiated with certain foreign countries."

Referring to the coöperation of the government with the National Council of Social Service and voluntary bodies throughout the country for the provision of occupation and recreation, Mr. MacDonald says in conclusion:

"This, however, is only one side of the government's policy, and is directed towards alleviating the results of unemployment rather than the absorption of the unemployed into work. It is confident, however, that the other side of its policy, which is directed towards the revival of the industrial prosperity of the country, will ultimately do far more to provide employment than could be done by any policy of relief works, and that the best or only hope of ultimate recovery lies in the steady pursuance of this policy."

In view of the many proposals for huge expenditures on public works, with the object of creating employment, British experience would seem to be worth heeding.

DEUS EX MACHINA.

Probably nine times out of ten, selecting an arbitrary percentage, if a man is seen looking at a concrete mixer with the obvious view of putting it to work it would be well at once to put him under restraint and avoid the subsequent intervention of the receiver. The overworked concrete mixer, into which more illusion than anything else was poured, had a tremendous part in loading down the public debt and cracking the structure of private enterprise. The consequences are represented not only in tax bills which can't be paid but in busted private enterprises which never should have been undertaken. The concrete mixer, one of the symbols, it is true, of civilization, can turn into a Moloch if unwary man allows his ambitions to run outside of possibilities of private profit or of public resources.

There is a doctrine of public works which regards these enterprises as the proper means of salvation for a country when at low tide private enterprise employment, but the doctrine has not satisfactorily explained how it proposes to allow the essential element of national recovery, private enterprise, to recover and do its work if the resources it needs are being sluiced constantly away by the taxation required to meet the public pay rolls and pay for the material. One can see a Roman emperor, say Caracalla, absorbing the wealth of conquered provinces in his luxurious baths and in monumental works to his own glory, but one cannot see the welfare of independent citizens being permanently or securely maintained by a diversion of private resources from private enterprise to public works.

History presents the grandeur of public works as ruins, the sole surviving evidences of civilizations which expended and exhausted their vitality in building what remains magnificent in decay to prove the folly of the prideful autocrat and the misfortunes of subjects who could not protect themselves. The concrete mixer, meaning roads, bridges, edifices, and stupendous monuments, means both progress and civilization and also the possibility of ruin. It is a great machine, but the demon's in it as well as the deity. Many a public body has found it mixing the tombstone of public credit and many a private individual has found himself looking at it as the maw into which his profits had disappeared.

THE PROSECUTOR AS LAWMAKER.

Of the sixteen new members of the United States senate six first came to prominence as county prosecutors. Another had been a United States district attorney and still another a city prosecutor. That is to say, half of the new members rose to fame and such fortune as they have obtained largely by jury pleading intended to bring about convictions.

The task of discovering how many of the members of recent senates were prosecutors in their formative years may be left to some student of political science who has the time for it, but obviously the number is immensely disproportionate. If only one member of the senate in the last ten years had been a state's attorney there would still be far more ex-state's attorneys in the senate than their numbers in the population could justify. Of the members of the last senate, Norris served three terms as a prosecutor in Nebraska. Johnson was a special prosecutor in San Francisco. Pat Harrison was a prosecutor. So were Brookhart and Dickinson of Iowa and Glenn of Illinois. Of the last four senators who have represented Illinois, three of them, Deneen, Glenn, and Dieterich, have been county prosecutors.

A great deal of attention has been paid to the fact that recent congresses have contained a disproportionate number of lawyers, but that is not a phenomenon of recent years. It has been true, in greater or less degree, almost from the birth of the republic. And the fact is easily explicable. After all, lawmaking is a business for which lawyers have special training and, by presumption at least, special aptitude. Men who desire to go into public life commonly do so by studying law. The business of lawmaking, however, is not a business for which ex-prosecutors are peculiarly fitted as distinguished from other lawyers. Rather on the contrary.

How, then, has the United States senate come to resemble a club of ex-prosecutors? The answer is to be found, in part at least, in the fact that jury pleading is, if not the only school, then certainly the best school of the demagogue which this country knows, and the prosecuting attorney has the opportunity to take all the degrees offered. Day in and day out, whenever court is in session, he must study the effects of various emotional and oratorical tricks on a dozen voters in the jury box and a lot more in the courtroom. If he is of average intelligence and possessed of at least rudimentary talents in histrionics and demagoguery he is a made man when his term is concluded. He knows the tricks. He can make 'em laugh and cry. He can make them think he is a fine fellow, whole-hearted and sincere. And, more especially, he is no longer ashamed to practice his art. It has become second nature with him. That is not to say, of course, that every ex-prosecutor in the senate or out of it is a charlatan, but it is to say that the percentage of charlatans among ex-prosecutors must, by the very nature of their training, be unusually high.

ALSO JUST AROUND THE CORNER.

About this time of year the meadow lark usually arrives in these parts. To say he hasn't already would risk the incidents of one observation against the incidents of another. The first bluebird is first to a few before he is first to many. The meadow lark's is a distinctive advent of spring for several reasons; he sings from the field, his note is distinguishably fresh to the scene and he is a fairly persistent singer. Much too often he times his arrival with, or a day or two in advance of, a heavy spring fall of snow.

A comparison of records might fail to show that migration is lagging behind this year. Again this might depend upon the region observed and the luck of the observer. The first ripples of the oncoming wave may be fugitive or illusive. There is a flash against a thicket or a song from a tree top. A great flock of grackles or blackbirds descending upon a feeding ground or the sudden drop of a smaller flock of rose-breasted grosbeaks is a show, a spectacle, but much of the early advent is shier and is found by searching for it. Generally nothing is lost by a backward spring. This region fairly devastated parts of the south by passing on a bitter tail swipe of the subzero temperatures it itself received from farther north, when the azaleas and japonicas had been betrayed by a warm January to open too early into full bloom. The ruin to the beauty of such places as Mobile was tragic.

ST. LOUIS AND CHICAGO.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S cabin cruiser, Sea King, which pulled up at the wharf the other day, brought the first passengers and freight down the Chicago-St. Louis link in the great lakes-to-the-gulf waterway. At the same time a two barge tow of the Illinois River Navigation company, organized in St. Louis, started north with the first upstream shipment of goods. It would be a bit premature to refer to these movements as the inauguration of regular service on the Illinois river. The great number of bridges in the Chicago area are still a hindrance to its general use. However, these first trips over the recently completed course do presage the arrival of the day when such service will be part and parcel of the middle west's transportation facilities. Illinois has spent $20,000,000 on the waterway and the federal government more than $7,000,000. A commercial water route is now a fact which must be counted henceforth in consideration of freight transportation between the two great inland centers of population, Chicago and St. Louis. We are now closer together in trade than before, and middle western producers and consumers are the better off for it.

BACK-TO-THE-LAND?

BY WILLIAM E. DODD.

[Professor of American History, University of Chicago.]

I.

Nearly four years have passed and eminent public men still think that we are suffering from a "business cycle," which but proves the insufficiency of an educational-political system that puts men into high office without any appreciable knowledge of their country's past or the world's present status. The founders of the United States preached for a generation that any privileged group long in power would ruin any country. Any one of the first six Presidents of the United States knew more of the life and history of the world than all their successors, but one or two, to this sad day. Nor would it be a safe guess to venture that there are ten men in either house of congress better equipped than the retiring President for high public functions. If public men are neither educated nor able to reason closely, what shall we say of the eminent business chiefs who allowed the radio-electric group in New York or the Insull group in Chicago to "gyp" themselves and their clients in the unprecedented fashion of the last few years? Where so many of the great have stumbled, it may not be wholly egotistical for a mere teacher to try to walk.

II.

Is there a way to escape the increasing evils of unemployment? To answer this question one needs to review for a moment the elements of the economic picture which have passed for good and all, namely, free lands and a million immigrants a year. These two factors, ill understood by the beneficiaries of the passing system, were basic to the unprecedented success of the financio-industrial system, described in the first story. It was free land that enabled the unemployed of preceding cycles to find a means of recovery without begging bread and losing their characters. In 1873-'75 and again in 1893-'97 the displaced workers begged, fished, and hunted their ways to the wilds and there started again. During the same eras millions of displaced workers in Europe brought their savings to the United States and half of them joined their American kindred in the wilds; the other half settled in the cities and assisted to start the wheels of industry at low wages. All these assisted the restoration so much desired. But free lands ceased to exist after 1900.

Two other factors operated to hasten recoveries and to deceive Americans into believing themselves the favored people of the earth. One of these was the protective tariff designed to screen American industry from foreign competition and to build the vast industrial belt with its cities and railways and air mails. The system was governmental intervention in business not opposed by business leaders. The other factor was the application of machinery to agriculture. The tariff worked in such a way as to raise the price of industrial goods to farmers and to lift the standard of living in the cities: more apparent than real. At the same time it slowly robbed the farmer of his European and Latin-American market. But the constant increase of machine work in agriculture enabled farmers to survive under hostile tariffs and ship the bulk of their goods into organized urban markets at prices little above the cost of production except in war time. As yet they were not peasants with their hats in hand to every urban gentleman that passed.

In 1921 when the world was burdened with some two hundred billions of debts, when free lands no longer existed in the United States, and when immigration had ceased, "statesmen" in Washington enacted one more high tariff and launched upon a scheme of super-salesmanship and the sharing of stocks among their humblest workers. Although the farm situation ought to have made men wise, the greatest era of speculation ever known was pressed from New York and Chicago upon the country. But the tariff defeated the payment of European debts, private and public, and the absence of hordes of immigrants weakened the city markets for farmers; and the rural side of American life continued to decline. In 1929 industry collapsed as agriculture had done eight years before. In 1930 still another tariff was enacted on the unconscious assumption that the old conditions still prevailed in western civilization; and the collapse of 1929 became a revolution. The great of the country looked on with amazement and, struggling in vain to apply the old methods, jumped out of the windows of their own skyscrapers—tragic confession of impotence.

III.

With free lands gone, immigrants no more, tariffs failing, and city markets for farm products collapsed or "rigged," it becomes necessary to cast about for a possible escape, lest our cities prove burdens upon their owners and the unemployed eat us into bankruptcy. There is one way; it is not a popular way. Let every unemployed family in all the cities be aided to some portion of the hundreds of thousands of square miles of lands in the south and west, lands that may be bought for a few dollars per acre. If statesmen could be found and then be brought together—governors, experts, and the President—a common method might be worked out. Instead of federal aid to states and cities already near bankrupt for the purpose of merely feeding the destitute, let means equal to a year's support be granted to every family with self-respect enough to go to the land. There the state and the county concerned might supply ten acres of land with forest and water nearby. A house of two rooms, a garden, a horse, and plow might be arranged on long term credit. The family might then cease to be a charge; in two years there would be a small surplus and the surplus would start demands for industrial goods. That was the old way; it would be the new, if somewhat difficult, way. It would restore self-respect, give the country innumerable small farmers simply supporting themselves; but in supporting themselves they would also buy again the products of industry and give employment to the unemployed left in the cities.

Mr. Alexander Legge objects to this kind of relief on the ground that it would add to the unsalable output of the present farm population. For two years it would add little and then its surplus would start as much demand in the cities for foodstuffs as it canceled in the country; but the public would be relieved of the burden of feeding that many million dependents. That is the first consideration anyway. But in addition to returning millions to the land the governments, national and state, must assist farmers everywhere into such close organization as shall enable men to limit and regulate farm output and set rational prices in cities for farm products. Moreover, there must be some sort of activities set up in those regions where money is now almost wholly wanting in order to avoid still greater numbers of unemployed. The Muscle Shoals venture might engage many people; it might yield the needful electric services to a wide area at low cost and decentralize the expensive system which the Insulls have fitted upon the life of the country. In the end the improvement might easily repay its cost. But nothing of the sort ought to be administered by politicians; the day of politicians, such as have dominated and ruined Chicago, is passing.

Back-to-the-land would weaken the great cities, but in a little while it would tend to stabilize them. It would assist in economic recovery and slowly the countrysides would look more attractive to men who now dread the sight of a farm or a field. It is no hasty remedy; but it would surely be more hasty than the endless loaning of public money. In the next story we may consider briefly one means of lowering the cost of government and so of reducing the unprecedented tax burdens of cities and states.

CARROTS AND VITAMIN A.

THERE is a folk belief that eating carrots will improve the complexion. In arriving at this our ancestors got the thing hind end to. If a person will eat enough carrots, will stick to the diet long enough, and will consume nothing but the yellow kind, in course of time he will become as yellow as a pumpkin.

If he goes to his doctor to find out what is wrong and fails to tell his counselor that he is a carrot eater, and one who has worked overtime at the job, he may get a diagnosis of yellow fever, yellow jaundice, gallstones, infected gall bladder, chronic malaria, cancer of the liver, pernicious anemia, or some other yellowing disease. He may even be accused of associating with rats and of having borrowed a jaundice-causing microbe from his associates.

The yellowing caused by a carrot diet is harmless enough, so far as life and even health is concerned, but that is a mighty poor recompense for a woman who wants to wear a low necked dress and who yearns for a pink complexion. In some ways it was too bad that we found out what eating carrots could do and became afraid of them at just this particular time. Of course, we should have suspected this a long time ago, for have we not known a long time that if the cows ate carrots, pumpkins, and other pigmented food they gave rich looking milk, the butter from which needed no artificial coloring? But though we should have known we did not, and here the facts come bursting forth just as we learn that to be healthy we must eat foods rich in vitamin A and, of these, the best is carrots.

The teaching now is that vitamin A is much the most potent of all in resisting infections. Children who get enough of it seldom have measles, whooping cough, and the like, and they grow according to schedule. Older persons who eat their daily ration of carrots escape pneumonia.

Furthermore, the best carrots for the purpose are the golden yellow kind. One laboratory reports that there is twelve times as much vitamin A in garden varieties of tender yellow carrots as there is in the tougher, whiter varieties that grow in the fields.

Fortunately for us, the carrot is not the only source of this valuable food ingredient. It is found in spinach, tomatoes, and probably in all the colored vegetables and fruits. It is found in all dairy products—in eggs, in fish liver oils, and perhaps in many other foods. The laboratory workers know just about what is the chemical constitution of this vitamin. And they may be able before long to make it in factories. They hope what they make will equal nature's product in the kick peculiar to the substance.

EATING IN THE WINTER.

J. B. writes:

1. Is it all right to eat raw fruits for breakfast during the winter months?
2. Is it all right to eat an orange after tomatoes, or after any meal?
3. Is there any harm in eating three oranges a day?
4. What hard, chewy foods are good to exercise the teeth?
5. What food value has cream cheese?
6. Cereal?
7. Strawberries?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. No.
4. How about hard breads? Eat whatever foods you know require much chewing.
5. It is high in calories, proteins, fats and carbohydrates.
6. It is high in calories and carbohydrates. Served with cream and sugar, it is enriched.
7. High in vitamin C. Served with sugar and cream, calories are reasonably high.

MAY BE TYPHOID.

Mrs. E. W. writes: There have been several cases of intestinal flu among persons of different ages in our community.

REPLY.

When many cases of intestinal flu are reported in a community we become apprehensive about typhoid fever. Is that possible in your community? I presume wearing warm clothing, getting plenty of fresh air, and eating carefully are about all that can be done to prevent intestinal flu. The reports are that we are about through with flu for this winter.

NOT POISONOUS.

B. J. K. writes: I recently heard that boiling water, poured over pieces of grapefruit, including the skin, and then strained and drunk, is good for reducing. Is this poisonous to drink?

REPLY.

I doubt if grapefruit tea would cause you to reduce, but it will not poison you. Really, there is no way to cheat or fudge in this reducing game.

PROBATING WILL.

Chicago, March 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does a will have to be probated in the same state in which a person dies? 2. A wife living with her husband has children by her first husband. Her insurance policy is made out with one of her stepchildren named as beneficiary. In the event of death is the stepdaughter liable for the funeral expenses? J. B.

1. The principal probate proceedings should be brought in the jurisdiction where the deceased resided at the time of his death.

FENCE HEIGHT.

Chicago, March 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly advise me how high a fence a man may put between his property and the neighboring property? The neighbor on the south of me put up an eight foot board fence which annoys one of my tenants by shutting out part of the light he would get if this fence was not there. J. V.

Section 1075 of the Chicago municipal code provides: "No wooden fence shall be constructed of greater height than eight feet above the sidewalk grade or eight feet above the surface of the ground where no grade is established."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEPORTED ALIENS.

Chicago, March 10.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a law at the present time allowing people who have once been deported to come back to the United States again? 2. If there is, will they be allowed to stay only for a certain length of time? 3. If there isn't, is there any way for a man to come to the United States with his wife [who is a citizen] and is at the present time with him? He was deported about a year and a half ago. C. A. S.

1. An alien who has been arrested and deported may not reënter the United States unless after one year from the date of deportation the secretary of labor gives his permission for such alien to reapply for admission to the United States.

2. Permission by the secretary to deported aliens to reapply for admission is not limited to those who may desire to come temporarily. Whether or not the alien is admitted permanently after such permission has been given will depend, of course, upon the facts in the individual case.

3. If the alien about whom your correspondent inquires was deported more than one year ago he may, if he chooses, make request upon the secretary of labor at Washington, D. C., for permission to reapply for admission, and if permission is granted his citizen wife may petition the secretary of labor for a nonquota immigration visa in his behalf, provided the marriage occurred prior to July 1, 1932.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

MARCH 19, 1917.

NEW YORK.—The railroad strike threatened for tonight is declared off. Action came at 2:15 o'clock this morning when the railway executives informed the nation, through the national defense council, that the dispute between the roads and men will be settled on the best terms available. These terms permit of no quibbling. Before noon today they are to be fixed by the special committee from the national defense council. To them the railroads will raise no objections whatever, placing duty to the country before every other consideration. The dramatic action, that cannot be termed a surrender, came with startling swiftness scarcely an hour after Secretary of the Interior Lane, wearing an expression of deep discouragement, admitted that the warring factions were no nearer together than they had been twenty-four hours before. The sudden change in plans followed immediately, it is understood, a plain statement of fact direct from Washington. This statement was a sober and impressive warning that the United States is likely to be at war in the very near future. The inference is that the government plans immediate action on the sinking of the Vigilancia, the Illinois, and the City of Memphis by German submarines reported during the day.

LONDON.—Three American steamers, flying the American flag and manned mostly by Americans, have been destroyed by German submarines in the last twenty-four hours. The vessels had the American flag and their names and ports painted on their sides in letters five to ten feet high. Twenty-one of the sailors are missing. The others escaped after great peril in the lifeboats. At least one of the vessels was sent down without the slightest warning. The survivors from this ship report that they did not even see the submarine which sent the torpedo crashing into the side of the ship, destroying it almost instantly. The latest victims of the ruthless sea warfare were the following named ships: Vigilancia, the City of Memphis, and the Illinois. The Vigilancia was torpedoed without warning. The fourth officer and thirteen men are missing. Six officers and twenty-three men were rescued. The City of Memphis was sunk by gunfire and torpedo from a submarine. Eight men are missing. All of the crew of the Illinois, a tanker of the Texas Oil company, have been rescued. The Illinois and City of Memphis were bound for America and carried no cargoes.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—War with Germany has been brought another step nearer by the sinking of the three American ships in the submarine war zone. This series of disasters is regarded by many administration officials as constituting the gravest development in the relations of Germany and the United States since Berlin proclaimed the resumption of ruthless submarine warfare on Jan. 31 last.

LONDON.—The Germans continued their great withdrawal on the Somme front, yielding between 400 and 600 square miles of territory to the British and French along a front of nearly seventy miles extending from the Arras sector to the Oise river. Pressing close on the heels of the retreating enemy the French and British troops occupied mile after mile of open ground and are still pushing forward. The German retirement reached its greatest proportions within the Arras and Noyon salients, which now have been nearly eliminated. At points in the former section the British advanced to a depth of ten miles, while the French forward movements reached a depth of twelve miles at places within the Noyon loop.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—Petrograd reports continued advances in Persia and the Caucasus. Retreating Moslems in both theaters of war are reported in confusion and more towns have been captured. London reports successes on the right bank of the Tigris in Mesopotamia. The Turks are in full flight. Rome admits the loss of recently captured ground in the San Pellegrino valley. German torpedo boats shelled towns along the Kentish coast early yesterday, but did little damage. Field Marshal von Hindenburg has gone to great headquarters to make a report on the western front situation to Emperor William.

PETROGRAD.—Quiet has returned to Russia almost as quickly as the revolt sprang up. Probably no event of similar magnitude in the world's affairs ever had a less colorful aftermath. As the last vestige of the old empire disappears the new government is taking its place with an utter lack of further demonstration.

CHICAGO.—The Scottish Old People's home at Riverside, the home of thirty-seven aged men and women, was destroyed by fire. Four of the residents died in the ruins, presumably having reëntered the building to recover valuables after escaping. The others, some ill and many feeble, managed to escape in the freezing weather. Few were clothed in more than their nightgowns. Physicians fear the excitement and exposure may prove fatal to some of the survivors.

OUR FOREIGN POLICY.

PARIS, France, Feb. 26.—According to the cabled dispatches in the Paris press, Mr. Hull has, in his first interview, made the statement that "henceforth this nation must play a full part in effecting the normal restoration of national economic relationship and world commercial rehabilitation."

The importance of Mr. Hull's words, it would seem to a distant observer, is largely dependent upon the kind of "national economic relationship and world commercial rehabilitation" that is to be restored. If it is the relationship that existed before the war there is serious doubt as to the desire of the world that the old conditions be restored. If it is a new relationship based upon post-war conditions and relations, it would seem as if Mr. Hull proposed to enter a field whose limits are thus far unknown. There are unknown forces to be encountered in this field of international economic relationship, and the United States is as yet unequipped to measure them and to know what course to steer.

It is one thing to speak of restoring economic relationship and another thing to know what it is that is desired. We do not believe, for example, that Great Britain desires the old order of things to live again. We know what that order meant for Great Britain. We see in England party government swept away and a national government in the saddle. The national government is dedicated to the cause of the rehabilitation of Great Britain, not the rehabilitation of the world. The policy of the national government is closer ties between motherland and colonies. Great Britain and her colonies comprise one-fourth of the world's habitable land surface. It is conceivable that the policy of England's national government is, through the development of trade within the empire, to develop the British empire to the point of making it largely independent of other countries. It is difficult to see wherein this policy would fit in with the program outlined by Mr. Hull. The latter envisages a policy of international coöperation that would benefit the United States and the other countries as well. The national government of Great Britain envisages a policy that will benefit, first of all, the British empire. Herein there are many points of conflict to be adjusted.

Mr. Hull desires to carry out a policy of world commercial rehabilitation that will revive the foreign trade of the United States. But the other great powers are dedicated to a policy of industrial development contrary to the aim and desires of the United States. A policy of international coöperation would involve the tearing down of the policies of other nations in favor of the United States. In the present state of affairs it is doubtful if the United States possesses the means or the influence to bring this about. A country that has been immersed in its own affairs as has the United States is ill equipped to meet foreign nations on the battleground of negotiations that conflict with the interests of the negotiators.

A part of the new national policy of Great Britain, as in fact of all other European countries, is to obtain cancellation of the debts owed to the United States as a result of the war. Success in this field will result in lower taxes on her commerce and industry. Another part is to obtain, if possible, reduction of the United States tariff schedules, with a view to obtaining markets hitherto closed. A third part is to recover for Great Britain her former position as financial arbiter of the world. We cannot blame Great Britain for wishing to bring about these results. Her aim is the natural desire of a country to put its own house in order before collaborating in straightening out its neighbor's house. Therefore its neighbors would be well advised to follow Great Britain's example.

The United States has problems on its hands that are not related to international rehabilitation, at least not directly. These problems are more important to the average American than the problems of Great Britain, of France, of Germany. Only by the wildest stretch of the imagination can they be interrelated. International rehabilitation will not cure basic overproduction, excessive taxation, a faulty credit system, or the other ills from which the United States is suffering. Each country has its domestic problems which must be solved before it can fit in a framework of international rehabilitation. The latter will follow the former as the cart follows the horse.

C. E. CARPENTER.

AN EXPERIENCED BATHER.

Chicago, March 10.—Why so much controversy concerning the closing of a bath house?

I lived in the country from the day of my birth until I was old enough to vote and never saw a bathtub. All I knew about them was what I read in works of fiction and in newspaper and magazine advertisements. So far as I was concerned they were as vague and mythical as the nebular hypothesis. Yet I never found it necessary to join the ranks of the great unwashed on that account.

Back behind the barn, out of sight of the house and of the public highway, was a well with an old fashioned wooden pump in it. I rigged a system of ropes, pulleys, walking beams, crossbars, etc., whereby I could work the handle of the pump with my feet while lying under the spout, thereby pumping water on myself while bathing. This worked fine in the summertime.

There were always a few washtubs around the place, so in winter I could wait until everybody else had gone to bed, poke up the fire in the kitchen stove, put some water in one of the tubs, and bathe luxuriously and satisfactorily.

Numerous other methods of bathing may suggest themselves to a normally active mind. Americans are supposed to be more or less ingenious and self-reliant. Be American instead of odorous.

L. H. BRANCH.

AT A JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Chicago, March 10.—Today in THE TRIBUNE I saw an article in which a senior in the University of Illinois complained about Roosevelt's inauguration not once being mentioned in class. I am a 7A in Sullivan Junior High school, and every one in the class was given an opportunity to stand up and talk about Roosevelt's inaugural address. In this way we all got a great deal of good from it, because speaking and listening to others helped us to understand it and aroused new thoughts on the subject.

We were also discussing the things which he was going to do and the things which he had already done. In the issue of March 9 of THE TRIBUNE I found a record of the things which Roosevelt had accomplished and took it to school, where I was given an opportunity to read it to the class.

I am saving Roosevelt's address to congress, because I know some time it will come up in history. This is just one thing we are doing in our history class at Sullivan.

JAMES GORMLEY.

THE JARGON OF MORTICIANS.

Chicago, March 10.—Your Mr. Philip Kinsley may have an Oxford trained mind, for all I know about him, but he apparently has something to learn. In his column about the mayor's funeral he called the beautiful bronze casket a coffin. It's a wonder he didn't call the mayor a corpse. After all, this is 1933.

LIBRARIES OFFER RESPITE FROM WOES OF SLUMP

Survey Shows Increase in Interest.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Millions of Americans are finding a free and open road out of the valley of depression into the sunlit hills of the kingdom of thought. Figures from the American Library association show that the increase in reading in sample libraries in 33 cities is 37 per cent over 1929. It is the further testimony that the demands for serious books in economics, history, religion, political science, and in trades and professions have increased beyond proportion. People are not reading to forget, but to learn, and the result may be a new Renaissance.

The free public libraries, which have been largely restricted in budgets, are struggling with the problem of this new service to a people confused and hungry for intellectual leadership, needing comfort, humor, a new perspective with which to make life more livable. Reading rooms are crowded. Night schools and home services have been established. Morale and even sanity have been preserved, new hope held out and in many instances practical help given that has resulted in job creating.

What They Read.

One man goes to the great passages of the Book of Job to find his inspiration. Another reads Pickwick Papers and loses himself in the adventures of the Weller family with the Rev. Mr. Stiggins, and the sage observations of Mr. Winkle and Mr. Snodgrass.

"Say Bill," said a young Aurora mechanic out of a job to a friend in the library night school, "do you know that everybody and everything is made out of the same thing?" Bill wanted to know about that and the young man said:

"Well, was over to the library and I was reading a book that said everything was made of molecules. Boy, you sure can get a lot of dope there, can't you?"

Another man wanted to know what a "light year" was and became so interested that he and three companions spent the evening figuring out the distance of the nearest star.

They go from that to Shapley's "Flights from Chaos" and read of the Great Nebula in Andromeda, a spiral mass of separate stars 900,000 light years away, or seek to count the stars in the bowl of the Big Dipper, where they will find about 12 with the unaided eye and 150,000 with the large telescope.

Adventure of Mankind.

Many are reading of the adventure of mankind as a whole, getting glimpses of the first human cultures on the banks of the Nile, the Indus, the Ganges, and Ho rivers, Phœnicia, Crete, Carthage, and Greece. In a few pages they skip 30,000 years and come to the earliest Sumerian, the old Indian, and the old Chinese city states. Then the pageant of the continental empires, Rome, Mongols, British.

Generations of races, innumerable cultures, countless nations walk the earth from prehistoric times, from the stone age of barter to the mechanical revolution of the 19th century.

Coming to individual lives, the librarians report that various biographies of Lincoln, particularly those of Charnwood and Sandburg, are being read widely. People find in this man of struggle and sorrow and love for humanity a tonic for their own time. Another book in demand is Jane Addams' "Twenty Years in Hull House," another story of struggle against great odds and the spirit of Christ translated into action. Also Lewis' "Life of Sherman."

Whitman Much Read.

Whitman, too, is read for his breezy optimism, expressed in such lines as these from "Leaves of Grass":

"And I or you, pocketless of a dime, may purchase the pick of the earth,
And to glance with an eye, or show a bean in its pod, confounds the learning of all time.
And there is no trade or employment but the young man following it may become a hero,
And there is no object so soft but it makes a hub for the wheel'd universe,
And I say to any man or woman, let your soul stand cool and composed before a million universes."

The Elliott bookshelf or the Will Durant list have led many into new fields of thought in which the present takes its place as a temporary, entirely relative conception against the great background of other lives and other days. They read the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," books on psychology, Voltaire, the tremendous upheaval of the French revolution. They seek the meaning of the Russian experiment in a new social order.

Timeless Classics.

They find little better than such timeless classics as "Sartor Resartus," where it is written:

"The situation that has not its duty, its ideal, was never yet occupied by man. Yes, here, in this poor, miserable, hampered, despicable actual, wherein thou even now standest, here or nowhere is thy ideal; work it out therefrom; and working, believe, live, be free. Fool! The ideal is in thyself, the impediment, too, is in thyself; thy condition is but the stuff thou art to shape that same ideal out of: what matters whether such stuff be of this sort or that, so the form thou give it be heroic, be poetic? O thou that pinest in the imprisonment of the actual, and criest bitterly to the gods for a kingdom wherein to rule and create, know this of a truth: the thing thou seekest is already with thee, 'here or nowhere,' couldst thou only see!"

If it is philosophy, there is the sturdy pragmatism of William James and the transcendentalism of Emerson, who says in his essay on "Compensation":

"The changes which break up at short intervals the prosperity of men are advertisements of a nature whose law is growth. . . . The sure years reveal the deep remedial force that underlies all facts. . . . Belief and love—a believing love will relieve us of a vast load of care."

The Hild regional branch library on the west side of Chicago has among its patrons executives and high officials of great industries, clerks and workmen from the factories, the idle who are not wanted around home, the representatives of twenty or more foreign blood strains. Attendance increased 33,000 in one year and reference questions 5,000. The patrons are interested in all sorts of questions, new vocations, home industries, such as handicrafts, gardening, toy making, games and puzzles. The library is becoming a kindergarten for some, a post-graduate course for others.

Frank J. Bruno, professor of applied sociology at Washington university, St. Louis, writes to the library association:

"I have been much interested in recent reports as to the phenomenal increase of the use of public libraries, due to unemployment. This is a fact of significant social import as related to the present depression. The rapid increase in suicides is startling, but the reason that there are not more actual riots at present may well be due to such influences as public libraries in maintaining the morale of the unemployed."

100 POUND WOMAN SLAPS BIG BANDIT AND SAVES PURSE

While waiting for her husband early yesterday in front of 1653 Keenon street, Mrs. Bernice Magiere, 2450 North Austin avenue, who weighs 100 pounds, was accosted by two large men with revolvers. Instead of giving them her purse she slapped one of them in the face and started screaming for help. The bandits fled

NEW WATERWAY FRONTAGE SITES ARE IN DEMAND

Choice Ones Expected to Bring Good Prices.

Peoria, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Abundant confidence that prosperity has already hit the Illinois river valley, by reason of the new waterway, is reflected by owners of choice sites along its banks. These owners have well founded beliefs that all river frontage has advanced in value by reason of the completion of the waterway. Their optimism is obvious in the value they now place upon these sites.

Farsighted individuals acquired title to river front properties years ago, with the idea that some day such properties would advance rapidly in price. Considering the entire river from Grafton to Chicago, hundreds of such investors are doomed to disappointment, while on the other hand, many of them will realize handsome profits on their foresight, it is agreed.

Grain Firms Seek Sites.

It is an open secret that grain companies in Chicago, in Peoria, and at Ottawa, are investigating possibilities for elevators from which to move grain. Coal companies in Peoria, Chicago, and at points where coal lies adjacent to the river are likewise making investigations, while concerns interested in oil, sand, and gravel and lumber are sending scouts up and down the valley for advantageous locations. All this prospecting cannot fail to convince land owners that prosperity has arrived.

Delays are being encountered by dredging concerns having contracts in the Illinois section of the waterway between Starved Rock and Lockport. A pilot channel was built through that section, so that the waterway would be unofficially opened on March 1.

Dredges Widening Channel.

Dredges are at work broadening this pilot channel to a uniform width. This work occasionally blocks the pilot channel, so that there will be delays in barge line operations which may be undertaken during the next six or eight weeks.

The formal opening has been fixed for the first week in June and by that time contractors expect to have the specified channel of 200 foot width, minimum, entirely completed.

25,000 FARMERS PLAN TO MARCH ON BUENOS AIRES

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, March 18.—Twenty-five thousand farmers are preparing to march to Buenos Aires in June if congress has not by that time passed farm relief measures, Esteban Piacenza, president of the Argentine Agrarian federation, said today.

He explained that the vote of the agrarian congress on Thursday to suspend the agrarian strike was only a temporary measure in response to President Justo's request that the farmers take no radical steps.

The farmers, he said, are willing to concede congress three months to vote a moratorium, lower rents, lower interest on loans, and a fixed price for grains.

Cut Hole in Floor, Steal Safe as Druggist Sleeps

Burglars sawed a six foot square in the wooden flooring of a drug store at 932 Addison street, lowered a 1,000 pound safe to the basement, and carted it away in a truck without disturbing the slumber of the owner, A. H. Rubin, who lives on the second floor at that address. The safe contained $100 and a $15 ring. Rubin discovered the robbery when he descended to the store yesterday.

Aiken, S. C., March 18.—(AP)—Clerks at the Farmers' and Merchants' bank here were somewhat dubious today when a man brought a water bucket piled high with eggs to the institution, placed it in a window and said he wanted to make a deposit. Under the eggs were several thousand dollars in currency.

3 YEAR DROUGHT BRINGS FAMINE TO NORTH BRAZIL

Natives Abandon Farms, Trek to Seacoast.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAHIA, Brazil, March 18.—A host numbering more than 100,000 starved, sick and destitute "sertanejos" [mountaineers] are invading the more important centers of northeastern Brazil, driven from their farms and villages by a three year drought.

They are victims of a tropical trick of Brazil's hinterland — everything grows with astounding rapidity when normal conditions prevail, but poverty and famine rule when rain is lacking. Fertile states such as Bahia, Alagoas, Sergipe, Pernambuco, Parahyba, and Ceara almost regularly each six years —after years of plenty—face famine. This year, the most extreme of the prolonged drought, tragedy stalks the whole section.

Crops Wither; Cattle Die.

Bahia province—sometimes called the "blessed land of Brazil"—feels the drought most keenly, in normal years it has the greatest variety of agricultural products. The "flagellados" [refugees] are abandoning their farms and villages by the thousands. They held on, until they saw their crops wither and their cattle die. Their food and drinking water were gone and they faced tropical diseases. Now they are descending on the coast.

Trainloads of drinking water were sent to the sertao [the savage interior], but they were attacked by flagellados—gone mad at the sight of water — and contaminated before they reached their destinations. State police were unable to protect the trains. Now they are discontinued because their is no water available along the way for the engines.

Relief Funds Insufficient.

The federal government has organized a relief fund to aid the "sertanejos" and several hundred thousands of dollars already have been spent in the six states most severely hit. Private contributions have been plentiful, too. However, even these large sums are far from sufficient to meet the situation, for there are thousands of families to feed, shelter and clothe.

Thousands of fleeing refugees have meet death along roads or soon after reaching villages. Women and children are the most numerous victims of thirst, starvation, exhaustion and disease. Entire families have suffered extinction, others have lost five or six members. Deserted by the exodus from the sertao, many invalids and aged persons face a certain death. The ablebodied are trekking to the southwest, having heard that there the land is in full bloom and promises large harvests. But hardly 10 per cent of the refugees are fit for work after escaping the sertao—many have been tramping for two months.

Overrun the Small Towns.

The streets of Bahia are packed with flagellados begging food, clothing and shelter and money for fares to the south—they seem like animated skeletons. More pitiful are the scenes in the small towns near Bahia. In Nazareth, Cachoeira, Sao Felix, Castro Alves and Feira de Sant' Anna, where the lack of rain also was felt, forcing the inhabitants almost to the same fate as their brothers, refugees gather by the thousands en route to the large towns. These small towns are unable to do anything for the refugees.

THE TRIBUNE's correspondent, while spending a week-end at Sao Felix, six hours from Bahia, saw one of the most pitiful sights in his residence in Brazil. Sao Felix, a picturesque town of 8,000, on the Paraguassu river, is quite famous for its cigar factories and in ordinary times is a wealthy commercial center.

Oversated with Water.

While the correspondent was there, the flagellados invaded the town. Men, women and children in rags ran to the river, many falling exhausted before they were able to touch a drop of water. Others reached the river and drank too much, dying there. Women cried for their dead children, men searched for their wives and children screamed for their parents. Half naked old men and women called to God to put an end to their sufferings.

At night the spectacle was even sadder. Streets and parks were packed with humanity sleeping in close rows, just like India's towns in times of famine. The next morning only about 20 per cent of them were strong enough to walk out of Sao Felix toward the south. Others stayed, trusting to providence and the good will of the municipal government.

The town was too small to relieve this wretched host, the municipal council had not the means. Even the most charitable individuals could not give enough help. The depression and poor tobacco crops had already sapped Sao Felix, and it faced poverty, too, if more flagellados passed through the town. Rain is not even predicted.

The complainants charge that they were mulcted of $75,000 in a practice which prosecutors announced on Friday had grown to large proportions in Cook county. Prof. Cherry stated that evidence would be taken before the grand jury or before a municipal judge for a series of warrants by next Wednesday.

Classroom Results Are Far Reaching.

In a letter to THE TRIBUNE Hungry School Children's fund yesterday Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the board of education, praised the results in the classrooms which are now coming to light through the continued feeding of needy children in the public schools.

WAGNER READY TO OFFER 3 BILLS TO AID THE IDLE

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] announced today that he will introduce three bills Monday aimed at providing relief for the idle.

The first of his measures, the New Yorker said, will provide for a liberalization of Reconstruction Finance corporation construction loan requirements. The second bill would establish a "nationally coördinated, state-operated" system of employment offices, while the third, according to Mr. Wagner, would "encourage the establishment of idle insurance systems in the several states."

His bills, said Senator Wagner, will augment the relief program shortly to be recommended to congress by President Roosevelt.

"The cost of opening jobs for men out of work is trifling compared to the waste of human life and wealth involved in the present idleness of over 12 million breadwinners," Senator Wagner stated. "Their return to gainful occupation is the chief responsibility of the new administration."

"I have ever confidence that under the President's leadership that responsibility will be fully discharged."

Highland Park Girl Wins Second in Poetry Contest

Mount Vernon, Ia., March 18.—(AP)—Molly Grinnell of Deerfield-Shields High school, Highland Park, Ill., won second in poetry in the Midwest High school creative writing contest sponsored by Cornell College English club, it was announced today.

H. K. CHAPIN JR. ORDERED TO PAY WIFE $15 A WEEK

Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday ordered Henry K. Chapin Jr., 2430 Lake View avenue, to pay his wife, Mrs. Ada Bruce Chapin of Boston, $15 a week temporary alimony pending the hearing of her divorce bill. Without the alimony, Attorney William S. Gemmill, counsel for Mrs. Chapin, told the court, his client would be unable to come to Chicago to prosecute her suit.

"Mrs. Chapin's father, Dr. John Bruce of Boston," he said, "is a prominent surgeon, but he was blinded while watching the recent eclipse of the sun and he is no longer able to keep up his practice and his income."

Chapin, in opposing the granting of temporary alimony, said that his salary as secretary of the Lake Coal and Dock company had been reduced recently to $39 a month.

After fixing the alimony order Judge Allegretti said: "It seems suspicious to me that your income should decrease so suddenly when a divorce suit is brought."

Thieves Take Auto and $700 Worth of Paintings

Two oil paintings valued at $700, the property of Miss Florence White Williams, Chicago artist and a daughter of Winfield Scott Williams, 4533 Greenwood avenue, patent attorney, were stolen early yesterday by thieves who drove off with the Williams automobile, in which were the pictures. The car was parked in front of 6801 Crandon avenue, where the Williamses were visting friends. The thieves left a stolen car.

MRS. CATHERINE CRERAR DANE IS GIVEN 3D DIVORCE

Mrs. Dane is the daughter of Mrs. Marie Crerar, 209 Lake Shore drive, widow of John Crerar, coal and shipping magnate. The decree was granted on grounds of cruelty and nonsupport. Mrs. Dane waived alimony.

Mrs. Dane is about 25 years old. She was first married to Ralph C. Otis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis. Their wedding at St. Chrysostom's church on Jan. 15, 1927, was a social event. Two years later she obtained a divorce here on the ground of cruelty. In April, 1930, she was secretly married to Frederick Koehn of Wilmette. A few months later she obtained a Reno divorce.

. . . AND ANOTHER WOMAN CHANGES TO CALUMET!

Wherever women gather they're talking about a wonderful modern baking powder—a baking powder that's changing all the old ideas of real perfection in baking.

Cakes are getting more velvety-fine . . . biscuits more feathery . . . muffins more even, without a single hump outside or a tunnel within. All because so many women are changing to Calumet!

Ask them why Calumet bakes so much better, and they'll tell you that it has a Double-Action. Calumet doesn't do all its work in the mixing bowl, but gives the batter further support and protection in the oven. This wonderful second action is held in reserve—awaiting the oven's heat. And it holds your batter or dough high and light all through the baking.

Best of all, this newer baking powder is more economical! The price is reasonable . . . a new and glorious success appears in all your baking . . . and you use less because the Double-Action makes Calumet go further. The standard proportion is only one teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour.

Get Calumet today and try it in this delicious, economical Cream Loaf Cake. You'll be proud of your baking as never before —and of your thrift! Calumet is a product of General Foods.

CREAM LOAF CAKE
(2 eggs)

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder

2 eggs, well beaten
1¼ cups heavy cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add sugar gradually to eggs, and beat well. Add flour, alternately with cream, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8 x 8 x 2 inches, in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes. Spread chocolate frosting on top and sides of cake.

1st ACTION 2nd ACTION

GET PROOF! See Calumet act twice! These pictures illustrate the famous Calumet Double-Action Test. You'll find full directions for making this easy test inside every Calumet can. Try it! See for yourself how Calumet acts twice to make your baking better.

MISS HASLER AND JOHN SIMPSON WED IN CHURCH

Bride's Veil Once Worn by Empress.

BY JUDITH CASS.

The gorgeous Brussels point lace veil that used to belong to the Empress Elizabeth of Austria and which now belongs to Mrs. William A. Robinson and was worn by her when, as Florence Crane, she was married on Feb. 18, was worn by another beautiful bride yesterday afternoon when Miss Constance Hasler was married to John McLaren Simpson in Lake Forest.

The lace veil was appliqued on a shoulder length tulle veil just as it was when the daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. wore it, but instead of the jeweled wreath that Miss Crane wore to hold it in place, Miss Hasler wore a simple Grecian fillet of artificial bright green leaves. Miss Hasler's gown was of deep cream satin, made with long sleeves, a high neckline in front and ruffles over the shoulders forming a low V in back. Her bouquet, a small one, was of cream freesias and gardenias.

150 Attend Ceremony.

The service was read in the presence of about 150 relatives and friends in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit, the Rev. Dr. Herbert E. Prince officiating. At either side of the chancel were huge bouquets of orange and yellow snapdragons and on the altar were orange, yellow, and white spring flowers. The only lights in the chapel were four seven branched candelabra at the altar.

Miss Eleanor Coonley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss L. Coonley of Great Barrington, Mass., formerly of Lake Forest, was her cousin's only attendant. She wore an ultra smart gown of sheer wool, aquamarine in color, with brown lace short sleeves, a brown suede belt, brown gloves, shoes, and hat. Her flowers were green orchids, yellow freesia, and lilies of the valley.

Congressman Is Best Man.

James Simpson Jr., congressman from the 10th district, came from Washington, D. C., to serve as his brother's best man. The ushers were William Simpson, another brother of the bridegroom; A. Watson Armour III., and Samuel H. Wolcott Jr. of Boston. Wyndham Hasler, who is a student at Harvard, gave his sister in mariage.

After the ceremony there was a reception at Aldingbourne cottage, the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edward Lionel Masler. Mrs. Hasler wore a greenish blue crêpe de chine gown which had a cape trimmed with sable, a brown straw hat, brown gloves and shoes, and two camellias.

Among the other out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Coonley, Miss Emily Beardsley of Utica, N. Y., who was the bride's roommate at Westover and also at school in France, and Werk Cook of Cincinnati, who accompanied Wyndham Hasler here from Harvard.

Mr. Simpson, who is the second of the James Simpsons' three sons, and his bride will be at home in Lake Forest after May 1.

Orders Police to Curb School Window Breaking

Commissioner James P. Allman issued an order yesterday to all commanding officers of the police department to pay particular attention to public school property in order to aid in reducing the cost of glass breakage. The smashing of 68,000 panes of glass, mostly by vandals, cost the board of education $150,000 in 1932. The 1933 school budget appropriation for glass replacements was reduced $40,000.

MAYOR REVEALS HOW HE FAILED AS ART CRITIC

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Charles D. Houston, mayor of Cedar Rapids, Ia., recently visited the Smithsonian institution, pointed to some paintings of Indians on the walls, asked:

"Are they worth anything?"

Yes, he was told, those paintings signed by George Catlin were worth money. Outside the government collection the least price for his canvases was $500.

Mayor Houston sighed, and told a story, which became known today, as follows:

Fifty years ago Catlin, a poor, sick and discouraged man, lived and painted in the old brick tower of the Smithsonian. Joseph Henry, secretary of the institution, harbored him there while trying to persuade congress to buy those pictures.

A little boy carried Catlin's meals up the winding stair. Occasionally penniless, Catlin presented him with a picture in payment. The boy had no use for them. He stuck them all in a corner under the stair.

The boy grew up to be mayor of Cedar Rapids. The paintings from under the stair adorn the Smithsonian's walls.

Idle Work in Camp; Save Taxpayers $2,500

Litchfield, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—South Litchfield idle saved township taxpayers $2,500 this winter in fuel bills through relief lumber camps, according to Supervisor William E. Dieckman today. Lumber and mine props were traded for coal to nearby mines. The camps were operated under the Montgomery county plan, which requires eight hours' work on relief orders. Over one hundred men worked in the wood chopping camps.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT O. K.'S PROPOSED ROAD OVER OLD CANAL BED

Construction of a new state highway into Chicago over the bed of the old Illinois and Michigan canal from the village of Justice Park, as recommended by the state commission on taxation and public expenditures, has been approved as practical by the state highway department.

This was announced yesterday by State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, secretary of the commission, who received a letter approving the proposed improvement from Robert Kingery, acting director of the state department of public works and buildings. Mr. Kingery urged that the commission use its influence to prevent the state from losing any portion of the canal right of way.

The new traffic artery would be an extension of Route 51 into Chicago from the southwest and would end in the city at the present terminus of the canal, 31st street and Ashland avenue. The distance from Justice Park to that point is approximately 14 miles. Route 51, at present, goes south from Justice Park.

"The actual construction of the proposed road over the canal right of way must, of course, wait for the availability of funds, but we feel that definite progress has been made in getting the state highway department's survey and approval of the project," said Representative Schnackenberg.

"NECKING BANDITS" ROB TWO.

A man and a pretty girl, known to police as the "necking bandits," early yesterday robbed two taxicab drivers of their money and cabs. The victims were John Van Wolvelaere, 938 Argyle street, and Frank Cobdor, 2113 Seminary avenue. Both told police that the young couple had posed as sweethearts while riding to the scenes of the holdups.

Sends Chain, Too; Writes to Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—An Italian-American girl living in Brooklyn and without a job has given a striking lesson in practical patriotism, the White House disclosed today. This girl, who refused to sign her name to her letter addressed to President Roosevelt, sent him a five dollar gold piece and a gold chain, her only articles of jewelry. In making public the letter, the White House announced that the gold piece which, according to the donor, had been in her possession for two years "for the sake of its sentimental value," has been turned over to the treasury. The chain, however, does not come within the category of hoarded gold, and will be returned to its owner if the White House can find out her name and address.

Text of Her Letter.

Her letter, dated March 9, read:

"To the President of the United States of America, Franklin Delano Roosevelt:

"In these days of complicated hardship I have been wondering, as any one else who is conscious of the situation must be, how I could share to help the country to get out of its difficulties.

"Often I have laughed at myself, finding it most absurd to fancy that I, in my abysmal insignificance, could help. Then I realized that, although unaware of it, I had been harming the country right along. Yes, Mr. President, I found out that I was a hoarder. The five dollar gold piece which I was keeping for the last two years for the sake of its sentimental value represented part of the gold that is needed to keep the currency sound and restore, if not prosperity, at least normalcy. And here it is Mr. President. I am offering it to you, together with a little gold chain, the only jewel I possess. It is not much, but it is all I have. I haven't even got a job.

Women's Sacrifice Cited.

"This little offering of mine is just like a drop in the bucket, but every big sum is made of little ones, just as immensity of space is formed by atoms. Maybe other women will follow my example and, those who can, more generously. It has been done before. History teaches us that women saved their country from the invading enemy by sacrificing their jewels to pay the price of its freedom.

"Please do accept my small share to your great task and may God inspire and guide you to a speedy recovery of a sick world. A healthy America means a healthy world. There is no getting away from it.

"I shall not tell you my name because I would not like to give the impression that I am doing this as a publicity stunt. Besides I detest publicity. The only thing I want you to know is that I am an Italian girl. I hope that, notwithstanding what has happened, you will believe me when I tell you that we all love you.

"An Italo-American."

Seek to Double Personnel at Rock Island Arsenal

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Representative Chester Thompson, Democrat of Rock Island, Ill., said today that he and Representative B. M. Jacobsen, Democrat of Clinton, Ia., were working on a plan which, with congressional approval, would at least double the present personnel of the Rock Island arsenal. "We hope to increase production there," Thompson continued, "until the output exceeds wartime production." Thompson said the arsenal was equipped to produce small arms, both army and navy ordnance, mail boxes, and other articles needed by the federal government.

MOVES TO BRING MAIL ROBBERY SUSPECTS HERE

Removal warrants for three men held in New York in connection with the robbery of $300,000 in bonds from a mail carrier here last December were obtained yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Fisher.

At the same time Chief Postal Inspector K. P. Aldrich revealed that the arrest of the three men in New York, one of whom is said to have had $18,000 worth of the stolen bonds in his possession, was brought about through the work of Inspector John J. McCarthy of the Chicago office, who went east to investigate the crime.

The men held are Edgar Bargozy, a lawyer; Robert Roberto, and Dominick Gentile. All denied any knowledge of the robbery.

HELEN HAYES AND CHAS. M'ARTHUR SAIL SUDDENLY

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Helen Hayes, actress, and her husband, Charles MacArthur, playwright, went to the liner Conte de Savoia today to see some friends off—and they ended by sailing themselves.

They arrived here Monday from the coast with Norma Shearer, actress, and her husband, Irving Thalberg, motion picture production manager. The Thalbergs were going to Europe and the MacArthurs went down to see them sail. At the last minute the MacArthurs decided to go along, too. They will return in three weeks.

ABRAM E. FITKIN, ACTIVE IN PUBLIC UTILITIES, DEAD

Turned from Pulpit to Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 19.—[Special.]—The death of Abram E. Fitkin, whose decision in 1900 that he could be of more service as an efficient business man than as an inefficient preacher brought him a fortune estimated at $250,000,000, wrote a final chapter today to an unusual story of modern American finance. What depletion there has been in this estimated fortune is not known.

Mr. Fitkin, who had suffered from heart disease and other ailments for some time, succumbed at the age of 54 in his suite at the Hotel Savoy Plaza.

Public Utility Leader.

In the thirty-three years since his decision to abandon the pulpit he had made himself a recognized power in public utilities affairs and had become known for his philanthropies. The story of his first choice of professions, as he himself worded it in a newspaper interview in 1927, was as follows:

"My parents thought I should be a minister, and, believing that children should follow the destiny selected by their parents, I started studying theology and such matters at the age of 17 and kept it up for five years until I was 22. I did some preaching."

He did not supply other details of his church career. Friends, however, recalled today that he was ordained a minister as the result of his theological studies, carried out without going to college, in the church of the Nazarene during 1896. He was then 18, having been born in Brooklyn Sept. 18, 1878.

Turns to Business.

His realization that his talents could be better employed outside the church took form before the turn of the century, and in 1900 he definitely abandoned his theological studies and became a bookkeeper in the New York office of Peiser, Welker & Co., a Boston financial firm dealing mainly in railroad securities.

Mr. Fitkin remained with this company for several years, rising ultimately to the position of manager. He entered the public utility field and in 1926 he disposed of the National Public Service corporation to the banking house of E. H. Rollins & Sons for a reputed price of $250,000,000 including the funded debt. In the same year he sold the Western United corporation for $30,000,000. In 1927, and the result of another $30,000,000 transaction, he transferred control of the Inland Power and Light corporation to Samuel Insull & Son.

In 1929 he sold the Pacific Public Service company at a price not made known.

His philanthropies, begun with the establishment of the Raleigh Fitkin Memorial hospital at Bremersdorf, Swaziland, South Africa, continued during the period when he was disposing of many of his holdings. In February, 1930, the Raleigh Fitkin Memorial pavilion at the New Haven [Conn.] hospital was accepted by President Angell of Yale university. Mr. Fitkin had furnished $600,000 for the erection of the pavilion and had established in addition a $500,000 endowment for research in children's diseases.

Mr. Fitkin is survived by his widow, the former Susan Norris, to whom he was married in 1895, and three children.

One of the few men present wanted to know if capitalism would not first have to be abolished before wars could be ended.

"What is the opposite of capitalism?" asked the mathematician. "Even under socialism we do not have peace. Peace is not a political-economic problem—it must be a religion with you."

There was a burst of hand clapping.

"Should women support the arms embargo?" asked a woman. "Yes, surely," was the answer.

BODIES OF FIVE FOUND IN AUTO IN OHIO RIVER

Father and Four Children Victims of Tragedy.

Cleveland, O., March 18.—(AP)—The swirling currents of Cuyahoga river near Cleveland yielded the bodies today of a father and his four children and the automobile that carried them to sudden death—but the police refused to label the tragedy an accident. . . .

A chance passerby spied the top of the automobile in the river this morning, and after several hours' work the police recovered the bodies and identified them as:

Alexander Grant, 45, a machinist of Cleveland and his children, Alexander Jr., 9; George, 8; Jeanette, 6, and James, 4.

Grant had been despondent and out of work for 10 months until last week when he got his old job back. He was in a cheerful mood when he left home with his children last night to go to a garage to get the lights of his car fixed.

Doubts Accident Theory.

Nevertheless Marshal Edward Wisnieski of Independence village, a Cleveland suburb, said in his opinion the car could not have been accidentally driven into the river from the spot on the bank where it plunged into the stream near the village.

Coroner A. J. Pearse of Cuyahoga county declined to express an opinion and adjourned his investigation until Monday.

The automobile had plunged into the river from a bankside brush patch 150 feet off the road. The spot is a lonely one and an old cart road had at one time marked a trail where the car was driven through.

Mrs. Grant was almost prostrate with grief.

"My husband was so cheerful," she said. "There was no hint of this—nothing—to show what was coming."

Train Kills Five in Michigan.

Clarkston, Mich., March 18.—[Special.]—Three men and two children were killed today when their automobile was struck by a Detroit bound Grand Trunk passenger train near here.

Men Try to Jump.

Earl Weaver passed the car just before the crash and said it was traveling west at a high rate of speed. The men tried to jump but saw the train too late on the blind Andersonville road crossing. Witnesses said the warning bell was ringing.

Thomas Farley, a farmer living near the crossing, said he saw the crash, describing the destruction of the automobile as something like an explosion when the locomotive struck it.

DUKE OF ABRUZZI DIES IN CITY HE FOUNDED IN 1920

Once Reported Engaged to Katherine Elkins.

MOGDISHU, Somalia, March 18.—(AP)—The duke of Abruzzi, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel and a famous explorer, died today at the age of 60.

The duke became seriously ill in January at his residence in Turin but he recovered sufficiently in February to travel from Italy. He arrived here three weeks ago hoping to recover from an attack of arterio sclerosis.

Death occurred at Abruzzi City, near Mogdishu, which the duke founded in 1920 as the center of a vast plantation for growing colonial products.

Wooed Katherine Elkins.

The duke was well known in America because of his friendship with Katherine Elkins, daughter of the late Senator Stephen E. Elkins of West Virginia, and for six years rumors of their betrothal pursued them. The reports ended in October, 1913, when Miss Elkins married William F. R. Hitt, son of a wealthy congressman from Illinois. The duke cabled congratulations. Mrs. Hitt had no opportunity to return these felicitations, for the duke never married.

Stories in connection with the rumored engagement had the Italian royal family blocking the match because Miss Elkins was a Protestant and a commoner. Then later it was said that the senator objected to the dowry demands, which were reported to have reached $5,000,000 and that he abhorred the idea of anything approaching a morganatic union.

Aside from this romantic episode the duke was a colorful individual. When he was only 24 he became the first explorer to climb Mount St. Elias in Alaska. He tried to reach the north pole, established a record for height by attempted ascents of unconquered peaks in the Himalayas, discovered mountain ranges and river sources in Africa and hunted big game in many of the world's out-of-the-way places.

The duke was commander-in-chief of the Italian navy from 1915 to 1917.

The duke's last major activity came when he headed the Italia line, combining the major Italian shipping companies, a post from which he resigned last October.

Italian newspapers, acting under orders, did not publish news of his death, which will not be announced until Monday so as not to interfere with a luncheon to be given tomorrow by the king in Rome for Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

PROPOSE 3 MORE FOR SUCCESSOR TO SUPT. TOBIN

The names of three more candidates for appointment by the county commissioners to the post left vacant by the death of Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, were added yesterday to the list of 11 which will be presented for consideration to the board on Monday. The new candidates are George A. Schwebel, superintendent of Cicero schools; William Cooney, a county schools' executive, and Otto F. Aiken, an assistant superintendent under Mr. Tobin.

These candidates are receiving strong political support for the $10,000 a year job, it was learned.

The other candidates whose names will be given to the board have been recommended by educators at the University of Chicago and from Northwestern and De Paul universities, or indorsed by civic or voters' organizations from the county school districts. Numerous representatives from these organizations have announced that they will appear before the board to oppose the appointment for political reasons of unqualified candidates.

MEDICAL CARE

is now available in all fields of Medicine at LOW COST

[For the first time people of limited incomes can obtain complete Medical and Dental Care within their ability to pay]

With the opening of UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE in its beautifully appointed and scientifically equipped quarters, occupying four floors in the Finchley Building, Chicago becomes the first city to offer a constructive solution to the problem of the high cost of medical care. Organized by more than three hundred Chicago physicians, surgeons and dentists, UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is an organization of physicians, operated by physicians in an honest, straightforward effort to reduce the existing high costs of medical care and make it available to persons of limited incomes, directly, or through their own family physicians.

Special Heart Service

Heart trouble causes more deaths than cancer or tuberculosis. Early diagnosis by trained physicians offers the greatest protection. Our special heart service includes a physical, general medical and clinical examination of the heart by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, complete blood examination and serological tests, electrocardiogram, a six foot distance full size X-ray film of the chest and fluoroscopic examination when indicated. This complete service for ____ $5.00

Repeated visits $1.00

Special Gastro-Intestinal Service

Here is an important diagnostic service that high cost has denied to many persons who might have avoided serious sickness through its timely use. A special gastro-intestinal service is now available which includes a special clinical examination of the gastro-intestinal tract by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a complete blood examination, serological tests ____ $3.00

In addition, if necessary, there is a laboratory examination of the gastric contents and of the stool for blood and bacteria, for an additional laboratory fee of ____ $2.50

A fluoroscopic examination following a barium meal, repeated at intervals necessary to watch it pass through the gastro-intestinal tract, including a full size X-ray film of the abdomen for ____ $4.00

There is a charge of $1.50 for every additional 14 x 17" film, and $1.00 for every 8 x 10" film. Special X-ray examination of the gall bladder ____ $3.00

Special Rectal Service

Five thousand persons die every year from cancer of the rectum. In many cases early diagnosis and treatment could have prevented such serious results. No rectal ailment should be treated without a complete clinical examination by a trained physician, including the use of the anoscope and the proctoscope, urinalysis, complete blood examination and serological tests, and microscopic examination of the stool for blood, amoebae and bacteria. This complete service affords the greatest protection and costs ____ $5.00

PROMINENT medical authorities and others interested in public health agree that no problem facing the public today is of more vital importance, for adequate medical care is one of life's necessities and, when needed, is equally valuable to persons in all stations of life.

High Cost a Vital Problem

"The Committee on the Cost of Medical Care" after five years of investigation and study costing almost a million dollars, reached the conclusion that persons of limited incomes were finding it increasingly difficult and in many cases impossible to obtain the medical care they need because the costs were beyond their capacity to pay. Because of this failure to utilize more generally the great wealth of scientific information which medical science has produced the past fifty years, disease and disability continue to take an alarming toll of health and happiness. Each year there is a vast amount of unnecessary sickness and many thousands of unnecessary deaths. The death rates for cancer, heart trouble, diabetes and other diseases are rising and many persons, young and old, are more or less incapacitated by physical defects which proper and timely medical care could prevent or correct.

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has been organized to relieve these conditions by making available at controlled low costs medical knowledge, technique and equipment which have been denied to persons of limited incomes because of their high cost.

Not an Experiment

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is not a new experiment, for its basic principles of operation are patterned after a successful plan conceived and put into operation by Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, which, during twelve years under his able management, provided adequate medical care to thousands of persons who could not afford to pay the costs of similar services elsewhere. Over 200,000 persons were examined and as many as 2,000 treatments were given in a single day.

The success of this effort by Dr. Berkowitz attracted nationwide attention, but it remained for this group of several hundred Chicago physicians, surgeons and dentists under his leadership, to organize UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE in order to adopt and apply successfully these principles to all fields of medical service at controlled low costs.

Not a Charity nor a Philanthropy

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is not, nor is it associated with, or supported by any charity, philanthropic, educational or tax-supported organization. UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is incorporated for profit as are many other successful medical institutions in order to exercise the same control over costs and avoid unwise, wasteful and undirected expenditures as business institutions do, thus providing for a more rapid extension of facilities with increased improvement and availability of service at progressively lower costs.

Departments of Medical Service

At UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE, through its large group of associated physicians, surgeons and dentists and completely equipped diagnostic laboratories and treatment rooms, competent and adequate medical care is provided for the first time at controlled low costs in all the general and specialized fields of medicine, some of which are:

Cardiovascular • Respiratory • Gastro-Intestinal • Neurological • Metabolic • Proctological • Urological • Gynecological • Eye-Ear-Nose-Throat • Dental • Special services are available through the General Medical • X-ray and Dental laboratories, Optical, Drug and Medical Appliance Departments

All departments are in charge of competent physicians, recognized by diplomas of graduation from prominent medical schools, interneship in Class A hospitals, licensure by the State and by appointments to the staffs of the foremost hospitals and teaching institutions. All have had years of training and experience in their respective fields of medicine. In addition to the present staff of physicians, surgeons and dentists, a larger group of associate members is available to serve in an advisory and consulting capacity, thus adequately providing for complete general health and diagnostic examination and treatment in all departments of medicine with resulting protection to the public.

Organized to Serve the Public and the Medical Profession

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is not competing with existing charitable, philanthropic, educational and tax-supported institutions, or physicians in private practice. It has been organized to serve that large majority of the public which is going untreated because of the high cost of existing medical facilities. Complete medical care is available to all persons, directly, or through their own family physicians. Particular attention has been given to the comfort, convenience and privacy of patients throughout all examinations and treatments regardless of the nature of the ailment to be treated.

Special Dental Service

Good teeth have much to do with your physical and mental well being. Whether they be vigilant guardians of your health or become active agents of disease and worry depends upon the kind of care you give them. Frequent examinations offer the greatest protection. A Special Dental Service includes full mouth X-ray of the teeth consisting of 14 films, urinalysis, complete blood examination and serological tests, and an examination by the dentist for $1.50. Cleaning teeth is ____ $1.50

All dental work is correspondingly low in price.

Special Eye Service

Defective vision is frequently caused by diseases in other parts of the body. Sometimes it is due to changes in the eye itself which may eventually result in blindness. A refraction alone is not sufficiently protective. To be thorough and complete, eye examinations should be made by a physician trained and experienced in diseases of the eye. This special eye service includes a medical examination of the eye by a physician, refraction, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests for $3.00

A special optical service is available also, where glasses, when indicated, can be furnished, depending upon the type of lenses needed and frame selected, for as low as $2.50

Special Ear, Nose, Throat Service

Infections of the ear, nose and throat are a frequent cause of serious local and general disabilities. Head colds are responsible for a greater loss of time and money to people who work than any other sickness. Unless treated by a trained physician colds can become chronic sinus infections and may develop middle ear disease, eventually causing deafness. An examination of the throat and larynx, the nose and connecting sinuses, the ear and tests for hearing by a trained physician, including urinalysis and complete blood and serological tests will cost ____ $3.00

Cost of MEDICAL SERVICES

These cost-controlled services are available to the public, directly, or through their family physicians. The charges are published to indicate their accessibility to all.

Special* HAY FEVER *Service. Hay Fever, Asthma and certain skin conditions belong to a group of ailments classed as allergic disorders. All are due to a disturbing reaction many persons show to pollen, food, dust and other foreign substances. Investigation shows that there are over two million Hay Fever sufferers in this country and at least a half million persons afflicted with bronchial Asthma. We have created a special department to study the cause and treat these and such other ailments as come under this classification. In cases where the cause of this allergic disturbance is discovered by means of appropriate skin tests, it can be effectively treated. Following these tests, from 80 to 90% of Hay Fever sufferers can be relieved. Treatment, however, should begin from 8 to 10 weeks before symptoms appear. The cost for this service is proportionately low.

Special* UROLOGICAL or GYNECOLOGICAL *Service. BY FRENCH LANE.

Two Red Devils—Alfred Letourner of France and Gerard Debaets of Belgium—won the six day bycycle race which came to a dramatic climax at the stroke of twelve at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Riding like a whole carload of devils, they lapped the field four times in the last furious hour of riding and won by three laps. They had enjoyed the lead or had been dangerously close to it from the time the long grind of nearly 2,200 miles started at 9 o'clock last Sunday night.

They not only led in laps but also in points. Safely out in front 15 minutes before the race ended, they raced over the field and won as they pleased.

Audy and Grimm were awarded second place on points. Two teams, Le Page and De Lille and Thomas and Schaller, were tied with them in laps.

Have Victory Habit.

Letourner and Debaets are veterans at the cycling game. The thrill of victory was not new to either of them. It was the tenth race Debaets had won and the sixth that Letourner had captured.

The spectacular finish thrilled the greatest crowd of the week. The bike addicts began arriving early and the galleries were packed to the jamming point shortly after six o'clock. The reserved seats did not begin to fill until along toward the 11 o'clock sprints. When the crowd finally had gathered there were more than 12,000 on hand.

Early in the afternoon, Steve Wagner, the Chicago boy, tumbled, chipping his right shoulder blade, and was forced out of the race. Norman Hill, who had been ill for two days, withdrew from the race at the same time and a new team of Tony Schaller and Bobby Thomas was formed.

They Jam All Night.

The riders jammed and jammed from four o'clock in the afternoon until seven o'clock at night and then after a short let up resumed. The standings changed repeatedly and at ten o'clock just two hours before the finish, Le Page and De Lille and Thomas and Schaller were leading. One lap behind were Letourner and Debaets, Audy and Grimm, Jimmy Walthour and Ritter, and Bobby Walthour and Dempsey.

The last of sprinting was under way only a few minutes when a spill came. Audy, the blond kid from Canada, who by marvelous riding had forced his team into a tie for the lead at ten o'clock, blew a tire and went down. He was out but for a few minutes then jumped back on his wheel.

Rodak Weakens.

Peden and Rodak made a frantic effort to catch the Red Devils. Peden made up ground, but Rodak could not keep up the stiff pace.

Results of the last hour's sprints follow:

1—J. Walthour, Horan, Lands, Schaller.

THEY'LL MAKE IT TOUGH FOR RADIO FANS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 18.—The Chicago Cubs this afternoon made it two in a row against their most highly touted enemies when they took the second of their series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, 14 to 7.

Two members of the Chicago cast each socked four hits, same being Bill Herman, just restored to labor, and Gink Hendrick, who has played almost as much to date as he expected to play all year.

Mr. Herman, as you may remember, was the Cubs' main earthquake sufferer and his shakes were followed by muscular injuries which kept him out of two additional games. Today he was back, muscles supple and mentally unafraid. In connection with his four hits Bill drove in five runs and scored three himself. Gink drove in only one run and scored only one but he topped Bill in that his highest calibred smack was a triple whereas a double was high for Bill.

Grimes Holds 'Em.

Burleigh Grimes pitched the first shift of four innings and did not allow the Pirates to make a run until his team had stacked up a seven run lead. Leroy Herrmann pitched the last five innings, and though touched up merrily, never had anything slimmer than a three run lead.

The Cubs and Pirates will play at Oakland tomorrow morning and will return to San Francisco for another game in the afternoon. Lyle [Fat Boy] Tinning will be one of the pitchers in the morning game and Warneke and Root probably will face the Pirates in the afternoon.

The Cubs filled the bases with one out in the first inning but could not get a run. The fadeout, however, only served to arouse the ire of the champs against the Lefty Birkofer, causing them to pound him for three runs in the second inning and four in the third, after which Lefty went away.

Start With Two Walks.

Campbell and Jurges walked at the outset of the second inning after which Grimes sacrificed. Suhr juggled Birkofer's throw and when Burleigh pulled up at first the bases were filled. Bill Herman singled to center, scoring Campbell and Jurges, but when Grimes tried to reach third he was out, Lindstrom to Suhr to Traynor. On the play Bill Herman took third whence he scored on Cuyler's single to left. Ki stole second but the inning ended when Babe Herman executed the first of his strikeouts.

Hendrick started the third inning doings by caroming a single off Birkofer's glove. Campbell drew his second pass and Jurges struck out. Grimes lined a single to center, Hendrick scoring and Campbell stopping at second. Bill Herman doubled to left center, Campbell scoring and Grimes stopping at third. Suhr allowed Hack's grounder to skid between his heels, the error enabling Grimes and Bill Herman to score. Cuyler flied to L. Waner.

Lindstrom Comes Home.

Lindstrom's double and P. Waner's single enabled the Pirates to score after two were out in the third inning. Suhr's triple in the fourth followed by F. Vaughan's single, gave the Pirates their second run and their last off Grimes.

The Cubs made one off Chagnon in the sixth on Babe Herman's single and Hendrick's triple, and the Pirates matched it in their end with a walk and singles by Chagnon and L. Waner.

In the first of the seventh the Cubs made a run on Bill Herman's third hit, Cuyler's third hit and an error. The Pirates plastered Herrmann for three runs in the seventh on singles by P. Waner and Traynor, a triple by F. Vaughan, a pass to Piet, and Finney's fly.

In the eighth the Cubs stepped out for a cluster of three runs, an error, Hendrick's fourth hit, Campbell's single, a pass to Jurges and Bill Herman's fourth hit doing the business. The Cubs got two and the Pirates one in the ninth.

Ted Lyons Makes First Start This Afternoon.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—The White Sox revived some of their acts of 1932 today and nobody was impressed with the show. All they could accomplish was three home runs, but the New York Giants did a lot of fancy swinging for various distances and had an easy time whipping the American leaguers, 7 to 3, in the opener of a two game series. The Giants, however, will have plenty of grief after April 12, so a victory at this time should not be begrudged them.

It was somewhat of a shock to behold the manner in which the New Yorkers victimized certain White Sox pitchers. Old Sam Jones, for instance, was a cunning fellow for two innings, but in the third was jarred for six hits. Four runs grew from this. A moment later Milt Gaston precipitated another blast of six hits which blossomed into three runs. After this the Giants were halted by Gaston, as well as by Ed Walsh, but the damage was beyond repair.

Ex-Macks Are Unproductive.

The feebleness of the Sox attack can be attributed to the fact that the three ex-Athletics, now members of the Chicago troupe, played no part in the alleged assault against Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell. The net result of four innings against Schumacher was two useless singles by Red Kress and homers by Manager Lew Fonseca and Luke Appling. After Hubbell showed up for a five round workout the hitting was even less boisterous and the ninth rolled around before the third run was scored. Kress did this with a drive out of the park.

The slugging Simmons added further embarrassment to his pre-season hitting average by producing nothing in four attempts. In one of these he was fanned by Hubbell. Simmons also flopped five times straight in the second game with the Cubs last Thursday. In the first game against the Cubs he tuned in with two singles in five chances. Simmons, however, is bothered by his hand injury.

Hits Come Fast, Furious.

The four run barrage that rocked Jones in the third began when Vergez beat out a hit to Dykes. Mancuso singled to right on a hit and run play putting Vergez on third. Schumacher added to the excitement with a single on which Vergez scored. Another single boomed off Davis' bat and Mancuso tallied. Critz singled to score Schumacher. The fourth run scored while force plays were being worked on Terry and Ott.

The Sox waited until the fourth to get gay with young Schumacher. After Haas had been retired on a long fly to Ott, Fonseca uncorked a wallop over the left field wall. Simmons flied to center. Then Appling boosted a drive beyond the right field barrier. Kress tried to prolong the sport by singling and stealing second, but Dykes fanned for the third out.

Hubbell Does O. K.

Gaston managed to retire one man in the Giant fourth before six successive hits were made. Mancuso singled to center and went to third on a double to center by Koenecke, who batted for Schumacher. Davis singled past Hayes and Mancuso scored. Koenecke also scored but was called out for cutting third base. Davis took second on a wild pitch and went home on Critz's double over Kress' head. A wild pitch and Terry's single scored Critz from second with the third run. Ott also singled and Terry lumbered to third, but Dykes stopped the fun with a one-handed pick up on Lieber's drive.

The efficient Mr. Hubbell dropped into the party at the start of the fifth and the Sox immediately made menacing motions.

They subsided, however, without profit when Hubbell fanned Haas and Fonseca with men on first and second. That was all until Kress hit his homer in the ninth.

Ted Lyons, the ace of the Sox staff, will face the Giants tomorrow for at least three innings. Ed Durham also will do another stretch.

Golden Glove Boxers Speed Drills for Intercity Matches

With Golden Gloves' greatest show, the sixth of the series of fights between New York and Chicago, only ten days' distant, the actors in this concluding 1933 performance are hard at work preparing their parts. Twenty-four boys from Chicagoland, the best of a field of 5,000, drilled yesterday at the Illinois Athletic club. At the same time a squad of 33 Golden Glovers went through workouts at the New York News gymnasium.

New York fighters will head west the latter part of this week. They will finish their drills at the Medinah Athletic club. From this group will be chosen eight boxers to support the eight New York Golden Gloves champions in the sixteen fights at the Chicago Stadium on March 29. It is an inflexible rule that the champions meet champions, but the opponents in the eight secondary bouts are chosen by the coaches.

Strong New York Team.

Jack Elliott, coach of New York's squad, believes his team is greater than last year's, which defeated Chicago in Madison Square Garden, 12 bouts to 4. This victory tied the five years of competition at 40 bouts for each city and two team triumphs for each with one tie.

Ticket sales have been brisk. The first intercity bouts were held at the Coliseum in 1928. Nearly 11,000 packed the Coliseum to see the series, which ended in a draw, 8 to 8.

The following year Chicago invaded Madison Square Garden and fought before 19,000. In 1930 the Chicago Stadium was sold out and then, the following year, when the bouts were shifted to Chicago because the Metropolitan A. A. U. refused to sanction out of town referees and judges, Golden Gloves' largest crowd indoors filled the Stadium. Extra seats were installed and with the sale of standing room the total attendance reached 23,400. Last year in New York Golden Gloves set a New York record with 21,000 paid.

Yesterday was a busy day at the Illinois Athletic club. Coach Johnny Behr wound up the first week of drills with a sharp workout which included a maximum of three rounds of shadow boxing, bag punching, and rope skipping, and two rounds in the ring for those who were not prevented from boxing by the doctor's orders. The boys who did not box had their quota of floor drills raised.

This afternoon all are excused from boxing. The physical condition of the boxers is such that they should rest preparatory to starting the final week.

Caserio Only Winning Captain.

Freddie Caserio, captain of the 1931 intercity team, who is the middleweight champion, and Leo Rodak, captain of last year's team, the present featherweight champion, are acting as co-leaders of this year's squad. Caserio is the only Golden Gloves captain who ever won his intercity fight. Caserio whipped Andy Melia, New York captain, in 1931. However, Fred lost to the middleweight champion of France in international competition; so his record is .500.

Max Marek, the light heavyweight champion, who joined the squad over the week-end and will return from St. Viator college Friday, probably will be the team captain on the night of the bouts. Marek hopes to join Caserio in the list of winning captains.

RUTH, RUPPERT AGAIN FAIL TO AGREE ON SALARY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 18.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth's offer to compromise on a $55,000 a year salary as a Yankee player failed to meet with the favor of Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York American league club, today in the second conference of the week between the pair.

Ruppert stuck to his original figure of $50,000 during a 15 minute conference with Ruth and announced after they had failed to come to an agreement that he would not raise it "one penny."

MEET THE BOYS—HERMAN, HERMAN AND HERRMANN!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 18.—It is true that the presence on the Chicago Cubs of Herman, Herman, and Herrmann is going to make it tougher on the radio fellows than on the authors. When you write them, obviously, the one with the extra letters will be as easy to tell as though his name were Schultz, whereas, when you say him, he is just as much of a Herman as a Herrmann, the second "r" and the second "n" being silent.

Herrmann's name is Leroy and L. stands for Leroy, so that helps clear things. But in the case of the other two gents, the skinny right fielder officially is labeled F. Herman and the other one officially is known as W. Herman.

In the one case F. stands for Babe and W. stands for Bill, just as J. is the official initial for Zack Taylor.

Help! This Is Worse.

In the case of the Hermans it would seem logical to call Babe Herman H. Herman, but if you follow that system you would have to call Bill Herman B. Herman, also. So where would that get you? W. or Bill Herman says that the situation isn't as tense as it might be, for if he and F. or Babe Herman hadn't had some practical German ancestors who went in for name shortening the Cubs now would have three Herrmanns instead of two Hermans and one Herrmann.

Aside from their names, there isn't anything confusing about the presence of the Hermans and Herrmann. As most fans know, F. or Babe Herman is tall, blond, and has a prominent Adam's apple which flutters only in case of earthquakes. Babe has light, small blue eyes and Bill, big brown eyes. Bill talks at intervals and Babe talks all the time if he can get a listener. Babe bats and throws left-handed and Bill is right-handed.

Babe was born in California and Bill in Indiana, but, surprisingly, neither one brags much about his nativity.

Hear That Illinois Accent?

Leroy can be told from Babe and Bill because he has rosy cheeks and speaks with a strong Illinois accent, he having been born and reared down state and still lives in Steward, Ill. Not having an Illinois map, we cannot tell you where Steward is, but we know that in Steward they do not kill fellows for kibitzing a card game, or how would Leroy ever have lived to be 24½ years old?

All four of Bill Herman's grandparents came from Germany. Babe doesn't know just which of his forbears were the first to settle in this country. He claims, however, that he is the only child born in southern California who cannot trace a single relative to Iowa.

Babe Herman is married and has two boys; Bill Herman is married and has one boy. Leroy Herrmann is a bachelor.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS
by Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK, March 18.—Now that Mr. Farley, the ex-prize fight commissioner, has settled down to the duties of the postmaster generacy or postmaster generalship, perhaps the citizens may look forward to some pugilistic art in their postage stamps. The first new issue authorized by Mr. Farley is a souvenir number bearing a little engraving of a moss grown farmhouse at Newburg, N. Y., where Gen. Washington had his headquarters for a time during the revolution. Newburg is in the neighborhood of Nyack and Mr. Roosevelt's home town of Hyde Park.

I am sure this picture will make up into a very nice little 3 cent stamp, although it would look a little more authentic if there were some signs hung over the cottage reading "Ye Olde George Washington Eat Shoppe," "Souvenirs," "Police Puppies for Sale," "Antiques," and "Hot Dogs."

Paste this in your stamp book! A new design by that old philatelist, Westbrook Pegler, showing Tunney taking the 14 count.

Most of the cottages where Gen. Washington slept or had his headquarters display such signs these days and the little house at Newburg, as shown in the picture, does not look quite right.

Show Profit on Trick Issues.

An employé of the philatelic bureau in Washington, which is a branch of the postal service, informs me that this bureau is one of the few self-supporting services in the government. When a new commemorative issue is turned out, usually as ballyhoo for some more or less obscure historical date which is being celebrated for carnival purposes by one of our communities, the postoffice department sends out a crew to handle the sales of the first few sheets of stamps.

How the government derives a profit from such sales I am not particularly informed, but I assume the first few copies are somehow certified and then sold to the stamp collectors who regard such stamps as rare treasures and pay for them high beyond their face value.

Some of the stamps commemorate battles, and this being the case it might strike Mr. Farley as quite fitting that the historic battle of the long count should be acknowledged on the anniversary next summer. There are many photographs of this action available for the engravers including two graphic flashes showing Gene Tunney in a sitting posture, with an expression of poetic dreaminess on his handsome features, and Gene Tunney advancing rapidly to the rear in defense of the heavyweight championship of the world, with Jack Dempsey, winded and exasperated, beckoning him to hold still.

They seem to be reaching out into space for pictorial subjects for their souvenir issues, but they would not have to reach very far to justify the selection of this one. After all, the Battle of the Long Count was historic and will be given room in the school histories in years to come if only as the perfect expression of the American temperament in the gorgeous and goofy era. They paid almost $3,000,000, not including scalpers' royalties, for tickets alone for the Battle of the Long Count, and probably as much as $10,000,000 for the incidental expenses of attendance thereat, including transportation, taxi fares, hotel bills, mineral water and stimulants.

It was no trivial affair and since it enjoyed the character of a state function, with a state bureau of Illinois in general charge, and with many governors and other statesmen in attendance, it seems altogether eligible. Pictorially, moreover, the battle scene would be much more interesting than any mere reproduction of some moss grown cottage or some moss grown countenance.

They seem to be veering away from the moss grown countenance as postage stamp art, anyway. Any newspaper editor, given his choice between an action shot from the Battle of the Fourteen Count and a steel engraving of President Garfield would tell you that the action picture would sell more papers. So also, presumably, would it sell more 3 cent stamps, and since the postoffice department is in busi-

Chicago vs. New York

The show always has been a sellout. Make sure you will not be disappointed at the last minute. Get your tickets now. The prices are $1.10, $2.20 and $3.30.

Tickets may be purchased at The Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn from 9 a. m. to midnight, or at Room 530, Tribune Tower, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Address mail orders to Golden Glove Ticket Manager, Chicago Tribune.

FANS MIX TURF, RING IN TALK OF PETROLLE, ROSS

Billy's a Stake Horse, but He's Slowing Up.

With the advent of Charles W. Bidwill in Chicago boxing as head man for the new Stadium Operating company, the boys in the fight business are resorting to turf vernacular in attempting to size up the outcome of the Barney Ross-Billy Petrolle lightweight battle Wednesday in the west side arena. Bidwill has been identified with local race tracks since the sport was legalized here and is secretary of the Illinois Turf association, as well as the Hawthorne race track.

To put it in turf terms, this event finds a stake horse facing an untried youngster. If those who care to bet desire to follow out the practice of the race tracks and stick to form, Petrolle, who has been running in the best company, will be made the favorite over the more or less green Ross.

Consider Past Performances.

That doesn't mean that Petrolle is going to win, however. Time is resting heavily on Petrolle's shoulders and even a stake horse sooner or later finds himself losing to animals of a cheaper classification. Ross has all the earmarks of a real thoroughbred, but his record is nil compared to that compiled by his Italian foe.

Name—	Rounds.	Date.	City.
Ray Miller,	Won—10.	Aug. 26.	Chicago
Frankie Petrolle,	K. O.— 3.	Sept. 15.	Chicago
Bat Battalino,	Won—10.	Oct. 21.	Chicago
Goldie Hess,	Won—10.	Nov. 11.	Chicago
Johnny Farr,	Won—10.	Nov. 25.	Milwau'e
Johnny Datto,	Won— 2.	Nov. 30.	Pittsb'gh
Tommy Grogan,	Won—10.	Feb. 22.	Chicago

A boxing fan could pick that to pieces and show you where Barney should finish lengths behind.

What Billy's Done.

Now, then, look at Petrolle's recent record:

Name—	Rounds.	Date.	City.
Eddie Ran,	K. O.— 2.	Jan. 22.	New York
Bat Battalino,	T. K. O.—12.	Mar. 24.	New York
Bat Battalino,	Won—10.	May 20.	Chicago
Tommy Grogan,	Won—10.	June 15.	Pittsb'gh
Tony Canzoneri,	Lost—15.	Nov. 3.	New York

Those two charts are like Man-o-War's past performance as compared to that of, say—Hidden Thoughts. The latter beetle, if you do not recognize the name, is one of the animals owned, raced and fed by Mr. Bidwill, and which makes an appearance every now and then in a claiming race.

The records, however, do not reveal all of the facts. They do not show, for instance, that Petrolle has passed the top of the hill and is going down the other side. Neither do they show that Ross, on the upgrade, has never been extended and no one knows to just what heights he will climb.

Wednesday's fight marks the return of major professional boxing to Chicago after more than a two month's period of idleness due to the receivership action in connection with the Chicago Stadium corporation.

Milling Meets Pena.

Two other 10 round bouts support the lightweight feature. One is a return engagement which finds Varias Milling, the Filipino, facing Johnny Pena of New York. In their last encounter Milling and Pena stood toe to toe for ten rounds and electrified the crowd that had come out to see Freddie Miller and Tommy Paul fight for the featherweight championship.

The other 10 round number will bring together hard hitting heavyweights, Charley Retzlaff of Duluth and Walter Cobb of New York.

HAWKS TO MEET RED WINGS TODAY IN SEASON FINAL

Chicagoans Begin Planning for Next Year.

The hockey season in Chicago comes to a close this afternoon when the Blackhawks meet the Detroit Red Wings in the Stadium at 3:30 o'clock. Despite the fact that the Hawks are last in the American division while the Red Wings lead the same branch of the National league, the game is attracting more attention than any previously played here this year.

This is due to the fact that the league is watching the fans' reception to afternoon hockey and because both teams are Chicago owned. James Norris, La Salle street grain broker, who owned the Shamrocks, Chicago's representative in the American league last year, operates the Detroit team.

Ends Disappointing Season.

The game will mark the close of the most disappointing season in Blackhawk history, although it was by no means the worst. Previously, however, when the Hawks finished out of the Stanley cup playoffs, they were not unanimously chosen as certain qualifiers at the start of the race.

Difficult road schedules, injuries, and unexpected strength in other parts of the league combined to keep the Hawks from the championship series. The most telling injury was that to Johnny Gottselig, the Hawks' star goal getter, who was out for a month.

"But the most disastrous blow to our hopes," Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Hawk owner, said yesterday, "was the phenomenal rise of the Detroit This club was picked at the start of the year to finish last. It had very few good players and the situation was so desperate that 45 men were tried out for positions. Then a great combination was suddenly developed and it has been unbeatable. This made the American division the more closely matched section of the league. As it is, we have scored enough points to have been third or perhaps second in the Canadian division, had it been our good fortune to be in that section."

Scoffs at Trade Rumors.

Although he is disappointed with the season, competitively and financially, McLaughlin is still strong for his team. Rumors of trades, sales, and releases are just talk, he said yesterday.

"I will always be ready to make a deal if I am sure it will benefit the team," he explained. "But there will be no wholesale shakeup just because we did not finish as well as we were expected to. Talk of trading Gardiner is foolish. Hockey men all over the league selected Gardiner as the best goalie. It would be foolish for me to let a man like him go unless I could strengthen the team in a trade."

Today's game will be the first afternoon contest staged by National league teams. Frank Calder, president of the league, will be here to watch the experiment. Sunday afternoon sports are permitted in all the American cities represented in the league and if today's test is successful New York, Boston, and Detroit may hold Sunday afternoon hockey next fall.

Calder while here will investigate the argument at Boston last Tuesday night when Manager Tommy Gorman is alleged to have struck Referee Stewart. The Hawks forfeited the game, 1 to 0, in overtime.

CANADIENS, BRUINS TIE

MONTREAL, March 18.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens eased themselves into a playoff berth in the international division of the National Hockey league tonight by holding the Boston Bruins to a scoreless tie before a crowd of 10,000.

The draw clinched third place for the Canadiens, putting them four points ahead of the New York Americans. It still is possible for the Americans to gain a tie in points, but the Canadiens' greater number of victories still would give them the playoff place. Boston went into a tie with Detroit for the American group lead.

Martinsville Takes Indiana Title, 27 to 24

Indianapolis, Ind., March 18.—[Special.]—Martinsville defeated Greencastle tonight, 27 to 24, before a crowd of 14,000 in the Butler university fieldhouse to capture the Indiana High Athletic association basketball title. It was the fourth successive time Greencastle has sent a team to the final tourney only to be defeated.

Martinsville, ranked as an outsider, showed marked improvement as the tournament progressed, but was forced to battle throughout to win. Martinsville held a 6 to 5 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the score was tied at 13 all when the half ended.

The new champions drew ahead, 21 to 27, in the third quarter as Norman, Garrison, and Coyle each collected a basket and Cramer made good on two free throws. In the final quarter action was fast. Campbell scored a free throw for Greencastle, but Garrison dropped in two. Campbell sank two field goals in ten seconds, only to have Beasley make the score 25 to 22 for Martinsville.

Campbell scored again for Greencastle and Coyle missed a free threw for Martinsville on Godfrey's foul, but scored a basket a moment later. Norman, Martinsville guard, missed two free throws and Hurst of Greencastle failed on a penalty toss as the game ended. Lineup:

ness to sell stamps of various denominations, I see no serious fault with the suggestion.

Another historical incident closely related to pugilism which deserves such permanence as an issue of souvenir stamps would confer occurred one night at the Brooklyn ballyard when Anton Cermak and a hundred friends from Chicago came on to see Mickey Walker lick Jack Sharkey and were given seats back near the Brooklyn dugout.

Mr. Cermak had ordered his seats and paid for them weeks in advance, but when he arrived with his 100 deserving Democratic workers from Chicago he was offered six seats in the first row and 94 back toward the rear.

"I sit where my boys sit," said Cermak, and retired up the aisle.

It must have taken all of Mr. Farley's tact to mollify Mr. Cermak that night, for he could not dispossess 94 local Democrats from the first row and Cermak refused to sit closer to the ring than any of his party.

Harvey's Pan Would Be Suitable.

Perhaps he did not quite mollify him then, either, for Mr. Cermak did not hop aboard Mr. Roosevelt's band wagon until it was making the last trip around the arena at the convention in Chicago. Men of the Hour are made by incidents like that.

My idea of the commemorative stamp would be a crowd of shadowy figures in the Brooklyn dugout and the large Mr. Farley saying "Move over, boys, and let me in."

If they must have moss grown countenances they could use Mr. Charley Harvey's. True, Mr. Harvey's once luxuriant mustache is not as glossy as it used to be, but it is the only one in the prizefight trade just now, and there must be some old photographs around showing his trailing ivy before he had it bobbed.

There are many incidents in pugilism which might help the philatelic bureau to sell some 3 cent stamps, and for a special agricultural issue there are available some of the most beautiful cauliflowers ever grown. But the still-life stamp seems dull. So do the portrait stamps. Here is a kind of art which offers picturesque action of a sort dear to Mr. Farley's heart.

Stagg Leaves Today for New Job on Coast

A. A. Stagg will leave the University of Chicago today, bound for California and his new job at the College of the Pacific. Will Be Kept Busy.

His schedule for April includes the following events: A dinner in his honor at Sacramento April 11, an American Legion event at Stockton April 12, a luncheon of the Islaam Shrine at San Francisco April 13, a joint luncheon of the Big Ten club and the Chicago Alumni Club of San Francisco April 14; and a Yale dinner the same evening. He will referee the Stanford-California dual track meet at San Francisco April 15. Interspersed are numerous fêtes planned by local clubs and civic groups.

Stagg will return to Chicago May 3 to continue his duties as athletic director on the Midway until June 30, when his retirement becomes effective. His five week visit to the coast is made on his accumulated vacation credit at Chicago, and will mark the first period the Maroons have been without his presence at the head of athletic enterprise.

Successors Here in Spring.

Stagg was host yesterday to a number of his present and former athletes who called to extend their best wishes.

Bowen Loses Title, 33-25, to Roosevelt

Roosevelt won the Chicago Public High School league lightweight basketball championship yesterday by defeating Bowen, south section champion, 33 to 25, in the final round at White City.

Roosevelt, champion in 1927, took an 8 to 1 lead at the end of the first quarter on baskets by Daar and Levy. Jimmy McKirchy sank Bowen's only free throw in this period.

Daar continued to lead Roosevelt's attack in the second period, scoring a basket and two free throws, while McKirchy and Klein divided scoring honors for Bowen. A hook shot by Capt. McKirchy was the only basket scored by Bowen during the first half, and the half ended with Roosevelt leading, 16 to 7.

Roosevelt continued to sink long shots during the third quarter and held a 24 to 16 advantage. Three of Roosevelt's regulars were ejected on fouls in the fourth quarter and Bowen staged a late rally, Celmer leading the attack. Lineup:

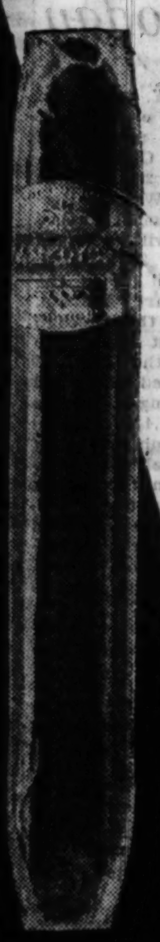
ABE ESPINOSA JOINS COG-HILL GOLFING STAFF

The Cog-Hill Golf and Country club has added Abe Espinosa, formerly professional at the Medinah and Columbian Country clubs, to its staff as a technical expert, it was announced yesterday. The former Illinois and P. G. A. champion will represent Cog-Hill in all tournaments and will give advice to players. Twice a week Espinosa will give talks and demonstrations in the fundamentals of the game.

Espinosa will not be available for individual lessons and will have no connection with the golf shop. These departments will remain under the direction of Joe Jemsek.

Cog-Hill courses are now open for play, but formal opening has been set for Saturday, April 1. On the Sunday following, Espinosa and three other Chicago golf stars will appear in an exhibition match which is open to the public.

Your fellow smokers wrote this advertisement



Our new 5c cigar—Van Dyck "1932's"—has so many good points we didn't know which to advertise. We asked smokers to choose their favorite features. Thousands bought, smoked, voted. A great number marked all six features on the ballot. Value, flavor, and mildness were voted the outstanding points.

Here are the Actual Results of the Vote:—

VALUE was the favorite feature of 68.7%	FLAVOR was the favorite feature of 66.%
MILDNESS was the favorite feature of 57.1%	FRESHNESS was the favorite feature of 52.%
TOBACCO was the favorite feature of 40.1%	SHAPE was the favorite feature of 17.8%

Quotations from Smokers' Letters

Hundreds sat down and wrote us enthusiastic letters. We cannot reprint them all—but below are a few typical comments:

"I have been a steady smoker of Van Dyck Cigars for a number of years, until recently when I, like so many other cigar smokers, was forced to cut down my smoking allowance. In that time I have tried many five cent cigars, but never found one that would satisfy me for a regular diet.

"Needless to say that when a few days ago, I discovered the new Van Dyck '1932's', I was more than pleased and the only thing that could add to my pleasure was my enjoyment of the smooth flavor and satisfaction I had always received from your 'Banker' size."

"Even though you ask to vote on only three of its features, I think its freshness, mildness, and shape also fit in to make it the best cigar I have smoked in years, even comparing it with some of those in the higher price range."

"All six of the circles on your ballot should be marked instead of only three."

"I could not praise your cigars enough in the coupon so I thought I would write you a short letter.

"Van Dyck Cigars are undoubtedly the most pleasing cigars I have ever smoked.

"When I say 'value', I mean 'freshness, flavor, value, tobaccos, mildness, and shape all combined', because the Van Dyck cigar certainly is a pleasing smoke."

"I was checking and double checking on account all six features of your Van Dyck '1932's' are good. The double checking are my three favorite features."

"You have placed a high grade cigar in the reach of all smokers who want a real enjoyable smoke at a minimum cost."

"I have been smoking and trying all the so-called good 5c cigars. I just tried the new Van Dyck and was really astonished at its delicious taste and long filler. Let me say I could honestly check each circle, I think so much of this new Van Dyck."

"On Tuesday of last week, I bought a box of these new Van Dyck '1932's' and after smoking them exclusively the past six days, I have come to the conclusion that your new 5c Van Dyck is by far the finest 5c cigar I have had the pleasure of smoking in the past 20 years."

"I have smoked your cigars but never before have I smoked a cigar so fresh, mild, and value all for 5c. It's amazing, that's what I have to say about your product. I could say a lot more."

SANDE, TRAINER, DRILLS TWO FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

3 Times Winning Jockey, He Changes Role.

Leading 'Em In

THE order of finish of the first three horses in the Kentucky Derbies in which Earl Sande has ridden the winner:

1923—Zev, Martingale, Vigil.
1925—Flying Ebony, Captain Hall, Son of John.
1930—Gallant Fox, Gallant Knight, Ned O.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Earl Sande, who, somehow or other, has come to be looked upon as an integral part of each successive Kentucky Derby, shows up in a new rôle this year.

EARL SANDE.

Instead of booting the winner home as he has done on three occasions and narrowly missed on several others, the Derby this year will find Sande playing the part of a trainer. He is preparing two nephews of Man o' War, owned by Col. Maxwell Howard of Dayton, O., for the $50,000 race which is to be run on May 6.

Sande is most enthusiastic about the chances of his two Derby charges, and to hear him wax eloquent over their respective chances might lead one to the conclusion he is just as determined to get to the top of his profession as a trainer as he was to become the most idolized jockey in America.

Rides Zev in 1923.

While he had tried a number of times to win the Derby it was not until 1923 that he first heard a great Derby crowd shout out "Here Comes Sande." He was aboard Harry F. Sinclair's Zev that year. Two years later he came back and won the Derby on Flying Ebony. Sande's great riding on this occasion was entirely responsible for the victory. Flying Ebony was far from being the best horse in the race.

Sande's third Derby triumph came on Gallant Fox in 1930, the last season he was able to do much riding. He fought off increased weight gamely and made a number of attempts at a comeback, but finally surrendered in mid-season last year and decided to turn trainer.

Greatest Ride on Osmand.

Sande's greatest Derby ride didn't come in any of the three triumphs he rolled up. He gave this marvelous saddle exhibition in 1927. His mount was Osmand, hardly more than a sprinter at the time, yet Sande kept the weak hearted fellow going at top speed so long that he appeared a certain winner a few strides from the line of finish. Sande attempted with all his skill to keep the horse running, but Osmand surrendered to the favorite, Whiskery, in the last few jumps.

Only a fellow of Sande's optimism could grow enthusiastic about the chances of the two Derby colts in his charge. They are Resurrection and St. Stephens. You probably have never heard of either one of them. Certainly St. Stephens is a stranger to you, for he started only four times as a 2 year old last season.

He Might Be Good.

Yet he has that Man o' War blood in him on his father's side of the house, and his mother, Book Lore, is of royal lineage. He certainly has shown Sande something in his private trials in the way of speed and staying qualities or Sande would not have recommended to Owner Howard that he be named for the Derby. Folks who have inspected the colt say he is one of the best lookers in the country, yet whatever Sande has done with him in the way of speed trials and training has been accomplished with but little publicity.

Resurrection paraded to the post eight times last year and could do no better than finish second twice. One of those seconds was a splendid effort, however, against the best 2 year olds of the year. The colt gave unmistakable signs of being a stayer in that race and it is possible that he may come out for his 3 year old campaign as one of the great horses in the division. At least you can't discount his chances in such rich races as the Kentucky Derby, American Derby and Arlington Classic at this early date.

Uses Hildreth Methods.

Sande put in a number of years as the head jockey for the Rancocas stable. Sam Hildreth, one of the most noted conditioners of horses America has ever known, was the trainer of the Rancocas horses at the time.

Sande came to know the Hildreth system from A to Z and during the last years of their association the remark was often heard "Sande is the best horse in Hildreth's stable."

Trainers familiar with the way Hildreth conditioned horses say Sande is going about his new job with the same methods. If he is only partly as successful as Hildreth he will soon jump into the ranks of headline trainers.

HORTON SMITH'S 66 LEADS RADIUM SPRINGS GOLF

Albany, Ga., March 18.—(AP)—Horton Smith of Chicago today scored a 66, six under par, to take the lead in the first round of the Radium Springs 54 hole open golf tournament.

Smith shot his best competitive round in several seasons. His accurate iron play and putting brought him eight birdies and he was above par on only two holes.

Although a stiff wind swept the course, five players bettered par. In second place was Harry Cooper of Chicago with a 68 made through totals of 34 on each nine. Johnny Revolta, the young Menominee, Mich., sensation, held third place with 70. He started slowly with a 38 on the first nine, but came home in 32. Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., and Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., were tied for fourth with 71s.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn of New York and Willie Macfarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., were bracketed with par 72s, while Dick Metz and Charlie Guest, both of Deal, N. J., had 73s.

John Rouse of Chicago and Hugh Moore, the home professional, had 75s. The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

CHARLEY O. GOES TO KENTUCKY FOR DERBY PREP SOON

Tropical Park Mutuel Play Increases Daily.

Miami, Fla., March 18.—[Special.]—Charley O., son of Hourless-Clonakilty, winner of the Florida Derby and one of the favorites for the Kentucky Derby, which is owned by the estate of R. M. Eastman of Chicago, will head for Churchill Downs within the next week, according to Trainer Tommy Taylor. The brother of Mike Hall will be given his final preparation for the $50,000 race over the Downs track, and there is little likelihood of his starting before the Derby unless Racing Secretary William H. Shelley arranges some sort of a condition race for Derby eligibles during Derby week.

As a rule horses that win derbies at winter race tracks are not rated highly, but Charley O. is an exception. He ran one and one-eighth miles in 1:49 3-5 and won going away. He is as fit a horse now as horses can be, and Taylor is giving him a breathing spell at Hialeah Park before shipping to Louisville.

Charley O. can do a lot of things that Mike Hall could not do at his age. It will be remembered that Mike graduated from the maiden ranks in a claiming race. Charley O. is a much better horse than Cathop, his half-brother, was at this time last year, when he finished second to Evening in the Florida Derby. Any horse that can run one and one-eighth miles in 1:49 3-5 and win going away must possess a lot of class.

Mrs. R. M. Eastman and her daughter, Miss Patty Eastman, were on hand to see Charley O.'s derby performance, and both immediately became enthusiastic regarding his chances in the Kentucky Derby. It is doubtful if money could buy Charley O., as Mrs. Eastman has her heart set on winning the Kentucky Derby with him. Of all the 3 year olds that raced this winter he appears by far the best.

Trainer Taylor deserves a lot of credit for Charley O.'s effort here, which netted Mrs. Eastman $10,000. He and his brother Walter, both former star jockeys, worked hard with the son of Hourless, and while they had the Florida Derby in view, it was the Kentucky Derby that they were really thinking of. Last year, as a 2 year old, Charley O. displayed ability to negotiate a route, especially at Latonia during the autumn meeting.

Mrs. Eastman and her daughter plan to make Kentucky Derby reservations to see their colt run, and they will entertain a party of Chicago friends.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who with Mrs. Whitney, spent some time here, is not so well fortified with 3 year olds this year as usual, but he will have representation in the Kentucky Derby just the same. It was always the ambition of the late Harry Payne Whitney to win the Kentucky Derby, and the son is desirous of carrying on. Young Jack Healey has some of the Whitney horses here. Jockeys Sonny Workman, Alfred Robertson, and Sylvio Coucci, who look after the mounts for this establishment and the Greentree stable, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, are riding at Tropical Park.

The scene shifted to Tropical Park from Hialeah Park last Monday. For a while it appeared as though Hialeah would race five more days, as Tropical Park was said to be short of funds.

Just when things seemed darkest, however, Frank Bruen, former manager of Arlington Park, Chicago, and several other tracks, as well as assistant manager at Douglas Park, Louisville and Latonia, went to the bat and came forward with the necessary cash. Now the Tropical Park meeting is going over with a bang. On the first day the pari-mutuel machines handled $86,666, and the following day the handle jumped to $110,000. Then on the third day $116,000 passed through the machines.

It was a relief to the horse players here when Starter G. R. [Buddy] Wingfield took over the reins at Tropical Park. Starter George Cassidy, a fine fellow but apparently not destined to become proficient as a starter, had about every horse player broke as the result of his bad sendoffs, especially in the 2 year olds races, and Wingfield's work is a pleasure to watch. Wingfield is from Latonia, Ky., and is a former race rider.

Among the arrivals from Havana was John J. McGraw, who is devoting very little attention to baseball now. John watched the Brooklyn Robins training here, but he can be found at the race track every afternoon.

Hialeah Park is one and one-eighth miles in circumference. Tropical Park's track is only one mile around. Tropical Park originally was a dog track, but Bruen worked wonders with it.

Robert W. Collins of Lexington, Ky., owner of the stallion Lee O. Cotner and a racing stable here, received word from his home that his brood mare Ruby had foaled a chestnut colt by Lee O. Cotner.

Bob Shelley of Louisville, racing secretary at Sportsman's Park, Chicago, as well as the Canadian Northwestern circuit, is serving as clerk of the scales at Tropical Park. At the end of the Tropical Park meeting he will go to Sportsman's Park to make ready for the spring meeting there.

Jack Howard, who has met with phenomenal success beginning last autumn at Lincoln Fields, has disposed of Spud and the 2 year old, Little Joyce, a bay filly by Wildair-Christophone. Jack plans to invade Kentucky first this summer and then give Chicago a whirl. In addition to his own horses he has those of the Coldstream stud and he will win his share of races wherever he goes.

IN KENNEL CLUB SHOW

Star Bowlers End Tourney for Chicago Title Today

The finale of one of Chicago's most exciting bowling tournament in years will be staged this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Madison-Kedzie Arcade, when George Morrison, Lee Calloway, Lloyd Strouse, and Stewart Watson roll their last six game block in the Greater Chicago Bowling Alley association match tournament. The winner will journey to New York to meet the winner of the Joe Miller-Joe Falcaro match for the national title. Falcaro is the present champion.

Watson goes into the final round with a lead of 159 pins. In the six games last night he rolled 1,429, boosting his total pins to 6,522. The others rank as follows: Strouse, 6,363; Morrison, 6,289; Calloway, 6,007. The high games were a pair of 257s by Watson.

Marie Warmbier increased her lead over Agnes Higgins to 69 pins in their contest for the match game championship last night at the Harding alleys. Miss Warmbier had 1,161 for six games and Miss Higgins 1,120. Miss Warmbier's total is 2,278 and Miss Higgins' 2,209.

Not to be outdone by their colleagues in Chicago and the east, members of the Wisconsin Bowling Alley Owners' association are now sponsoring an individual match game tournament. The winner is to bowl Hank Marino of Milwaukee for the Wisconsin championship. A 5,090 total for 24 games netted Burt Barkow of Milwaukee first place in the first round of the eliminations.

The entry deadline for the third national Acacia bowling tournament has been extended to next Saturday. The event will be held here at the Stevenson & Schalk Recreation, 757 East 79th street, beginning April 1. One hundred teams are expected to compete.

Errors Cost Him 30 Pins in Singles Event.

Columbus, O., March 18.—[Special.]—Three errors cost Rudolph Knade of Chicago the chance of winning the American Bowling Congress singles championship here today. Knade took the lead in the singles with 691, but could have added more than 30 pins to his total had he picked up his spares.

Opening with a 223 game, the Chicago youngster, a member of the Queen Recreation team, did a right-about-face for three frames and missed easy spares. However, he managed to "bunch" strikes in the closing innings and scored 214.

Winds Up with 254.

Knade then wound up with a sizzling 254 and a 691 total. That score has been high enough to win 17 A. B. C. championships, but is not expected to stand this year.

Al Sindelar, veteran secretary of the Illinois and Chicago Bowling associations, had the chance of a lifetime when he opened his singles series with 278, high game of the tournament. Sindelar dropped to 150 in the second game and wound up with 641.

Heim in Second Place.

Joe [Zip] Heim of Milwaukee took second place in the singles early tonight with a 681 total. Heim had one bad break which kept him out of the lead. He scored games of 213, 232, and 236, but missed the No. 7 pin spare in the last game, between a row of strikes. Heim's hit was a good one and the No. 7 wobbled but refused to fall.

Despite a mediocre 889 opener, the Hayes Bar-B-Q five of Chicago piled up a 2,821 total and went into eighth place late tonight. The J. W. Thornsons counted 2,762 to be second high among the five Chicago teams scheduled. Other Chicago scores were: Fleischman Yeast, 2,649; Leo A. Schueneman's Old Timers, 2,569; Leo A. Schueneman Juniors, 2,463.

Michigan	40	Minnesota	12
Northwestern	27	Iowa	6
Illinois	17	Chicago	4

Michigan's swimming team maintained its maritime supremacy over the Big Ten last night at Bartlett gymnasium by scoring a decisive victory in the 23d annual conference meet. The Wolverines captured four of the eight individual events and placed in three others to gather 40 points against Northwestern's second place 27.

It was Don Horn of Northwestern, however, who accomplished the only record breaking of the evening. The Evanston sophomore, leading the breast stroke field, covered 200 yards in 2:30.2, two-fifths of a second faster than his time in the preliminaries Friday night, which in turn had smashed all collegiate marks for the event. The earlier Big Ten record had been held by Howlett of Northwestern at 2:35.6 and the older national collegiate record had been held by Schmieler of Michigan at 2:32.4.

Cristy High Point Man.

Jim Cristy of Michigan, Olympic place winner, was high point man of the meet. He won both the 220 yard and the 440 yard free style events. His time in the 440, however, was 6.3 seconds slower than the mark he made in the preliminaries Friday evening, when he lowered the Big Ten record of 5:04, held by Ault of Michigan, by covering the distance in 5:01.4.

The third Big Ten record made during the two day carnival of swimming, Michigan's time of 3:03.4, in the medley relay, recorded during the preliminaries Friday night on time trials, was not equaled last night. The record breaking Michigan trio of Schmieler, breast stroke; Lemak, back stroke; and Renner, free style, won the event at 3:04.2 last night.

The other Michigan point winners were Dick Degener, Olympic diver, who performed beautifully to win his specialty; Lemak, who placed second to Horn in the breast stroke; Fred Kennedy, second to Cristy in both the 220 and 440; John Schmieler, third in the 100, and the 400 yard relay squad, second to Northwestern.

Purple Sets Relay Mark.

The Purple 400 yard relay team, composed of Bernard Hahne, Roger Debenham, Paul Troup, and Art Highland, broke the mark in the event with a performance of 3:40.4. The record in this event, new in the Big Ten for 20 yard tanks, had been set Friday evening by Illinois at 3:43.8. Art Highland of Northwestern took the 100 yard free style event in :53.2, two-fifths of a second slower than Al Schwarts's record mark.

The 150 yard backstroke race went to Max Moulton of Minnesota, whose time of 1:43.5 was 3.9 seconds slower than the record made by Dick Hinch of Northwestern in 1930. Illinois took third place honors in the meet by winning seven places.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Punta Gorda, Fla., March 18.—The month of March revives the bird fan's interest in migration, the most distinctive phase of all bird life. As soon as this month has slipped past the half way mark on the calendar, and the first migrants have come up from the south to stay in Chicagoland until autumn, birds become a living calendar to thousands of nature lovers.

In Chicagoland the spring migration means the arrival of the first southern robin, the first melodious call of a bluebird, the thrill of the first spring song of a redwing blackbird—all early arrivals eager to take over the northland before spring has been able to put a flush of green on the trees.

Then the next big event is the arrival of the purple martins. The Canadian goose may be the most spectacular herald of spring, with his sonorous honking and noisy talking on sky boulevards. But to the thousands of midwestern bird fans the purple martin is the bird whose arrival is most eagerly awaited.

South of Chicago the first scouts of the martins may appear during the latter part of March. Peoria nature lovers have reported the martins arriving the last week of March in years past.

Whereas in Chicagoland the month of March has an especial significance to the nature lover and bird fan interested in the great migration, in Florida the spring migration means an entirely different thing. Migration in Florida means the arrival of birds which just keep right on going northward or else the departure of winter residents for their summer homes in the north. Right now Florida is playing host for a short time to feathered travelers from the Caribbean, among them being the well known black and white warbler or creeper.

Later in the spring hundreds of these black and white warblers will be seen in Chicagoland. Since about March 4 the black and whites which wintered in the West Indies have been slowly working their way up the Florida peninsula. Lighthouse keepers are able to fix the date when these small migrants leave Cuba and arrive at the southern tip of Florida because many of the long distance flyers unfortunately strike lighthouses at night. In Florida the black and white warbler is a regular slowpoke, because he will not average more than 20 miles of flying per day, just about the slowest migration rate of any North American birds.

But those robins which appear on Chicago lawns early in spring are even slower in their northward migration over a part of their route. The robin's average temperature of migration is 35 degrees, which means that the bird checks in soon after the streams open up and before vegetation has made any marked advance. To keep pace with the slow thermometer rise the robins coming up the Mississippi in February and March may average only 13 miles a day until they reach the upper Mississippi valley.

Big Ten track and field athletes who competed in the conference championships last week will meet with teams from the best nonconference colleges and universities in the central states in the Armour Tech relay carnival at the University of Chicago fieldhouse next Saturday.

Entries have been received from Indiana, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Chicago, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and Marquette in the university division. Performances at the central intercollegiate conference meet at Notre Dame last Saturday indicate that the Big Ten teams will find stiff competition. The central intercollegiate meet was featured by the performance of Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette sprinter, who covered 60 yards in the record time of 6.1 seconds.

Oliver Olson, Northwestern football player, who took second place in the conference high jump, will be up against Murphy of Notre Dame, central champion, with a mark of 6 feet 4⅝ inches. Notre Dame, Marquette and Pittsburgh will be represented by relay teams which should push Indiana hard in the one and two mile relays.

In the college division, about twenty of the smaller schools will enter teams, including Lake Forest, Illinois State Normal, Kansas State Teachers, Beloit, Crane, and North Central. A sprint medley, consisting of a 440, two 220s and a half mile, will be the outstanding event on the college program.

Injury Ends Carr's College Track Career

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—Bill Carr lay in a hospital bed tonight—through with collegiate track competition. Fractures of both ankles and the right pelvic bone, suffered in an automobile accident last night, brought an abrupt end to the college athletic career of the University of Pennsylvania star.

The world's record holding Olympic 400 meters champion—a perfect running machine—was hurled from the running board of an automobile, on which he was standing, when it collided with another car in the suburb of Bala.

Trip to Europe Doubtful.

Whether the injuries would force Carr to cancel his European tour, which he intended to make after his graduation in June could not be foretold by his close friend, Lawson Robertson, veteran coach of Pennsylvania and American Olympic teams.

"If it were his ankles only, and not the pelvis, Bill's chances of running again would be much better," one hospital official said, recalling that once before Bill had shattered the bones in his ankles.

That was when he competed in the high jump for the high school in Pine Bluff, Ark., his home. Bill recovered to become one of the most brilliant 440 yard and 400 meter runner in track history.

Although Carr also suffered numerous abrasions and contusions, physicians said his general condition was good. He probably will be in the hospital for four weeks.

Hurt in Touchball Game.

Carr recently had recovered from a knee injury received last fall in a game of touchball. In his early appearances in indoor meets this year he showed the effects of the injury, but Coach Robertson slowly brought him around to championship form.

Robertson had planned to use Carr in the one mile relay race at the Pennsylvania relays next month and confine the rest of his running to the 100 and 220 yard dashes in dual meets and in the intercollegiate meet.

It had been expected that Carr again would meet Ben Eastman, the Pacific coast runner. Carr, in his rush to the Olympic championship and a world's record of 46.2 at 400 meters, defeated Eastman three times.

Mangin Beats Sutter; Keeps Indoor Title

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Gregory S. Mangin, Newark youngster with one tennis specialty—that of winning indoor championships—had his great day of the year on the courts again today.

For the second straight year the boy who never has reached the same peak in outdoor tennis play, battered his way to the national indoor singles championship, defeating Clifford B. Sutter of New Orleans in the final round before a cheering crowd of 3,000 in the Seventh regiment armory, 6-1, 6-3, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2.

It's Different Indoors.

Outdoors Sutter is ranked No. 3 nationally, while Mangin stands far down at No. 7. Sutter outdoors always has proved the Newark player's master, but indoors the situation is reversed.

As long as Mangin today stuck to his own game the former intercollegiate champion from Tulane, despite his beautifully rounded play and perfect control, was at the champion's mercy.

Playing with terrific power through the first two sets Mangin allowed Sutter only four games as he met guile with force. He drove the southerner to the back court and came up to the net to smash everything that came his way for kills or placement drives either forehand or backhand.

Shields on Sidelines.

Sutter couldn't approximate Mangin's battering thrusts, but has a disconcerting faculty for making an opponent play his own style of game. Yesterday in qualifying for the finals Sutter turned the cannonading Frank Shields into a painstaking rival who forgot all about speed and sought only to match Sutter's accuracy in a battle of wits as well as strokes. As a result Shields, finalist against Mangin last year, found himself on the sidelines today.

After resting an hour or so Sutter came back with Dr. Eugene McAuliff of Yonkers to win the doubles championship in an even longer five set match with Dr. Lawrence W. Kurzrok and John H. Pitman of New York. The scores were 6-4, 6-8, 6-3, 10-8, 6-4.

Although tired Sutter played well against the pair which turned in the biggest upset of the doubles play yesterday by eliminating the top seeded team of Frank Shields and George M. Lott Jr. of Chicago. Dr. Kurzrok also put R. Berkeley Bell, formerly of Austin, Tex., out of the singles play earlier in the week.

REDS, 13; ATHLETICS, 8.

Tampa, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds celebrated the opening of their exhibition season today with a smashing 13 to 8 victory over the world champion Philadelphia Athletics. Every Cincinnati player except Ernest Lombardi made at least one hit in the contest. Coleman was the leading Athletics batsman with a triple and a double.

RED SOX, 5; PHILLIES, 2.

Sarasota, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—Although hit freely, Bob Weiland, Dusty Rhodes, and Johnny Welch today prevented the Philadelphia Nationals from bunching them, and the Boston Red Sox won their second start of the spring exhibition series, 5 to 2.

TREASURY O. K. TO OPEN MORE CLOSED BANKS

Capital Repaired, Says Secretary Woodin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Many banks now closed will open their doors again during the coming week, restored to a sound business basis by the injection of new money from the pockets of stockholders and directors.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin revealed today that 40 banks, not permitted to reopen at the end of the banking holiday, already have had their capital structures restored and are awaiting formal permission to resume business. Stockholders and directors have dug down into their own private funds to make good losses and rejuvenate the banks, he said.

Other Measures Being Taken.

Meanwhile two other plans for bolstering the general banking system were going forward here. The Steagall bill, making the facilities of the federal reserve system available to non-member state banks, was ready for final action in congress on Monday and the federal reserve board was discovered to be studying three methods of forcing all commercial banks into one national system.

Referring to the movement among stockholders and directors to put new money and life into their closed banks, Secretary Woodin declared: "It is running like wildfire over the whole country. I am astounded by it and it is one of the most heartening things in the whole situation."

Belief in the future and pride are impelling the owners of banks which were not licensed to reopen to step forward and put their institutions in running trim, according to Woodin. Behind the movement is hard headed business sense as well, he added.

Move by Bankers Themselves.

Secretary Woodin made it clear that he was not referring to the issuance of preferred stocks by banks, which, under the emergency law, might be bought by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He was speaking, he said, only of cases in which stockholders and directors have dug down into their own pockets for money with which to wipe out losses sustained by their banks, rebuild the capital structure, and put them in shape for reopening.

The next two or three days will see the first licensing of these restored banks, he said. Forty have already completed their internal arrangements and are awaiting their licenses. None have as yet actually received permission to resume business. When they do reopen they will be on an unrestricted basis.

Woodin hailed the whole movement, which, he said, were under way within the last two or three days, as fresh evidence of the country's faith in the banking solution worked out during the last week. "Trust in the future means everything," he said.

For Unified System.

Three ways in which congress could force all commercial banks in the country into one national system are being studied by the federal reserve board. The three ways are:

The use of congressional power over the currency to prevent the circulation of checks drawn on state banks.

The abolition of state banks on the grounds that it is necessary to protect the national and federal reserve currencies.

Revamping of the present system on the theory that 10,000 bank failures during the last 10 years are a hindrance to interstate commerce.

For Later Action.

Immediate action along any of these lines does not seem probable, because the administration is understood not to contemplate sweeping bank revisions at the present session of congress. The reserve board, however, is continuing to study the problem of unification.

At present less than 7,000 out of the country's 19,000 banks are members of the federal system. Unification would mean that between half and two-thirds of existing banks would be replaced by national institutions or branches of national institutions.

All of the three possible lines of action being considered by the federal reserve board are believed to be constitutional, it is said. Members of the board are reported not to have reached a decision which method they favor.

Big Currency Power.

Power to tax checks on state banks out of existence and thus to abolish state commercial banks is said to be contained in the central government's having the sole right to provide a national currency. Checks, it is argued have come to furnish almost 90 per cent of the country's circulation medium, and congress could levy a tax against one kind of check just as it levied a tax against state bank notes and thus abolished them when the national bank system was set up.

Similar reasoning is used to justify the abolition of state banks on the grounds that their existence and issuance of checks encroaches on the currency system of the country as set up in the national bank and federal reserve systems. The right of congress to establish the monetary system implies the right to protect it.

Under the interstate commerce clause of the constitution congress might declare that a banking structure giving rise to the present great number of failures was an obstruction to commerce and thus abolish it in favor of a new scheme, according to the third plan.

Files $225,217 Tax Lien Against Chris Paschen

A federal income tax lien for $225,217.41, covering taxes owed the government by Christian P. Paschen, former Chicago building commissioner, for the years 1927, 1928, and 1930, was filed yesterday in the office of the register of deeds in Kenosha, Wis., by Gregory T. VanMeter, collector of internal revenue. Paschen is now under sentence of two years in Leavenworth prison for income tax fraud. He has appealed the case.

AUSTRIA FIGHTS TO SAVE LEADING BANK FROM RUIN

Cabinet Meets; Vienna Is Alarmed.

VIENNA, March 18.—(AP)—The Austrian cabinet struggled today with the grave problem of saving important banks from collapse and at midnight, after a continuous session that began at 11:30 a. m., issued a communique saying that the deliberations were still continuing with no conclusion in sight.

The statement did not mention any specific bank, but unofficially it was reported that the cabinet members discussed the situation of the Niederoesterreichische Escompte-Gesellschaft, or Lower Austrian Discount society, who liabilities aggregate 400 million schillings (currently about $56,000,000).

The discount society, one of the strongest banks in central Europe, was founded in 1853. In recent years it specialized in electric and power enterprises.

Also a Holding Company.

Its fusion with the Vereinigte Elektrizitaets Aktiengesellschaft (United Electric Joint Stock company) in 1930 made it a holding company as well as a bank. The society's capital was 54,000,000 schillings (currently about $7,560,000); its deposits 51,000,000 schillings (about $7,140,000), and its reserves 42,000,000 schillings (about $5,880,000). Of the 340 million schillings it owes to creditors, its indebtedness to the Austrian National bank is 300 millions (about $42,000,000).

Offsetting this huge indebtedness is 352,000,000 schillings owed the bank by debtors, only a few of whom are considered able to pay at present.

The bank itself owes only $4,000,000 to foreign creditors, but figures were not available on the foreign indebtedness of its subsidiary enterprises, such as power and steel companies.

The importance of the firm to the average resident of Vienna is heightened by the fact that since 1922 Vienna's Municipal bank has deposited its surplus funds in the discount society.

Move Toward Hitlerism.

Meanwhile the machinery of Austrian politics moved another notch today toward complete synchronization with the Hitler movement in Germany.

In Innsbruck Richard Steidle, leader of the Fascist Heimwehr in the Tyrol, proclaimed that the Heimwehr is determined to coöperate to the fullest extent with "every organization flying the banner of fight against bolshevism."

In Gratz the official organ of the Styrian Heimwehr proclaimed the patriotic necessary for a common front of the Heimwehr and the Austrian Nazis similar to the common front of the Nazis and members of the Steel Helmet war veterans' association in Germany.

Confiscates Nazi Paper.

The dictatorial government of Chancellor Dollfuss, which does not yet include a Nazi minister, today confiscated an edition of the official Nazi paper, charging it with making insulting remarks about the cabinet and also laid an iron hand on Socialists at various points.

Two leaders of the Socialist Shutzbund were arrested on suspicion of high treason and a battalion of government troops assisted by the gendarmerie ransacked the whole town of Kapfenberg for Socialist arms.

Nazi students in Vienna emphasized developments by raiding Schulerstrasse in the center of the city and smashing the windows of Socialist newspapers, crying "Judah perish!"

Owners of Burned French Liner Sue for Insurance

PARIS, March 18.—(AP)—The owners of the passenger steamer Atlantique, which burned in the English channel early in January, today filed suit against the insurers seeking payment of 170,000,000 francs [about $6,800,000], of which 12,000,000 francs was held by New York companies.

The insurers proposed to repair the vessel, while the owners claimed the right to surrender the hulk and collect full insurance.

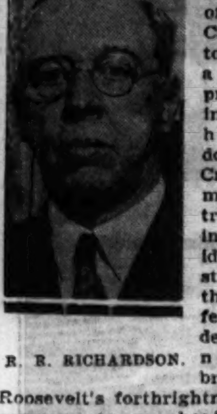
White House Vigor Inspires New Half Million Dollar Plant Here

CHICAGO CARTON DECIDES TO GO ON WITH PLANS

Reacts to Roosevelt Action.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

President Roosevelt's speed, efficiency and force in handling a national crisis are responsible for the decision of Ralph R. Richardson, head of the Chicago Carton company, to go ahead with a big construction program, involving more than half a million dollars, in the Crawford development of the Central Manufacturing district. President Richardson stated last night that the general feeling of confidence in the business world brought about by Roosevelt's forthrightness had led his company to go ahead at once with plans that had been under consideration for several months.



R. R. RICHARDSON.

As a result of Mr. Richardson's reaction to Roosevelt's action, construction will start as soon as working drawings can be completed and bids taken, which should be in about six weeks, on one of the largest and finest industrial plants that has been erected in the middle west during the last two or three years.

The new factory of the Chicago Carton company, which is a subsidiary of the United Biscuit company, will be entirely air conditioned, with insulated walls, double glazed windows, and will have acoustically treated ceilings. It will have a complete cafeteria for its 300 employés and will be placed in an attractive setting, surrounded by landscaped grounds, with trees, shrubs, flowers, and lawns. The exterior walls will be of face brick, with stone trim.

To Break Ground May 1.

President Richardson stated last night that he expected ground will be broken for the plant on May 1. He hopes to be able to move about Nov. 1 from the present leased location at 4433 Ogden avenue, where the company has been for the last two decades.

Contracts were signed by A. G. Leonard and H. E. Poronto, trustees of the Central Manufacturing district, and Mr. Richardson of the Chicago Carton company whereby the latter acquires a site comprising 275,000 square feet at the northwest corner of Crawford avenue and District boulevard, a private street, to have forty feet of concrete paving, at the 42d street parallel.

It has a frontage on Crawford of 500 feet and on District boulevard of 550 feet. The full frontage and about half the depth will be utilized for immediate construction and the remainder reserved for future expansion.

An additional frontage of 1,200 feet north along Crawford and averaging 425 feet in depth was covered by option, with the expectation that the carton company will utilize this tract later for other directly related activities. The land under option extends north to the recently opened Crawford avenue viaduct and bridge.

Will Eliminate Vibration.

On the Crawford avenue side the building will be set back seventy feet from the street line to allow for a projecting office and tower section, and appropriate landscaping.

The office section, approximately 168x60, while considered an integral part of the whole, will be attached by an insulation joint, inserted to eliminate machinery vibration. The six story tower, to be 105 feet high, will conceal the plant's water tank.

A complete cafeteria and kitchen will be on the first floor of the office unit, as well as lobby, lockers, etc. General and private offices will occupy most of the second floor.

Switch tracks from the Chicago Junction railway, Inner Belt line, connecting with every railroad in the city, will extend along the entire rear of the building, where an enclosed train shed will have a capacity of ten cars. There'll also be parking space and platforms for motor truck service and deliveries.

Has World-Wide Market.

According to President Richardson, although the company manufactures all of the cartons used by the Sawyer Biscuit company and the other fifteen plants of the United Biscuit company, that is only part of its output. It manufactures all kinds and sizes of cartons for concerns throughout the world.

Brokers in yesterday's transaction were L. M. Nicolson and Lester W. Porter of Hodge, Nicolson & Porter. Attorneys were Winston, Strawn & Shaw, and Cooke, Sullivan & Ricks. A. Epstein, structural engineer, is making the plans for the new factory.

PLAN 70 ACRE FAIR TOURIST CAMP AT HARVEY

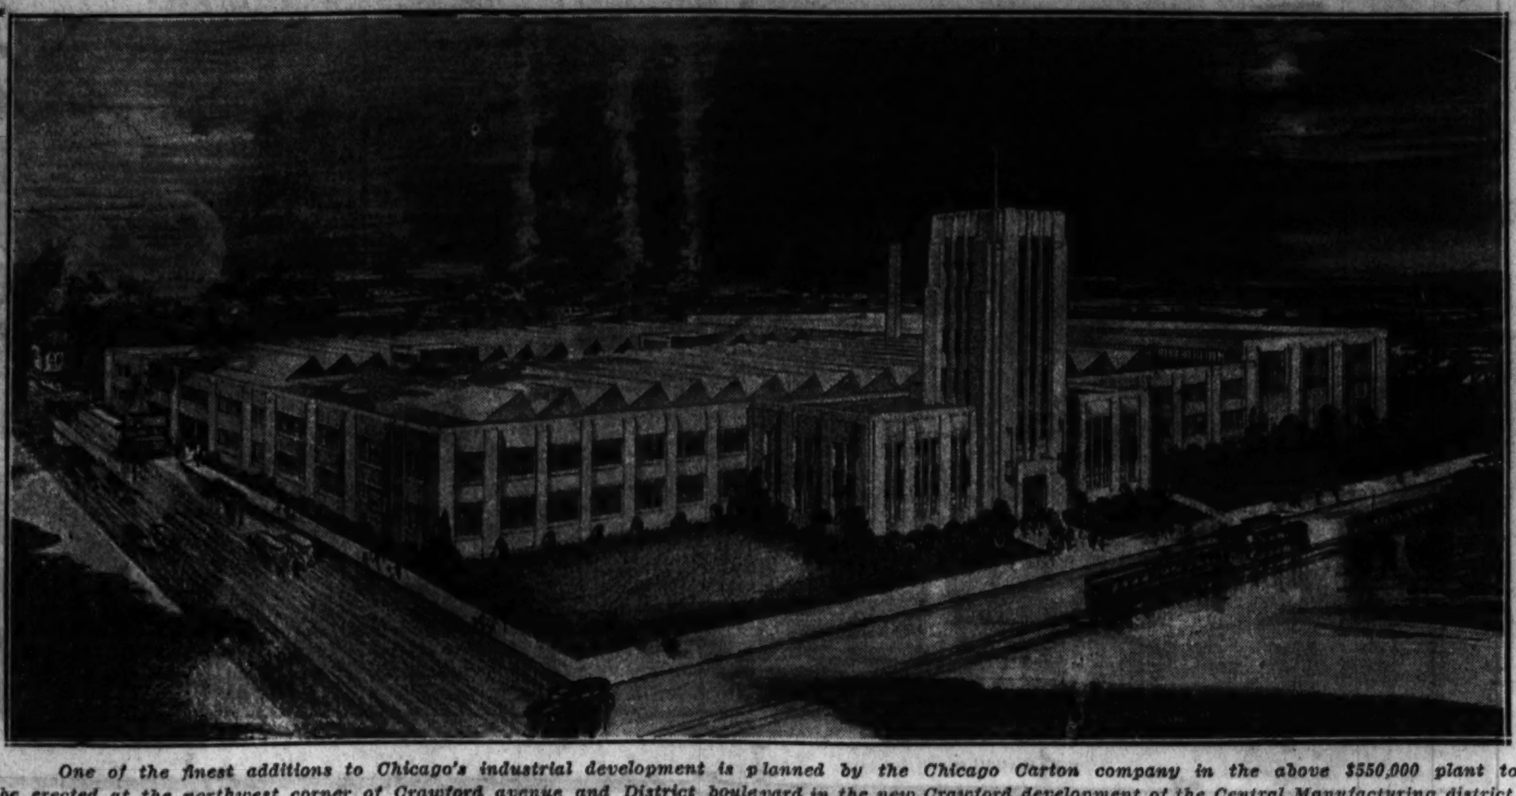
Plans are being prepared by Olsen & Urbain, Chicago architects, for 700 small four room units, which are to comprise A Century of Progress exposition housing project, scheduled for the north end of Harvey, at the junction of 147th street and the Dixie highway, to be known as Fair City.

According to Lawrence Scudder of Lawrence Scudder & Co., certified public accountants, who is interested financially in the project, the Illinois Central will provide a special station to be known as Fair City and also make special rates to the fair grounds.

Every one of the 700 units will have four one room suites, each with a fully equipped bathroom, with hot and cold water. Each room will occupy a corner of the building and will have cross ventilation through two windows.

The city of Harvey, it is stated, by official resolution, has agreed to provide police and fire protection. Fair City will have a laundry and a barber.

LARGE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT FOR SOUTHWEST SIDE



One of the finest additions to Chicago's industrial development is planned by the Chicago Carton company in the above $550,000 plant to be erected at the northwest corner of Crawford avenue and District boulevard in the new Crawford development of the Central Manufacturing district. This huge structure will be entirely air conditioned, with insulation and double glazed windows and acoustically treated ceilings. Exterior walls will be of face brick with stone trim. A. Epstein, structural engineer, designed it. Charles Morgan made this perspective.

70 YEAR OLD REAL ESTATE BROKER GETS BACK INTO HARNESS

Seventy year old Elmer E. Baldwin, who retired in 1922 after thirty-seven years' active real estate business, has gone back into the realty field and already has had several good sized properties turned over to him for management by owners who knew him during his previous business activity. Mr. Baldwin has opened offices at 1401 East 53d street and is doing business as the Hyde Park Real Estate Service. He is manager and N. H. Heiberg, for ten years with Carroll, Schoendorf & Boenicke, is assistant manager.

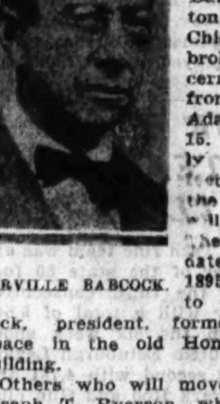
"I went out when other young men were going into the realty business," he said yesterday. "Now I'm going back when some of them are going out."

Mr. Baldwin, who was born in Philadelphia in 1863, came to Chicago just prior to the 1893 world's fair. For thirty-five years he had a realty office at 35th and Indiana. He retired eleven years ago and devoted his time to managing his own properties. He and Mrs. Baldwin live at 5459 Hyde Park boulevard.

MORE FIRMS TO MOVE INTO NEW FIELD BUILDING

Several more firms will move into the new Field building, La Salle and Adams, between now and May 1, according to Robert Carpenter, manager of Chicago's largest office structure. Babcock, Rushton & Co., one of Chicago's pioneer brokerage concerns, will move from 112 West Adams on April 15. Approximately 6,000 square feet of space on the fourth floor will be used. The firm, which dates back to 1895, according to Orville Babcock, president, formerly occupied space in the old Home Insurance building.



ORVILLE BABCOCK.

Others who will move shortly are Joseph T. Ryerson, who will have offices on the 16th floor; Dempsey, Detmer & Co., investment securities, who will move from 120 South La Salle and occupy space on the eighth floor, and the Prudential Insurance Company of America, who also will be located on the eighth floor.

Leases Entire Six Story South Michigan Building

The entire six story building at 1407-13 South Michigan avenue, containing 84,000 square feet of floor space, formerly used as a furniture exhibition, has been leased by George Voris for a term of years. The building will house the Chicago district headquarters of a nation-wide program for the coördination of general industry and merchandise distribution.

This property, one of a series contemplated, will house the engineering, mechanical, and office force divisions after extensive improvements are completed. William M. Ryan was lessor. Ralph E. Petersen, vice president of McMenemy, Inc., was the only broker.

AWARD 49 CONTRACTS; $854,600 FOR WEEK; $773,000 AT FAIR

Contracts awarded in Chicago for the week of March 10 to 16, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled forty-nine, with a combined cost of $854,600. As in previous weeks most of this is at A Century of Progress, the total awards at the fair numbering thirty-five, with a total of $773,000. The city hall building department celebrated St. Patrick's day by closing yesterday, so building permit figures for the week were not available.

Realty Board Warns Members Against Long Term Leases

Realtors of Chicago are being cautioned in an official statement issued last night on behalf of the board of governors of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board to avoid long term leases. According to Henry R. Spiekerman, chairman, the realty organization expects increased employment and rising prices in building materials to bring about greater costs in building operation.

HENRY C. SPIEKERMAN.

"In urging short term leases," said Mr. Spiekerman, "we have in mind that there is a normal increase of 70,000 population yearly in Chicago. In the face of this gain there's been practically no building for the last four years.

"Now, however, there's been a marked change in economic conditions throughout the country. National programs for the employment of thousands are being launched. Already we're noticing a decrease in vacancies.

"With a reduction of vacancies and increased employment we'll soon witness rising prices in building materials and higher costs of building operation. Therefore we're advising all members of the Chicago Real Estate board to avoid entering into long term leases at present rental prices.

"Realtors entering into long term leases at today's figures are apt to find themselves unable to meet the cost of operation which we believe is bound to rise with increased activity in the renting field."

SALLY KORSHAK LEASES SHOP IN TOWER COURT

Rejuvenation of the old time structure at 804-08 Tower court, formerly occupied by the Marinello company, now under way, already has resulted in the leasing of the first floor shop and many active inquiries for the twelve apartments on the upper floors, it was announced yesterday by Cook & Jackson, Inc., agents of the property.

Sally Korshak, who is a sister-in-law of Stanley Korshak of the Blackstone shop, and who once operated a shop in the Hyde Park hotel building, has leased the first floor space in the Tower court property and will open a womens ready to wear store on or before May 1. The lease is for two years.

The building is being remodeled from plans by Frederic B. Schmidt, architect. A. L. Jackson & Co., who remodeled the Charm house property adjoining, have the general contract. The building will contain twelve modern studio type suites of one, two and three rooms, with extra large living rooms, some as large as 20x20, wood burning fireplaces and extensive closet space. The fourth floor apartment will have a roof terrace.

Owners of the property to the west are to coöperate with the owner of the former Marinello building in construction of a formal garden in the center of the block bounded by Tower court, Chicago avenue, Pearson street and Rush street.

The new quarters adjoin the offices of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company of which Mr. Lodwick is vice president and general counsel. Porter Fox, former head of a La Salle street investment house, is vice president and one of the five trustees of the Forman Realty trust, which is handling the reorganization of close to $15,000,000 of bonds of George M. St. Wilfrid's Roman Catholic Church.

Please advise me regarding the condition of a bond issue due next November issued through Thomas McDonald & Co., 11 South La Salle street, Chicago, on property owned by the Franciscan Fathers, St. Wilfrid's church, Woonsocket, S. D. Interest defaulted last November.—G. E. V. B.

Thomas McDonald & Co. make the following statement regarding this issue: "The total indebtedness of St. Wilfrid's church is $62,500. The property securing these bonds represents a cost of over $225,000. The church building is the second largest Catholic church in South Dakota, being exceeded only by the Catholic cathedral at Sioux Falls.

"The parish is in charge of the Franciscan Fathers, whose headquarters are at St. Francis college, Loretto, Pa. It is the intention of these fathers to make Woonsocket their headquarters for that section of the country.

"Owing to the extremely low prices for farm products it is practically impossible to collect any money in country places at this time. The result is that the parish is not able to pay its interest charges promptly.

"The half yearly interest due Nov. 1, 1932, has not yet been paid, but the pastor has written us stating that he hopes to pay this in installments in the next two or three months. All of the interest prior to Nov. 1, 1932, has been paid.

"While we cannot make any prediction at this time, we feel that St. Wilfrid's church eventually will be able to pay its indebtedness. At present the financial world is in such a chaotic condition that it is very hard to make a prediction at this time."

FIELD GARDEN FLATS HAVE LIVEST SPRING INQUIRY IN YEARS

The liveliest spring inquiry for suites in the Marshall Field Garden apartments experienced in several years is reported by Gardner Brown of the Marshall Field estate.

"On Wednesday, close to a thousand persons came to look at our apartments," he said last night. "That's a big crowd for a single day. We can probably account for this in a way by our recent announcement of reduction in rents by an average of 18 per cent.

MRS. JOHN R. WINTERBOTHAM JR.

"The 628 apartments range in size from 3½ to six rooms. Early in the season the most interest was shown in the smaller flats, but now we're getting inquiries for the five and six room suites."

While the Field Garden apartments are unfurnished, a home furnishing contest conducted by the Field estate is giving the homeseeker a clear idea of how these suites look when decorated and furnished by an expert and still with an idea of economy.

As told in this section of THE TRIBUNE of Sunday, March 5, the four Chicago women invited to take part in the contest are Mrs. John L. Cochran Jr., Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. John Root and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. They have completed their work and the furnished apartments will be open to the public from now until May 1. The public is invited to vote on which of the four they would prefer to live in.

Would Take Foreclosure Out of Court.

Approximately three-quarters of a million bondholders throughout Illinois during the next few days will receive communications from practically all of the various bondholders' protective committees operating in this state urging immediate support of the Ward-Adamowski bill now before the general assembly at Springfield. This proposed legislation provides for high speed foreclosure sales by the sheriff instead of the present slow and costly court action, thus effecting a tremendous saving for bondholders, it is claimed, in fees and other legal and court expenses.

NOBLE B. JUDAH.

This is the first objective of a campaign to speed up and cheapen the cost of reorganizations sought by the group of bondholders' protective committees recently formed in Chicago at the suggestion of Rufus C. Dawes, to standardize and simplify the real estate mortgage bond situation.

Each committee is sending out its own letters to its bondholders but all are along similar lines. Following are excerpts from one: "Your committee has reached a point in its work where it must call upon you to make an immediate and strong personal effort. This effort consists in safeguarding your interests as a real estate bond holder through the legitimate exercise of your influence as an Illinois voter.

Speed and Economy.

"You may not be aware that many bills introduced at this session of the Illinois legislature would, if enacted, cause serious detriment to you as a real estate bondholder. On the other hand, the Ward-Adamowski bill is the only comprehensive measure so far introduced to help your situation. It will expedite and reduce the costs of property reorganization and mark a long step forward in solving the whole real estate bond program."

The letter then urges the bondholder to write four letters—one to his senator and one to each of his three representatives—asking them to support this legislation.

"Unless this remedial legislation is passed, the work of your committee will continue to be hampered seriously," the letter continues. "We urge that you take immediate steps to the end that your committee can serve you more effectively. Your committee, in coöperation with similar committees representing in the aggregate several hundred thousand bondholders residing in this state, is supporting the passage of this bill."

Lists Advantages.

According to Noble B. Judah, coauthor with Amos Miller of the Ward-Adamowski bill, the proposed legislation will accomplish the following things for real estate bondholders:

1. It will make foreclosure on commercial and rental property simple and inexpensive, but will not change the present period of redemption for farms and homes.

2. It will speed the reorganization of properties securing real estate bond issues by giving the bondholders their security in a short period of time.

3. It will eliminate the necessity of slow and costly court procedure. It will generally do away with the necessity for receivers and thus eliminate an important item of expense.

4. It will greatly reduce the necessary legal work, with a corresponding reduction in fees.

Eliminates Receivers.

5. Damage to properties generally resulting from receivership operation will be eliminated.

6. It will relieve our overworked courts of the vast burden of work and of responsibility for supervising the activities of a vast number of receivers to which they are subjected by our present foreclosure procedure. This would leave the courts free to conduct their usual work with dispatch.

7. It will bring relief where relief is most needed—to the hundreds of thousands of small investors—by aiding the liquidation of their frozen holdings. It also will help to liquidate the real estate securities in our banks and thus materially aid in relieving our banking situation of a serious handicap on its road back to normal conditions.

The letter is attached to a map of the state and Cook county showing state and county districts, and also a list of the members of the 58th general assembly and their addresses.

HYDE PARK LEASE.

The corner store in the Shotwell building, at the northeast corner of 55th street and Blackstone avenue has been leased to Leo Silverman and M. Line for a delicatessen shop. E. Hector Coates, of the Hyde Park office of Swan, Lorish & Caspers, Inc., was broker.

CITIZEN GROUP FORCES DRASTIC CUT IN TAXES

Hammond Shows How It Is Done.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A diary kept by the Hammond Taxpayers' association discloses an interesting story of how a small group of citizens, starting from scratch, formed themselves into a powerful organization which was able to force tax reductions which will save the community 39 per cent on taxes payable in 1933 and possibly 50 per cent on the bill to be paid in 1934.

Frank L. Hoess, secretary of the organization, says that the total cost of carrying on the fight for tax reduction to date has been less than $100.

The first date in the taxpayers' diary is April 14, 1932. On that day around 50 citizens in the Indiana industrial city held a meeting to discuss plans for a fighting organization. The leaders were: Leon Granger, who is the present president of the group; William J. Whitney, an attorney, and Mr. Hoess.

Draw Up Tax Program.

The next entry is that of April 28, which says "taxes, budgets and valuations discussed." On May 5 a committee of five members was appointed to remonstrate against property valuations. On June 23 a report was made on the expense of operating the city of Hammond, and recommendations concerning a tax program covering all local taxing units were drawn up.

Then results began. An entry dated July 14 tells of a horizontal decrease of 20 per cent in the 1932 taxable valuations for North and Calumet townships. On Aug. 2 an overflow representation of taxpayers induced the Lake county board of tax review to defer action on the state tax board's order, which had authorized an increase of 10 per cent on assessment for lots, lands and improvements. On Aug. 4 the board unanimously voted to reject the 10 per cent increase in 1933 taxable valuations.

Then the entry of Aug. 12 tells this: "Lake county's total taxable valuation next year will be approximately $112,000,000 less than for the last year. The total valuation for taxable purposes next year will not exceed $367,000,000; that for this year is about $478,500,000."

Economies Are Enforced.

Later dates develop the story. On Sept. 10 the Hammond board of education met with the taxpayers' budget committee to discuss drastic economy measures. Sept. 16 saw a $343,000 cut in the board of education school levy, with the proposed school budget $1,079,425, as compared with $1,422,520 in 1932.

Sept. 20 finds this entry: "Taxpayers' association appeared before the county council today. Drastic reductions were made. The budget, which the department heads had requested, amounted to $2,203,500. The accepted budget is expected to total only $1,190,000, a saving of approximately $1,000,000."

An entry on Oct. 11 states that the tax bill for 1933 would be $1,097,720 less than for 1932—or a reduction of almost 30 per cent. The next day's entry stated that the taxpayers of Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting and Gary would pay almost $4,000,000 less taxes in 1933 as a result of reduced levies in valuation.

On Oct. 25 there was an entry stating that the Lake county taxpayers' 1933 tax bill totaled $11,671,858, compared with $15,879,975 in 1932—a saving of $4,208,117.

Fight to Limit Levy.

Entries of later dates told of efforts to enforce the $1.50 maximum tax levy law passed by the state legislature—an effort in which the taxpayers have won only partial victory to date.

Then on March 6 the entry stated that economies resulting from legislation passed by the general assembly had resulted in a reduction of the state tax rate from 15 cents to 8 cents. With other economies and a slight adjustment in local government budgets, it was estimated that it would be possible to cut taxes 50 per cent or more next year from the peak year taxes.

Finally, an observation entered on March 8 reads: "This association has been watching the effect of these drastic reductions, and we find that every governmental unit from the lowest to the highest in the entire country is functioning more efficiently and no complaints have been heard."

Mr. Hoess says that the organization now has about 500 active members. Dues are 50 cents a year for those who can pay and nothing for those who can't.

Officials Finally Coöperate.

Mr. Hoess says that when the organization first began to function it found government officials stubborn, but they have now fallen into line and are coöperating. He suggests that the best way to fight tax eaters is to organize small units which are able to keep a close watch on officials and expenditures in the local districts. A central organization, he says, should be formed to coördinate the efforts of the individual units.

One benefit from small units working together, he says, is that it prevents one individual getting control of an organization which he might use to further his own ends.

Mr. Hoess says the organization has established a tax school which has been successful. The school has offered a 10 weeks' course and expects to continue for 8 weeks. Citizens are informed as to tax problems and told about governmental conditions. Robert J. Brown has been one of the principal speakers in the school.

5 More Banks Near Chicago Set to Reopen

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Fourteen more state banks, five of them in the Chicago area, were given permits to open tomorrow by State Auditor Barrett last night.

Included in the list were two banks at Elmhurst, the York State bank, and the Elmhurst State bank, the First State Bank of Matteson, First State Bank of Round Lake and the State Bank of Lake Zurich. All are to reopen without restrictions. Others on the list are:

WASHBURN—Washburn State bank.
FULTON—Fulton State bank.
HARRISBURG—First Trust and Savings bank of Harrisburg.
NORRIS CITY—Norris City State bank.
COLUMBIA—Monroe County Savings Bank and Trust company.
PHILO—Philo Exchange bank.
FRANKLIN—Franklin State bank.
NEWTON—The Peoples' State bank of Newton.
PAYSON—Payson State Savings bank.

Ten reserve member banks reopened throughout the district yesterday. Those whose names were not previously announced are:

BLOOMINGTON, IND.—Bloomington National.
PORTAGE, WIS.—First National.
WISCONSIN RAPIDS, WIS.—Wood County National.
WINFIELD, IA.—Farmers' National.
ELKHART, IND.—First National.
WYANET, ILL.—First National.
BROWN CITY, MICH.—Brown City Savings.

Three southern Illinois banks, in the St. Louis reserve district, were granted licenses. They are the City National Bank of Centralia and the First National Bank of Litchfield and the First National Bank of Benld.

Conservator at Waukegan.

William D. Jones has been named conservator of the First National Bank of Waukegan. He was formerly cashier of the bank. The bank opened on a restricted basis Friday and received $105,000 in new "cash box" deposits the first day, Jones said.

Charles N. Stevens, president of the City National Bank and Trust Company of Evanston, yesterday sent out a letter to depositors in that bank in which he stated the application for a conservator was mere the "first step in a thorough reorganization." His letter implied that additional capital will be raised. A further announcement as to the availability of old deposits was promised.

Rush More Permits.

"The public reaction to the progressive reopening of banks has been excellent up to date," State Auditor Barrett said. This is evidenced by the fact that, when a bank reopens for business the depositors and the people of the community are expressing great confidence in it. In practically every case which has come to our attention the deposits have exceeded the withdrawals as soon as the bank has reopened. We intend to carry out our progressive opening plan quickly but carefully, so that this confidence will continue to be justified.

"I want to emphasize again," he added, "that because a state bank has not yet opened does not mean that it is not a good bank. The administrative work necessary to determine the condition of the various banks is stupendous, and we are determined to make certain that when a bank is allowed to reopen under the progressive plan it is a perfectly solvent bank, capable of continuing in permanent operation."

Delay Action on Gold.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago announced yesterday that it would continue to accept gold and gold certificates until further notice without invoking penalties for hoarding.

The statement followed the expiration Friday night of the period set by Secretary Woodin during which persons might surrender their holdings and escape the penalties on hoarding set by the emergency banking bill. During the period 80½ million dollars in gold and gold certificates was turned into the Chicago reserve bank.

On Friday the Chicago reserve bank received seven millions of returned gold and four millions of gold certificates.

MUCH GOLD TURNED BACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—The response to the government's order in regard to the return of hoarded gold has been so gratifying that it may not prove necessary for the President or the secretary of the treasury to invoke the penalties provided in the recently enacted banking bill, it was learned today.

Despite this, however, names of those who have withdrawn gold, bullion or gold certificates and have failed to bring them back are being listed by the federal reserve and other banks and are being forwarded to Washington, the period of grace having expired yesterday.

It is a fairly sizable list, although greatly reduced in the course of the last ten days, in which time 228 millions in gold, bullion and gold certificates have been returned in this district alone.

N. Y. BANKS SHOW LARGE DECLINE IN ALL DEPOSITS

New York, March 18.—(AP)—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House, the first issued since March 4, today disclosed a considerable decline in net demand deposits of members, reflecting withdrawals prior to the lifting of banking restrictions on Monday.

Because of the order against the reopening of the Harriman National bank, this institution was eliminated from the statement. Net demand deposits aggregated $4,912,485,000, against $5,463,124,000 on March 4. Time deposits totaled $717,081,000, against $752,449,000 two weeks ago. Surplus and undivided profits were off slightly at $872,130,400.

Changes in the statement follow: Total surplus and undivided profits, $941,000 [decrease]; total net demand deposits [average], $550,279,000 [decrease]; time deposits [average], $35,268,000 [decrease]; clearings, week ending today, $3,293,831,129; clearings, week ending March 4, *$3,492,900,945.

SINGLE BUREAU TO RULE TRAFFIC ROOSEVELT AIM

Plan to Cut Costs of Regulation.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—A giant federal transportation bureau to conform to the ideas of President Roosevelt is now being worked out by his advisors, headed by Secretary Roper.

The setup as now contemplated but subject to change would include these five divisions, each headed by one man responsible directly to the chief of the bureau:

First: Railroads, buses, trucks, and pipe lines.

Second: Telephone, telegraph, and cables.

Third: Shipping board, barge lines, and intercoastal shipping.

Fourth: Radio.

Fifth: Aviation.

There also is a possibility, it was said today in administration circles, that the bureau of public roads might be moved from the agriculture department to the transportation division.

Key of Economy Program.

This bureau, it is understood, is to be the keystone for the general reorganization of the government by which the President plans to produce extensive curtailment of expenditures and at the same time increase efficiency and coördination.

The setup conforms generally to the indication that came from Warm Springs while President Roosevelt was there in January that a unified transportation agency was envisioned for the near future.

Almost daily Secretary Roper has been conferring with various experts on transportation matters, including Walker D. Hines, director general of the federal railroad administration during the Wilson administration, and one who is being speculated upon to head the new bureau. These conferences have given rise to a belief that the new agency would be established as a part of the department of commerce.

Setup of Divisions.

Under the setup which is now being considered, the third group would include the shipping board and the inland waterways corporation of the war department, together with the commerce department's lighthouse service, its bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection, and its coast and geodetic survey.

The fourth division would take over the functions of the radio commission, and the fifth the activities of the department of commerce's aeronautics division.

To make room for the new transportation bureau in the huge commerce department building, it is understood there is consideration being given to transfer of the bureaus of fisheries and mines to the interior department.

Expect Quick Action.

Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, upon whose shoulders rests much of the responsibility for assembling the reorganization program, said today he would begin conferring next week with cabinet officers with a view to bringing to a head the studies they have been charged with making in their own departments. The final proposed realignment will be laid before President Roosevelt in time for him to transmit it to congress before adjournment, under present plans.

There it must lie for 60 legislative days before becoming effective, unless congress disapproves or acts to make it immediately effective. Since the plan is for congress to adjourn in May, which would not permit the program to become effective until next year, it is asumed by those working on the reorganization that immediate approval will be asked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—Foreign exchanges were irregular, but the dollar continued to preserve its stability. Sterling moved ⅞ cent in dollar valuation to $3.45⅝, which placed it once more at the level obtaining on March 3, the last day of business before the national banking holiday.

Francs, on the other hand, gained ¾ point to 3.94¾ cents, guilders were up 3 points to 40.44 cents, and Swiss francs rose 1 point to 19.41½ cents.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—Freight car loadings dropped 40,014 cars during the week ended March 11 to strike a total of 437,313 cars, according to figures made public today by the American Railway association. The week's total represented a reduction of 137,668 cars below the same week of 1932 and was 295,767 cars below the level of the corresponding week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week of March 11 totaled 139,417 cars, a decrease of 20,839 cars from the preceding week, and 37,069 cars under the corresponding week in 1932. Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 154,423 cars, a decrease of 7,629 cars from the preceding week and 30,699 cars below the corresponding week last year.

Grain Shipments Decline.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 18,127 cars, 9,734 cars below the preceding week and 9,068 cars below the corresponding week last year. In the western districts alone loadings totaled 8,190 cars, a decrease of 4,942 cars compared with the same week last year.

Forest products totaled 18,262 cars, 1,978 cars below the preceding week and 5,705 cars under the same week in 1932.

Coal Loading Gain.

Loading of coal amounted to 95,321 cars, an increase of 3,155 cars over the preceding week, but 46,131 cars below the corresponding week in 1932. Coke loading amounted to 4,672 cars, 191 cars below the preceding week and 2,544 cars below the same week last year.

Live stock loading amounted to 10,801 cars, a decrease of 3,224 cars from the preceding week and 5,997 cars below the same week last year. In the western districts alone, totaled 8,190 cars, a decrease of 4,942 cars compared with the same week last year.

"FORTY MILLION DOLLAR" INSULL CONCERN HAS $500

The Inland Power and Light corporation, "forty million dollar holding company," has only $500 in cash on hand and all its subsidiary company stocks are pledged for bank loans, according to the report submitted to the federal court yesterday by Leonard S. Florsheim.

The company is an indirect subsidiary of the Middle West Utilities company. Receiver Florsheim told Judge Walter C. Lindley that some of the company's books are missing and no detailed examination of the records for irregularities has been possible.

He said that the company had paid $467,000 to the Commonwealth Light and Power company, its parent, for a note and then had returned the note. A further investigation of the transactions is being made.

Negotiations for a reorganization of three other Middle West subsidiaries, United Public Service, United Public Utilities and Southern United Gas, were authorized yesterday by Judge Lindley upon petition of Receiver Samuel W. White.

BUSINESS SLOWS UP VERY LITTLE, INDEXES SHOW

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Statistics appearing during the last week on freight car loadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output showed a declining tendency, according to Moody's index figures for these factors.

It was notable, however, that the entire period covered by these statistics fell in the banking holiday, when business was functioning under extraordinary handicaps.

These indexes are corrected for seasonal variation, that is, if each change in the actual reported loadings or production amounted to the usual change for the period the index itself would be unchanged.

DETROIT BANKS REPORT A DEAL TO REORGANIZE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 18.—Two committees were in Washington today endeavoring to come to some decision satisfactory to depositors, directors and government officials for reorganizing the First National bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

An oral agreement on a reorganization plan was reported to have been reached tonight between Jesse H. Jones, director of the R. F. C. and the committees. The agreement could not be put into writing immediately, it was stated, because it required the sanction of Detroiters not in Washington. In a statement Mr. Jones said:

"The major difficulties in the way of providing banking facilities for Detroit are approaching settlement and there is reasonable assurance that a substantial amount of deposits will be available in a very short time."

Both banks will reopen on Monday, with permission of the federal conservators, for distribution of another 5 per cent of deposits, amounting to $32,000,000. The sum that may be withdrawn represents deposits of three classes—first, the remainder of the two 5 per cent payments authorized last Monday but which had not been withdrawn; second, the so-called "trust accounts" deposited after Gov. Comstock proclaimed that they were to be kept separately and be available at any time; and, third, deposits made on the same basis following the reopening of the banks under President Roosevelt's order.

Firmer Early Prices React Later.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—There was little about today's stock market to try the nervous systems of either bull or bear. Opening prices were irregularly higher and the first hour saw some progress on the upside. Publication of the weekly carloading figures, showing a decline of nearly 24 per cent from the preceding week, caused a swerve to the downside about mid-morning, and constructive forces were never quite able to get things going again.

The turnover was slightly in excess of 575,000 shares.

Closing prices were mixed, with most of the group leaders slightly higher. The carriers offered stout resistance to such selling as came their way on the score of the freight revenue report. Such speculative favorites as Delaware and Hudson, New Haven and Union Pacific finished showing net gains of 1 to more than 3 points.

Report Plan to Aid Roads.

Reports from Washington that railroad relief is to be the next step in the President's reconstruction program was the secret of the strength in the rail department. Many traders are looking to the carriers to set the pace for the next forward movement of the market, when it does come.

The sharp setback in wheat prices acted as a drag on the farm implement shares, which furnished such a brilliant performance for the first session after the market's eleven day holiday. The group wound up about where it started. Mail order shares, which usually move with the implement group, did little or nothing.

Reports of big preparations for resuming operations in the automobile plants of Detroit and elsewhere in the middle west, failed to stir up any unusual enthusiasm for the motors.

Rate Outlook Hampers Utilities.

Talk of "inevitable" rate revisions discouraged buying in the utilities division, although the shares of this section fared no worse than those of others in the main.

Another late spotlight favorite to keep to the background was the so-called "repeal" share department. The success of the dry political diehards in slowing up the administration's plans to rush the beer legislation through congress is the leash on these issues, which lately were going so strong.

Sugar stocks moved to the fore once more, American Sugar duplicating its high for the year. Higher prices on the commodity helped buying.

MOTOR TRUCKS EXPECT $500,000 BEER BUSINESS

The passing of legislation legalizing the sale of beer is expected to add $500,000 annually to the revenues of motor truck operators in Illinois. The Illinois Motor Truck Operators' association yesterday completed a survey which indicates that at least that amount of business will be made available.

Owners of truck lines already have added equipment to take care of large bulk shipments of the brewing industry. Walter E. McCarron, manager of the association, which includes 400 trucking contractors, said yesterday that a number of contracts have been signed.

"One operator told me that he has obtained one contract involving the shipment of 26,000 kegs," Mr. McCarron said. "Our survey of potential retail fields in the brewing industry indicate an annual consumption for the state of more than 4,000,000 barrels. Most of these shipments will fall within the short-haul classification."

State Rulings Aid Insurance to Stay Sound

New York, March 18.—(AP)—All rules since the banking holiday with respect to the limitation of policy loans and suspension of future dividends of life insurance companies, have been promulgated to preserve the integrity of insurance protection as a whole, and not because of the financial condition of individual institutions, Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, said today.

"The true rôle played by the $103,700,000,000 insurance now in force in this country, and its effect on the nation's social and business fabric, has been uppermost in the minds of all state insurance departments," Mr. Ecker said in an interview. "In so far as the Metropolitan is concerned we are naturally permitting a greater proportion of cash to accumulate during the present emergency than we normally would.

Forced to Do Banking.

"Life insurance companies were required to take over some of the functions of banking when the financial crisis was forced to a head by the hysteria of our people. Substantial loans on life insurance policies were made by all the companies.

"The emergency restrictions now in force here, which prohibit loans and cash surrenders, except for the payment of premiums, pay roll purposes, and in cases of extreme need, are no reflection on the financial stability of life insurance companies, as State Superintendent George S. Van Schaick has emphasized.

"Inasmuch as it is the practice of the New York companies to act on their dividends at the beginning of a year, the order of the superintendent of insurance prohibiting the declaration of future dividends has no practical effect at this time.

"All cases of personal needs as well as pay roll demands are being taken care of in the exact spirit of the ruling."

Warns of Debt Legislation.

But a note of warning was sounded by the Metropolitan executive regarding legislative trends. Any legislation, he maintained, designed to force a settlement between debtors and creditors—and which would involve a scrapping of the principles of existing contracts—contains elements of great danger.

"Such a development would instantly destroy the rules which now obtain in placing a valuation upon real estate, among other things," he explained, adding that some 36 per cent of the investments of the country's life insurance companies was in loans secured by mortgages on real estate.

Pointing out that 65,000,000 policyholders—more than one-half the entire population of the country—were concerned in the financial problems which are involved in the situation, Mr. Ecker asserted that a spirit of genuine coöperation prevails among all interested parties.

"It will be recognized," he said, "that a horizontal reduction of mortgage interest rates can't possibly aid the individual who is unable to pay anything and it weakens the capacity of the loaner to extend consideration to those in distress."

Predicts Greater Prosperity.

Reasserting his belief in the fundamental soundness of the country, the veteran head of the Metropolitan, almost 50 years in the service of this one organization, recalled that he personally had lived through five panics.

"In all of these I have seen values violently affected," he added, "but with good management and patience all legitimate enterprises were able to survive and emerge stronger than before. The same thing will happen in our present crisis.

"The investments of the life insurance companies, by and large, are so varied that the financial difficulties of one particular industry cannot affect the picture as a whole. The inherent soundness of the investment holdings of our life insurance companies cannot be questioned."

Poll of 6,000 Farmers Finds Them Opposing Relief Bill

Six thousand farmers in 434 counties in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, and Colorado have expressed their opposition to the proposed new government allotment plan of farm relief but favor the government's intervention to provide mortgage relief. The poll was taken by agricultural committee of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, and the result was a surprise to the grain men.

PALMER OFFERS NEW INSURANCE CODE THIS WEEK

Explains His Ruling on Dividends.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

A two months' survey of the insurance situation in Illinois has been completed and legislation aimed at reforming the insurance code will be introduced at Springfield on Wednesday or Thursday of this week, Superintendent of Insurance Ernest Palmer said yesterday.

"The bill to be introduced is along the same general lines as the letter that I sent out to insurance companies Feb. 13," Mr. Palmer said. "Particular attention will be paid to investment policies of insurance companies."

In the letter referred to, Mr. Palmer instructed Illinois companies to report to him monthly, giving certain information not contained in previous reports.

Among other things the superintendent demanded full explanation of any transaction in which any officers of the company were financially interested in the property bought, sold, or exchanged, either personally or as officers of the organizations dealt with.

He demanded, also, a statement showing whether any of the company's officers were personally interested in any of the loans made or whether they were related to persons to whom loans were made.

Explains Dividend Ruling.

Commenting on his recent order imposing a moratorium on policy loans, Mr. Palmer explained that although stock companies are forbidden to pay dividends as long as the policy loan moratorium is in force this rule does not apply to mutual companies as is the case in New York.

"In the case of mutual life insurance companies," he said, "the dividends go to the policyholders and simply cut down their premium payments. I, personally, see no reason for forcing mutual companies to cut off these returns to policyholders. Discontinuance of dividends in such cases would merely mean increasing the policyholders' premium rate.

"With stock companies the case is entirely different. The stock is held by others than policyholders. There is no reason in the world why the stockholder should continue to receive a dividend when the policyholder is being compelled to forego the privilege of borrowing on his policy or surrendering it for cash."

New York Ruling Not for 1933.

Chicago representatives of mutual life insurance companies incorporated in New York yesterday were explaining to anxious policyholders that the recent ruling by Insurance Superintendent George S. Van Schaick of New York state cannot affect policyholders during 1933, and that by next year the emergency order will probably have been removed. Mr. Van Schaick ordered the discontinuance of dividends by all life companies, stock and mutual alike, as long as the moratorium on policy loans and cash surrenders remained in force.

At the Chicago office of the Equitable Life Assurance society it was learned that 1933 dividends have already been declared. Under the Van Schaick order dividends already declared may be paid.

Similar reports came from the Chicago representatives of Home Life Insurance company, Mutual Life Insurance company, Guardian Life Insurance company, and New York Life Insurance company. Metropolitan Life Insurance company reported that dividends have been declared to May 1, 1934.

All of these companies have made some reductions in the rate of dividends paid to policyholders. The cut in some instances runs as much as 20 per cent below 1932 dividend rates.

Common Stock
(Listed Chicago Curb Exchange)

Famous for its fine quality German style brews, Berghoff is one of the oldest, largest and best known breweries in this vicinity. It has been in continuous operation since 1887.

Orders now on the books will keep the plant running at fullest capacity for many months to come. Prior to prohibition earnings averaged over $321,000 per annum. With increased plant facilities and enormous consumer demand, future earnings outlook is unusually good.

These shares offer a most inviting speculation, being low in price (present market about $6 per share) in relation to past earnings record and future possibilities.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—Bond prices on the stock exchange were irregular today in quiet trading, with the total turnover amounting to only $4,250,000. The last Saturday trading in the listed bonds market occurred on Feb. 25, when heavy liquidation was in progress and total transactions reached $12,771,000.

Dealings in United States government bonds were particularly light during the two hour trading period today, the total of $554,000 in this group being the smallest since Feb. 11.

U. S. Issues Irregular.

Although sharply higher for the week, United States government bonds today were off 13-32ds to up ¼ of a point. Of the eleven active issues, five were off 4-32 to 13-32, three were unchanged, and three were up 1-32 to ¼ of a point.

Foreign loans failed to develop a definite trend. The various German issues showed minor irregularities. French government loans declined fractionally, while Belgian government issues were up half a point to a point. Japanese government loans were bid up fractionally, as were United Kingdom 5½s and Italian government 7s. South American issues were dull.

Corporation Bonds Steady.

Trading in domestic corporation bonds was strictly routine, with most of the issues which were at all active showing inconsequential net changes. Most of the major price changes occurred in issues traded in for the first time since the prebanking holiday market.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS REACT AFTER ADVANCE

After a sharp advance early in the week in which gain of 25 points or more were recorded, shares of Chicago banks eased in the later trading. Continental Illinois National commanded a price of 81 during the week, but closed at 61 bid, 65 asked. First National finished at 95 bid and 100 asked after touching 150 in the first bullish spurt at the beginning of the week. Harris Trust closed at 285 bid, 300 asked, ex dividend.

Legislation Trying to Guide Prices Said to Lower Them

"It is market history that legislative attempts to influence price movements usually have a depressing effect," says Harvey Williams of Thomson & McKinnon. "The one outstanding exception was in June, 1929, when the agricultural marketing act was first introduced, and it is unnecessary to comment upon what followed."

Fears Foreclosure.

TO THE EDITOR: I have a mortgage of $20,000 on a six apartment building on which the interest and payment of $500 on the mortgage were due on March 5, 1933. Six months or more ago I advised the bank holding the mortgage that I couldn't see my way clear to make the payment of $500 but that I could arrange to pay the interest. I asked that they try and arrange to have the payment extended.

The bank advised me to bring the matter up a couple of months before the payment was due and this I have done innumerable times without any results. The bank continually tells me that they have no information regarding the matter as yet.

I inquired at the bank again yesterday [March 15] telling them that I had the money with which to pay the interest but that I wouldn't do so until I had a letter from them giving me permission to extend the payment. Again they had nothing definite to tell me.

Will you please advise me if the bank could foreclose inasmuch as interest and payment are both past due even though the bank is at fault, as they have failed to handle the matter before March 5?

Would you advise paying the interest even though I have nothing in my files to show that payment has been extended? Could the bank foreclose if interest were paid but payment on the mortgage not paid? My taxes have been paid to date.—J. K.

ANSWER: The bank could foreclose. We suggest, however, you send it a check for your interest together with a comprehensive letter outlining the entire situation as you have told us, urging the necessity of extension. We believe, in view of their apparent carelessness [which may have been that of some clerk and not known to the executives] you may be able to get the matter straightened out satisfactorily. Be sure and register your letter and keep a copy of it for your own reference. In case of foreclosure this letter might be valuable for court use.

BOND DEALERS CALL HOLIDAY ON NEW ISSUES

Re-establish Market After Banking Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—With the investment banking fraternity devoting its efforts largely this week to reestablishing their markets following the enforced holiday due to the bank closings, little effort was made to introduce new issues of securities to the market.

However, two small municipal issues were marked, both short term, one of $500,000 for Monmouth county, N. J., and one of $500,000 for the City of Utica, N. Y. Both issues were well received.

During the week a group of twenty-one commercial banks of the city, most of them members of the Clearing House association, purchased at par an issue of $27,000,000 New York city 6 per cent corporate stock notes, due June 15, 1933, to refund notes which matured on March 15. Several banks of the system offered part of their participations publicly.

This week's offering of new securities in the amount of $1,050,000 compared with no new financing last week, $650,000 in the previous week, and $38,486,000 during the third week in March, 1932.

State and municipal bond financing scheduled for next week will total only $2,236,748, according to the Daily Bond Buyer.

U. S. LETS ITALY TAKE $8,507,500 EARMARKED GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—The first export of gold since the declaration of an embargo by President Roosevelt on March 5 was announced today by the Federal Reserve bank of New York. The gold, amounting to $8,507,500, was removed from earmark here by the Bank of Italy and shipped to Italy, under special license.

Since the metal had already been set aside for the account of the Italian bank, no loss to the gold stocks of this country was involved.

The transaction set at rest all doubts as to the stand which the government would take with respect to the $400,000,000 of gold belonging to foreign central banks that is held in safe keeping in the vaults of the federal reserve banks. Foreign central banks which have title to it regard the metal as just as much a part of their gold reserves as though it were lodged in their own vaults.

Bankers were uncertain whether other central banks would follow the lead of the Bank of Italy in repatriating stocks of gold which they have under earmark here. It was thought once it had been demonstrated that the United States did not intend to place any obstacle in the way of the withdrawal of earmarked gold, a good many central banks would prefer to keep their holdings here so as to be able to convert them into dollar exchange if need be.

WOLOCK & BAUER LEASE RANDOLPH-WABASH CORNER

Wolock & Bauer, who operate five Chicago women's shoe shops, yesterday leased the new corner store in the remodeled building at the northeast corner of Randolph and Wabash for a term of years ending April 30, 1944. The store, which is 40x42, and basement were rented through Arthur Rubloff & Co., agents of the building. The lessees will move their store at 217 South State street to the new location during the week, it is stated. The space is being elaborately decorated and furnished at a reported cost of $40,000.

The building, which formerly housed A. Starr Best & Co., is owned by James R. Cardwell, president of the Cardwell-Westinghouse company. It has been extensively remodeled into small shops from plans by Frank D. Chase, Inc., engineers and architects. Mr. Rubloff states that leases of other stores will be announced shortly. The entire first floor will be devoted to women's wear firms.

Henry J. Patten Sells Board of Trade Seat

Henry J. Patten, youngest member of the Patten family, and brother of the late James A. and George W. Patten, has sold his membership in the Chicago Board of Trade. Mr. Patten joined the Board of Trade in 1890 and was active in the grain trade for a number of years, but latterly his love for travel induced him to sell in 1920. He rejoined in 1924.

RESERVE BANKS' 'ASSET MONEY' IS LITTLE USED

$9,472,701 Out; Other Currency Expands.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—The emergency currency created by the new banking law has played a very minor part in the expansion of paper money circulation since the close of the banking holiday, treasury figures made public today reveal.

Out of a total paper money expansion of $195,900,000 since March 11, the emergency federal reserve bank notes, the new asset currency, have supplied only $6,942,000, or about 3 per cent, the figures show. All of the new monew is outstanding in the New York federal reserve district. The total amount of reserve bank notes outstanding—in circulation or in the hands of issuing banks—is listed as $9,472,701 on March 16, compared with $2,530,620 on March 11.

Gold Return Offsets Expansion.

Paper currency circulation has expanded since the close of the banking holiday despite the decline in total circulation. Experts say that the expansion of paper currency has been more than offset by a return of gold from hoarding. Probably more than a billion and a half dollars in gold and gold certificates were in circulation at the beginning of the banking holiday.

The major part of the paper currency increase since the holiday has been borne by federal reserve notes, which make up the major unit in the monetary system. They are backed by at least 40 per cent gold and not more than 60 per cent eligible paper, whereas federal reserve bank notes, since the passage of the emergncy banking law, are backed wholly by government securities and commercial paper.

Base for Currency Widens.

Federal note circulation had gone up by $169,991,355 since March 11, rising from $4,530,620,035 to $4,700,611,390. The return of gold from hoarding is supplying a constantly widening base on which this type of currency can be issued, and it is perhaps for this reason that the emergency federal reserve bank notes have not been called into greater use.

Circulation of national bank notes, the third important type of paper money, also has advanced since the banks were reopened. The increase amounted to $19,105,233 and carried the total of national bank notes outstanding up from $908,605,481 to $927,710,714 between March 11 and March 16, according to the treasury's records. National bank notes can be expanded $700,000,000 more.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation of farm board holdings of wheat futures, according to brokers who stood in the pit, was under way yesterday from the opening until the close. It was asserted the selling has been under way for three days. Estimates as to the sales ranged from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of May wheat, with some trades expressing the belief that larger amounts had been disposed of to anxious buyers. A recent official estimate placed the total government holdings at 30,391,000 bushels.

While the wheat market again felt the effect of the proposed farm relief legislation, there was aggressive buying except for a brief period early when the May option suddenly dropped to 51⅞ cents, or 1¼ cents under Friday's finish and 4⅝ cents under the high for that day.

Local professionals and commission houses absorbed the offerings on the decline. The bulk of the trading in May wheat was between 52⅛ to 52½ cents, with the finish at 52½ to 52⅝ cents. Net losses for the day were ⅜ to ½ cent. July was 53⅛ to 53¼-53⅜ cents and September, 54¼ to 54⅜ cents at the last.

Crop Reports Becoming Factor.

With the liquidation of the farm board's holdings now progressing rapidly and likely to run its course within a relatively few days, the trade is commencing to pay more attention to the outlook for the 1933 crops. According to comment made by the department of agriculture in its report on farmers' intentions to plant, the abandonment of winter wheat acreage this season will exceed 20 per cent of the 39,902,000 acres seeded last fall.

"Present information," said the department, "indicates that the acreage of all wheat for harvest this year will be from 5 to 10 per cent below the acreage harvested in 1932."

According to the final returns in December, the total harvested acreage of all wheat last year was 55,177,000 acres.

Unfavorable comments on the new winter wheat crop were received from the Ohio valley and also from parts of Kansas. Heavy abandonment of winter wheat acreage is looked for on the north Pacific coast, as indicated by the prospects that acreage to be reseeded will increase the spring wheat acreage by about 50 per cent in that area. An increase in spring wheat may offset the reduction in winter grain to some extent.

Await Farm Relief Bill.

The probable effect of the proposed farm relief bill on the grain markets cannot be fully determined at the present time, according to operators who have studied the legislation. They see in it the possibility of creating a tone of uncertainty in all lines of business, due to the almost unlimited powers which are proposed for the secretary of agriculture. According to leading millers, the maximum tax on processing wheat should be around 50 cents per bushel, equal to $2.25 per barrel on flour.

Corn broke sharply early yesterday, with the May option touching 26¾ cents, or 1⅛ cents under Friday's finish at the extreme decline. Some stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Buying against bids and by commission houses and the professional element caused a sharp rally, and the close was at the top, with net gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cents. September corn showed the most strength.

Oats Show Firmness.

Oats showed resistance to pressure, and while easier with wheat early, closed unchanged to ⅛ cents higher. May finished at 17¾ cents and July at 18⅛ cents. Rye gained ⅛ cent for the day, although under the provisions of the proposed farm relief bill, a processing tax might be levied on this grain in case it tends to decrease consumption of wheat to any great extent. May and July closed at 38⅞ cents.

Maltsters are said to have liberal supplies of barley on hand to take care of the expected heavy demand for malt with the passage of the beer bill. Futures were ¼ to ⅝ cents lower at the last, with May at 31 cents and July at 32¼ cents.

COTTON HIGHER EARLY; REACTS NEAR CLOSE

Higher Liverpool cables brought buying of cotton in American markets and a fair advance in prices which attracted increased selling in all markets and a decline. At the last the market became irregular, and closing trades in Chicago were 1 to 3 points net higher. Other markets closed mostly 1 to 5 points higher. Spots in New Orleans advanced 5 points to 6.45c, with New York unchanged at 6.55c; Houston, 6.30c, and Galveston, 6.35c. Liverpool closed 12 points net lower.

Trading in all was lighter, and there was week-end evening up with shorts taking profits on the break. Cotton interests are apprehensive over the proposed farm relief legislation, which is not regarded as favorable, the point being that the tax on processes would be injurious to the market for agricultural products also to the farmers.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 18.—(AP)—Trade in primary markets was somewhat quieter today. Denims were advanced ½c a yard. New flannel prices are from ¼@¾c a yard lower than a year ago. Fine plain goods inquiry showed some increase at the week-end. Silk goods were quiet. Many men's wear price lists have been withdrawn temporarily. Burlaps closed firm. Rayon production is being curtailed sharply by large producers.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was dull and easy today with closing prices 6 points lower on July, the only month traded. The market was influenced by the weakness of lard and the reactionary price trend of cotton, although there was hardly enough business to establish a market. Sales were only 3 contracts, including an exchange of one lot of May for July at 12 points difference. Bleachable spot closed [illegible] May 4.03c, July [illegible]

EGG FUTURES DECLINE

Egg futures eased slightly on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing ⅛@½c lower. Butter was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. October eggs dropped back ¼c at the opening with strong support from a La Salle street commission house holding the market without change most of the day. At the close more new buying developed and caused a rally. Storage figures were bearish. The four markets reported 29,000 cases more into storage than last year. Butter opened lower, but at the close strength in November and June induced a firmer tone to the nearby deliveries. As in eggs, support developed in the face of less favorable news, the four markets reporting an increase of 148,000 lbs in the surplus. Sales: Butter, 39 cars; eggs, 80 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 2 cars; eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

LARD UNDER PRESSURE; CLOSES 10 CENTS LOWER

Liberal selling of lard in the day made a sharp break in futures which brought in active covering by shorts who were apparently taking profits and the close was at net losses of 10 to 12½ cents. Liverpool lard was unchanged for spot and 3 to 5 pence lower on futures. Export clearances were 685,800 pounds of lard. Cash lard was lower at $4.57½ for regular, $3.97½ for loose, and $4 for leaf. Trade in bellies futures was fair at unchanged prices, while the cash market was lower at $5.37½, the demand apparently being less active. Prices follow:

COAL MARKETING AGENCY PLANNED BY EASTERN MEN

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The coal industry, ill many years from excessive competition, is about to undergo a major operation. The surgeons, hopeful of more substantial reward than they have had in their lean decade just past, are a group of bituminous producers in West Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Their long fight for governmental approval won in the Supreme court this week, 137 of these operators plan to meet in Cincinnati next Wednesday and Thursday to organize and set into motion a common marketing agency, Appalachian Coals, Inc.

Disclaiming any intent to monopolize the sales field, the operators hope to increase the sale—and thus production—of coal through better methods of distribution, intensive advertising and research, economical marketing and elimination of "abnormal, deceptive, and destructive trade practices."

Other Fields May Follow.

They look for their experiment to be tried in other bituminous fields, to result in "intelligent competition" with consequent benefits to coal buyers, and to bring stabilized working conditions and possibly higher wages to miners.

"Already the northern operators are talking of forming a similar organization," one official of the embryo corporation said this week. "We expected that. But we shan't object. We feel the 'intelligent competition' which would result from the whole bituminous industry being organized into different marketing agencies would be for the good of the industry as a whole.

"We have no intention of bringing the entire industry into our group. With differing production and shipping conditions, that would be impossible."

Stabilization of individual output is one of the greatest goals of the movement. Costs continue and labor suffers at idle mines. Appalachian Coals has hopes to build demand up to supply. If and when it fails, production will be allotted to the member operators on the basis of the railroad car allotment. That allotment was based on potential capacity.

Hope to Cure Other Ills.

Other ills the operators hope to cure include:

1. Shipment of "distress coal," coal shipped to possible markets before it is sold. Such shipments often result in costly demurrage charges or sale at a figure below cost of production.

2. "Pyramiding." Operators offer one consignment of coal to a dozen different agents. They compete and drive down the price of a single shipment.

3. Various misrepresentations of size and quality.

4. Credit losses. One operator said this week that small industrial concerns run accounts at one mine after another, without paying and always find another operator willing to open an account to his mine running and in hope of eventual payment.

British Are Cheered by Upturn in U. S. Marts After Holiday

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—English financial circles this week took note of Wall street's striking exhibition of the renewal of American confidence. The reopening of Wall street absorbed the major attention of the London exchange, and bullish markets here coincided with sharp rises in New York.

The most astute observers contemplate the aftermath of the American banking reconstruction hopefully.

The notable display of strength in Wall street was regarded here as a welcome absence of nervous liquidation. It also was taken as an indication that the boldness of the new administration in dealing with the crisis has restored already a large degree of confidence, and will also cause masses of idle funds to be set in circulation for stock investment or commodity buying.

Prohibition Repeal Approved.

Repeal of the Volstead act is construed here as a very favorable factor and tending to improve the budgetary position.

A considerably greater interest is being displayed by London operators in American shares and many brokers are circularizing clients again, advocating lists of issues forming good media for exploitation of the American revival. The outstanding recommendations are Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, National Biscuit, R. J. Reynolds and Corn Products Refining. International Nickel and Western Union common also are popular counters.

While securities were rising in Wall street, the dollar weakened against the pound, the franc and most of the European currencies.

Money Rates Easy.

Interest in the money market also centered on the dollar exchange. As far as actual conditions in Lombard street were concerned, the reopening of the American banks had little influence, although the crisis was largely responsible for the excessive ease at present experienced in this market.

The gold influx to the Bank of England continues almost daily. The bank's increase in gold holding for the week was nearly $32,500,000, bringing the total to $835,675,000. The largest amount of gold ever held by the bank was $882,923,045 on Sept. 12, 1928.

FRENCH WATCH THE DOLLAR

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 18.—The outstanding fact of the Paris financial world in the last few days was the report of the Bank of France for March 3 to March 10 and the revelation it held of the French reaction to the dollar's troubles. The report shows the amount of commercial paper increased by $20,360,000 worth, while securities increased by $4,140,000. Such an increase is exceptional during the first ten days of the month.

Undoubtedly it was a measure of precaution taken by banks—and notably by foreign banks in Paris, including American—to lay up a store of gold because they feared a run by clients. Hence they created $20,000,000 additional funds. But the withdrawals failed to take place. The proof lies in the fact that note circulation was not augmented. The $20,000,000, therefore, remained in the Bank of France under designation of deposits, which showed an increase of $18,680,000.

The Bank of France statement also showed a decrease in gold holdings during the period March 3 to 10 by $11,520,000, reducing the gold coverage to 76.78 per cent, compared to 77.33.

UTILITY CHANGES CUT FEDERAL ELECTRIC SALES

Former Insull Company Reports Loss.

The business of the Federal Electrical company, electrical supply firm, has been drastically curtailed by the change in management of the Chicago utility properties. The concern was formerly an Insull enterprise and supplied meters, transformers and household appliances to the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois and other former Insull companies.

John F. Gilchrist, president of the Federal Electric, in the annual report issued yesterday, says the change in management "will in the future result in your company doing much less business with some of these companies."

"This will effect sales of meters and transformers, but more particularly household appliances, which latter class of business will gradually disappear," he added.

A consolidated net loss of $207,701 after interest and depreciation was reported for 1932. Net income for 1931 was shown at $362,096.

Changes in accounting procedure, recommended by the company's auditors, resulted in miscellaneous surplus deductions of $3,448,060. The deduction included substantial writedown in investments.

Surplus deficit at the close of the year was $1,633,000, against surplus of $1,852,000 at the end of 1931.

BANKRUPTCY SUIT HITS AFFILIATE OF CLOSED BANK

An involuntary bankruptcy petition, charging diversion of funds, was filed in federal court yesterday against the Cosmopolitan Bond and Mortgage company, affiliate of the Cosmopolitan State bank which closed last month.

The petitioners are Ellen A. Murray with a claim of $526, Anna Sheridan listing a claim of $125, and Mary Huther, who filed a claim of $503.

The bill filed by Attorney Michael Gesas, alleged that the petitioners had turned the funds over to the company for payment of mortgage interest and taxes but that the moneys have been diverted to other funds. He said liabilities of the company were between $200,000 and $300,000 and assets were unknown.

Restoring Confidence in the Things That Money Buys.

Events since the proclamation of the national banking holiday have made it pretty clear that one of the chief purposes of the present administration at Washington has been to end the vicious circle of deflation by reversing the downward trend of prices.

For three or four years various other attempts have been made to do this. Chief among them was the creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a vast credit organization supplied with cash from the United States treasury.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has lent nearl. 2 billion dollars to needy banks, railroads, and insurance companies, to public bodies to finance the construction of public works, such as bridges, harbors and highways and for relief.

The theory behind the Reconstruction Finance corporation has been that if you lend money to companies and municipalities that have already reached the limit of their borrowing they will continue spending, and the contraction of business activity will not continue.

Although the Reconstruction Finance corporation has doubtless saved many institutions that deserved to be saved and bridged many a gap in the financing of welfare work, there is no escaping the conclusion that in this system of national business salvation there has been one great weakness. You can't improve the condition of a company or municipality by adding to its debt burden when the thing that is bearing it down is an already too heavy debt burden.

Now another and entirely different approach is being made. It is based on the theory that the public has lost confidence in everything except money and that therefore the thing to do is to restore this confidence in other things by reducing the confidence in money.

In other words, it is proposed to make goods dearer by making money cheaper. If corn and beans and automobiles and roller skates and onions and wool all become dearer, then the people who produce these things will get more money per day and per year for their effort.

If they get more money their debts and other fixed charges automatically become less burdensome. If a farmer or a carpenter increases his yearly income from $1,200 to $2,400 the burden of his $5,000 mortgage becomes only half as heavy as before.

In practice, however, the working out is not quite so automatic. Even if prices can be forced upward by manipulation of currency there are always painful as well as pleasant adjustments to be made and not everything moves at the same speed.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA PRESENTS A 7 POINT RECONSTRUCTION PLAN

HAVANA, Cuba, March 18.—Feeling assured that congress will support his economic and financial reconstruction plan as a panacea for all Cuba's ills, President Gerardo Machado today summarized the main points of his proposal.

First will be a request to the United States to substitute for the present 20 per cent reciprocity treaty, another giving Cuba 40 per cent preference for sugar, tobacco, honey, and fruits in exchange for 30 per cent preference for United States products. This will be asked if efforts to form a customs union abolishing tariffs for five years should fail.

The second point is a 20 per cent slash of all government expenditures, eliminating 7,000 employés, many offices and bureaus, reducing the budget from $50,000,000 annually to $38,000,000 in five years.

Third is a two year moratorium on principal payments on foreign loans aggregating $200,000,000, but guarantee of interest payments.

Fourth, a two year moratorium on amortization of internal loans, including mortgages, establishing 4 per cent as the maximum interest rate. Mortgages now cover three-fourths the property in Cuba, and interest ranges from 10 to 16 per cent.

Fifth, an issue of $10,000,000 treasury silver certificates guaranteed by minting the same amount of silver dollars and held in the treasury.

Sixth is an issue of $60,000,000 government "credit certificates" negotiable and at 4½ per cent interest, redeemable from customs receipts and other special taxes to be created. The government proposes to pay the certificates on debts to merchants, railroads, veterans and employés, forcing acceptance up to 60 per cent.

Seventh is a two year moratorium for railways and other transportation companies indebted to the government, provided they keep up their interest payments.

President Machado will ask congress for dictatorial powers to enforce the measures authorized.

Auto Tire Makers Boost Production in January

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Shipments of pneumatic casings in January totaled 2,596,585 units, an increase of 42.8 per cent over December, but 20.6 per cent under January, 1932, the Rubber Manufacturers' association reports. Production in January was 2,257,846 units, an increase over December of 13.9 per cent and a decline of 34.8 per cent from January of last year.

EAGER BUYING OF HOGS KEEPS PRICES STRONG

Moderate Supply Expected Early Next Week.

Hogs finished the week active and strong, although the plain quality of offerings in the week-end session pulled the range of prices down a trifle at the close. Anticipating only moderate supplies early next week, buyers showed their eagerness for numbers.

The meager run here yesterday was quickly absorbed. Top sales of $4.15 were numerous. The general average for the day at $4.05 compared with $3.80 on the previous Saturday. The top that day was $3.90.

Live stock markets performed very satisfactorily during most of last week. Receipts gradually increased from low figures during the fore part of the week, yet prices pushed steadily upward. Gains in cattle and hogs were most pronounced, the latter making an impressive rise in the last few days.

Hogs Highest Since September.

The general average price of hogs for the week at $3.95 stood the highest since last September. The cattle average at $5.35 made a new high for the year. Lamb prices were bolstered up after midweek, but the general average for the six day period at $5.50 was 10 cents below a week ago.

Higher prices for eggs, poultry, and many other principal food products have been contributing factors to the strength in live stock in the last few days. Estimates place the current valuation of live stock in the United States almost 40 per cent above the low point of the winter. Much of this advance came as a result of returning confidence during the bank holiday.

Farm Work Limits Shipments.

Farmers are getting ready for their spring work. Ordinarily there is a slight increase in the movement of hog supplies late in March, and sometimes early in April, after which receipts taper off until the first rush of spring work is over. Records show that only once in the last 16 years has the April total been larger than the March total of the same year.

Farmers are holding back the unfinished light hogs and pigs, which were coming abundantly a few weeks ago. Producers are not selling their droves so "close" lately. This has raised the average weight 11 pounds in the last three weeks. Hogs are averaging heaviest since last September.

It is a well established fact in the trade that whenever swine return a good price for the grain they consume, there is a shortage of light hogs and pigs on the market.

Traffic Judge Rules 'Ticket Fixing' Is Out

Judge Thomas A. Green of the Traffic court read in this section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE last week that "ticket fixing" has become so common as to breed a popular contempt for these court summonses issued by the police for traffic violations.

The judge investigated, interrogating defendants in court. He found the facts about fixing were as had been reported. And he took steps to enforce respect for traffic tickets.

"With the coöperation of the police departments and of Mr. Gill, clerk of the court," said the judge, "a new bookkeeping system is being inaugurated. It will record the disposition of every traffic summons issued in Chicago and the record will be open to the press and the public.

Warrants Will Be Issued.

"A warrant will be issued for the arrest of every motorist who fails to respond to a ticket. The court will check up these warrants to see that an honest effort is made to find the defendants.

"The days of fixing are ended. And starting next week the fines for those arrested on warrants will be double the amounts they would have been charged under the standard rates of the cafeteria court had they responded to the ticket."

A TRIBUNE reporter was invited by Judge Green to attend the trials one morning last week of thirty-five motorists who had been arrested after failing to appear on tickets for minor traffic infractions.

Taxi Driver Responds.

A matronly woman, apparently a housewife, was called before the bar.

"Why did you ignore the ticket the policeman gave you?" the judge asked.

"A friend of my husband was going to take care of it," she answered.

The fine was $2 for parking in a prohibited area.

A taxicab driver was arraigned, also on a parking case.

"Why did we have to send a policeman to bring you into court?" Judge Green inquired.

"We've been getting by tearing up tickets."

"Pay the clerk $2 and spread the word among the taxicab drivers that there's no more fixing. I appreciate you fellows are having a hard time making a living, but you have to come into court when you get a ticket."

Police Captain Fails.

"What did you do with the ticket the policeman gave you?" inquired the judge.

"I gave it to the police captain and he said everything would be all right."

"Police captains are not going to fix tickets while I'm sitting in the Traffic court. The fine is $1."

Of the next three defendants two said they lost their tickets and a third denied he had ever received a cardboard from the police, but they all pleaded guilty to their minor traffic offenses and were assessed nominal penalties. The next was a clean cut youth with a frank smile.

"Who was supposed to have fixed your case for you?" asked the judge.

"My alderman," the defendant replied, "but I guess he forgot about my ticket."

Pay the Clerk.

"You may tell your alderman—I don't know who he is and don't care to know—that he can't fix traffic cases. Pay the clerk," Judge Green pronounced firmly. Then he turned with a chuckle to the reporter at his elbow.

"It would be funny if it were not such a sad state of affairs," the judge said. "Ticket fixing has been so common that I haven't the heart to be severe against these folks who tried and failed to fix their cases.

"These defendants recognized ticket fixing as an established institution and were patronizing it as such. With THE TRIBUNE warning the public that this institution no longer exists, I'll double penalties next week.

"I'm not in favor of heavy penalties for traffic violations except in aggravated cases such as drunken driving or leaving the scene of an accident. But I'm in dead earnest when I say that the motorists are going to respect traffic tickets, that every ticket must mean a response in court."

The clerk began to call Lincoln park police speeding cases. A defendant charged with doing forty-nine miles an hour on the outer drive was dismissed, the court commenting that fifty miles an hour was safe under favorable conditions on this pavement. For the same speed on other boulevards in the Lincoln park system, where there were pedestrians and cross-traffic, fines were assessed.

Clarence W. Wagner, 6214 Winthrop avenue, who described himself as a safety engineer for an insurance company, was fined $5 for driving fifty-two miles an hour over wet pavement. Another defendant charged with doing fifty-four in Lake Shore drive, was fined $5 for speeding and $25 and costs for having a fictitious license.

"I've been in the Traffic court for only four weeks," Judge Green said, "but I've been a motorist for many years. I'm trying to run this court as my fellow motorists, careful and law-abiding citizens, would have it run."

The usual bond for speeding cases, where there are no aggravating circumstances, has been reduced from $25 to $5.

"When I'm out driving," said the judge, "I seldom have $25 in my pockets. The average motorist asked to make $25 bail has to wait in some police station for friends, and many don't have a friend with that much money."

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

LICENSES.

Chicago, March 14.—I had to pay the state of Illinois a license fee as my annual contribution to the highway fund. Yet I see there are many cars on the streets without 1933 plates. Is there any reason why others should be exempt? I need money as much as any one.

R. S. T.

POLICE ROAD HOG.

Chicago, March 9.—How do you expect the public to know traffic laws when the men who are supposed to enforce them do not know the rules?

This a. m. driving north on Cicero avenue just south of Maypole avenue I came up behind a police squad car and they were hugging the center of the street. I gave them the horn, but they did not turn out to let me pass. I finally got a chance to on the left side and I slowed up and asked why they did not get over and their answer was: "Why don't you pass on the other side where you belong?"

So evidently our officers think vehicles should be passed on the right.

H. N. CLUTE.

COP ASKS ABOUT MONEY.

Chicago, March 6.—The writer would like to know how many auto drivers experienced the same thing we did last Saturday evening while driving home where we pass under a viaduct and come out in front of a police station.

We were stopped by an officer who smilingly asked if we had any money. Asking him why he wanted money, he then asked if we had a dollar. Thinking he might be selling police benefit tickets we asked if that was the reason he wanted money.

He merely smiled and asked where we lived, and finding out we did not live in Chicago told us he would have to take us to the station as we would have to put up a $25 bond. He said our lights were off. Just as we came out from under the viaduct he saw us switch the lights off.

Under the viaduct our lights were positively not off as we had been watching the reflection of the lights on the car just ahead, for the reason we had just purchased a new bulb which cast a white light instead of the yellow light from the old bulb. We were discussing this very thing when we were held up by the officer.

We stood our grounds and were advised to go on. All the time this officer smiled at us as though the whole matter was some sort of joke. We would like to know how many experienced the same thing.

G. L.

LICENSES.

Chicago, March 12.—Three cheers for D. Snyder, who defends the use at this late date of 1932 state license plates. Like Mr. Snyder I too, have always purchased license plates long before the time, but am unable to do so this year for the reason that I have been unemployed for the last ten months. Being a salesman my car is as necessary to me as a plow is to a farmer, but so far I have failed to hear of any of our politicians suggesting that state license fees be omitted or the time limit extended to those of my ilk. I have just recently secured a job where a car is absolutely essential and after buying another ton of coal and "shaking" hands with my landlady for a portion of what I owe her I am going to give the commonwealth of Illinois a break by buying new license plates providing the job lasts that long.

Here's hoping it does as I hate to be a "cheater."

H. S. F.

AUTOMOBILE STRIPPED.

Chicago, March 15.—Recently I parked on the lower level of Wacker drive at 10:30 a. m. I returned at 12:25 p. m., two hours later. Both spare wheels, tires, locks, mirrors, and other miscellaneous accessories were missing. If I had remained away another hour the thieves would probably have come to my office and asked me for the keys to the whole car.

On speaking to the policeman detailed there, he shrugged his shoulders and told me I'd better report it. This I did.

This petty thievery has become a nuisance; $300 for two hours' parking is rather high. There are mounted policemen stationed every two blocks on this lower level and it seems to me, and to others also, that if they didn't spend most of their time bragging to each other or hunting for stray cigars they might be able to patrol their territory better.

Of course, it is very hard to sit on a horse for a shift, especially when friend horse goes to sleep standing in one place for hours, so perhaps the public may be taxed some new way to erect a clubroom under the drive where tired policemen and their horses may pass their shifts instead of sitting or standing out on the dirty street. Or maybe my boss will give me a raise so I might pay 50 cents for a few minutes' parking under proper guard.

Any visitors to this city should be warned to ride bicycles and if wanting a free place to park the Western Union bike stands may be obtained without the cost of a cigar or a dollar bill now and then.

PROVING GROUND TESTS VALUE OF ALL AUTOMOBILES

Year's Driving Crowded Into Few Weeks.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

General Motors Proving Ground, Milford, Mich., March 18.—[Special.]—Over the 22.5 miles of roads in this 1,268 acre enclosure, day and night, in sunshine and in rain, automobiles are speeding, braking, climbing and pulling, undergoing tests representative of normal usage. It is a laboratory measuring the worth of today's automobiles and the worth of designs and devices proposed for future models.

"A year's normal usage of an automobile can be crowded into a few weeks' driving here," said A. J. Schamehorn, director of the institution, "and a precise and detailed record of the service and performance is made.

"The General Motors' engineers buy new models of American and certain European manufacturers as soon as they are introduced. The cars are put through the mill here. We impartially check all the improvements regardless of whose cars they appear in.

Experimental Models.

"Experimental models for Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, La Salle, and Cadillac are rolling over the hills and around the speed loop piling up the miles that are the real proof of an automobile, just as the proof of a pudding is in the eating."

Every element that enters into the operation of a car is accurately measured and recorded. Even a weather bureau is located on the proving ground to make hourly reports of wind, temperature, and humidity—reports that become part of the cars' performance records.

As an example of precision, there's the instrument used in measuring the acceleration of test cars. To measure acceleration one must find the distance the car travels in a given time and how the speed increases. A unique speedometer is used. It is a bicycle wheel that rolls on the ground by the right running board. The instrument is almost unbelievably accurate. The separate wheel is used because inaccuracies due to slipping of the car wheels in starting or stopping are avoided. The bicycle wheel operates a tiny generator. The intensity of the electricity generated is the gauge of speed.

Camera Measures Distance.

The distance measurements, in feet, pass before the lens of a moving picture camera. The shutter in the camera is operated by a clockwork so as to take one picture every second. The pictures show how many feet were traveled in each second.

Another instrument records the pull exerted on the steering wheel in driving a marked course of curves at various speeds. A device for attachment to the footboard reports the vibrations and the volume of sound.

To determine the relative tightness of bodies, an airpump sucks through a hose attached to one window while the other windows of a sedan are closed. The rigidity of the frame is measured by running one wheel up an incline until a second wheel starts to leave the floor.

The horsepower measurement is taken by the car pulling against a crossbar while its rear tires are running on two heavy wheels of compressed paper, so braked as to give the same resistance as if the car was running on the ground.

Visitors Understand Tests.

"The public wouldn't have understood these instruments ten years ago," said Mr. Schamehorn, "but today the entire motoring public has an elementary knowledge of mechanics and visitors readily grasp what we are trying to do. I think it's obvious just from a walk through our chart rooms that we're trying to measure everything possible that contributes to performance, comfort, safety, and reliability in an automobile.

"When we put a car through these and other tests following various workouts on the road, we can evaluate the worth of an automobile to its owner.

"Let's take a ride and see some of the results of this research."

The engineer led his interviewer to a 1928 vehicle in the low price range. It was the property of one of his mechanics and therefore was in good condition. A few churns from the starter and the motor began to fire. There was a vibration that wobbled the headlights.

"Try to bear in mind," said Mr. Schamehorn, "that this is a better car than 80 per cent of the vehicles on the road today. Try to bear in mind that a large portion of the automobile owners in America today don't appreciate the degree of improvement from this motor car."

Sway at Turns.

The gears crunched, there was a furor under the hood, and the 1928 automobile started its tour on the General Motors proving ground roads. There was little leg room and the non-adjustable seat seemed upright and hard.

There were groans from the engine and gears in mounting hills; necks were jerked in pounding over a mile of rough stone blocks, and there was a dangerous sway at turns.

The same trip was then made in a 1933 model of the same make with apparent ease and security whether on the speedway turns at close to seventy miles an hour, on the 11 per cent ascent of hills or pounding over the rough blocks.

"This new car," said Mr. Schamehorn, "lists for 16.3 per cent less than the old machine did five years ago. The cost of the new per pound is 29.2 per cent less than the cost of the old. The horsepower has been increased 86 per cent and the maximum speed 27 per cent.

"If the public could but be told of the marked advances that have been made by the automobile industry there would be more dissatisfaction with old cars."

A New Trail

in

A New Era

Frankly, this is a business opportunity and not a mirage or a will o' the wisp. We do NOT seek quantity of men and large turnover—but fewer men, who can advance to executive positions.

They must be men of high purpose, men who when faced with obstacles have the courage and ability to surmount them, men who understand that successful salesmanship is dependent on thorough knowledge of your product and the ability to convey that knowledge in well chosen understandable language. The number of openings is limited and only those who qualify will be considered. But we will grant a courteous interview to all applicants and outline the fundamentals of this new plan, which has revolutionized many old selling ideas.

Our organization is the largest of its kind in the world and its products are standard.

No misrepresentations of any kind are tolerated in this organization. Every statement made for our plan or product is bona fide.

You will find here a modern, live business organization that is a beehive of activity—with enthusiastic, satisfied men making above average earnings.

While this opportunity exists special training in this new work—training of inestimable value—will be given men selected. None will go into the field without the equipment to make money at once. Leads from national and local radio broadcasts back up all field work.

I Offer You GROCERIES AT WHOLESALE

AND A WONDERFUL CHANCE TO MAKE

BESIDES.

Yes, I'll give you groceries at rock-bottom, wholesale prices and a chance to pocket $15 in a day besides! Just send me your name and I'll give you some money-making, money-saving facts that will amaze you. I'll show you how L. C. Van Allen of Illinois quit a $23-a-week job, took hold of my proposition and shortly afterward reported earning $125 in a single week. Gustav Karnath of Minnesota—farm laborer—made $20.35 the FIRST 5 HOURS And Mrs. B. L. Hodges of New York says: "Making more money than ever before—from $18 to $20 a day." Of course, some people make more than others. But these big earnings of a few of my representatives prove the wonderful opportunities. And today I offer you a proposition EVEN BETTER than I gave these people.

No Experience Necessary.

With groceries at wholesale and $15 a day in your pocket, you would have cash to pay your bills, to buy new clothes, a radio, house furnishings or take pleasure trips. You positively don't need any capital. You don't need any experience. You don't have to take any course of training. YOU CAN START RIGHT IN MAKING GOOD MONEY THE VERY FIRST DAY.

Your own home will be your headquarters. You set your own hours and work as you please. All orders from my customers must go through your hands because I never sell through stores. You alone get all the profits. In addition, I will supply you with groceries, toilet goods and household necessities at our LOWEST ROCK-BOTTOM, WHOLESALE PRICES. Thus you have a wonderful opportunity to SAVE BIG MONEY as well as to MAKE BIG MONEY.

SEND NO MONEY.

If you want to, you can keep your present job and start in spare time. Oscar Stuart of West Virginia reports $18 profit in two and one-half hours' spare time. This shows the wonderful possibilities. So get the facts at once. YOU HAVE EVERYTHING TO GAIN. It costs nothing to investigate. In addition to giving you groceries at wholesale and a chance to clear $10 to $15 in a day, I also offer you a brand new Ford Tudor Sedan as an extra bonus—IN ADDITION to your large cash profits. MEN.

A FEW DESIRABLE POSITIONS OPEN FOR MEN WHO CAN QUALIFY TO DO THIS PARTICULAR KIND OF BUSINESS.

In this business, men from all walks of life who have aspirations, character and ambition, and who will learn to do the things which we teach them, and then follow these instructions faithfully, are making money. Their incomes range from $4,000.00 to $8,000.00 or even more yearly after a period of experience. They do not do as well usually at the outset, because this work demands attention and study. They may start on a basis of $125.00 to $150.00 or slightly more for their first month, and then steadily build up their earnings. In this business there is no deposit or investment of money required, and men do not buy anything; it is not a seasonal business, but is permanent.

Earnings may average but $50.00 a week after you have really begun to acquire an operating knowledge of this business, but within a few months this income may range from $125.00 to $150.00 a week. Weekly earnings of $135.00, $165.00, $185.00 and $210.00 will be found frequently among the incomes of our men, and men newly entered into this field show earnings of $35.00, $45.00, $50.00, $65.00 and above a week.

You realize that today there must be tremendous value back of any business. It must be sound, and yet unique and unusual. It must lead, as Electrolux [not refrigeration] does lead in many countries. Men who make big incomes in this business learned how to do the essential things. They developed self-management and self-assurance, like business men; they learned how to surmount obstacles. First of all, it was necessary for them to get acquainted with us, know our product, and become familiar with our modern method of doing business.

Former salesmen, clerks, builders, contractors, architects, machinists, farmers, tool and die makers, carpenters, plasterers, locomotive engineers, tailors, merchants and many others will be found in our organization. The majority of them, after sufficient time to bring out their real ability, do better than they did in their previous occupations.

We prefer men from 25 to 48 years, with family obligations. If you are sincere and believe you can qualify, call Monday morning, 9 to 1, Room 329, Madison-Kedzie Building, 9 S. Kedzie-av.

Rinso saves money, clothes, hands. I use it for everything—clothes, dishes and all cleaning."
MRS. M. SCHILTZ, 1311 Nelson St., Chicago, Ill.
Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as light-weight, puffed-up soaps. Rich, creamy suds—even in hardest water. Saves wear and tear of scrubbing—clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. Great in washers, too; makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Get the BIG package.

...but SQUIBB'S protects your teeth IN ALL 5 WAYS

1 There are scores of products to clean your teeth ... but none that will do it as effectively and safely as Squibb Dental Cream.

2 You can find dozens of materials to polish your teeth ... but few that will do it as well and safely as Squibb's with its complete freedom from grit.

3 To prevent bleeding of the gums ... the safe way is the Squibb way, which keeps the gum tissues healthy and avoids injury from astringents or other irritants. No dentifrice can cure frequently bleeding gums. Such a condition requires the attention of a dentist.

4 Squibb Dental Cream is always most economical because it gives greatest protection. It is the purest and safest that can be made, and is sold at the lowest price manufacturing cost permits. Its use is true economy.

5 Squibb Dental Cream will help to prevent decay by combating the germ acids which cause decay.

Don't be satisfied with a "one-way" dentifrice. Give your teeth complete, effective, all-round care. Squibb Dental Cream is pleasant to use. It always leaves your mouth feeling clean and refreshed. And you know it is safe and reliable because it is made by Squibb. Visit your dentist regularly, and brush your teeth at least twice each day with Squibb Dental Cream. Copyright 1933 E. R. Another Group of Entrants in the CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $20,000.00 "Queen" Competition

Ten photographs of charming girls are published in this Section each Sunday. To each girl whose photograph is published the Tribune awards $100.00 in cash. In addition the Tribune will pay three Grand Prizes of $5,000.00, $3,000.00 and $2,000.00 to the most charming girls. All girls whose photographs are sent to the Tribune will be eligible for the Grand Prizes whether their photographs have been published or not. 51 girls will be chosen to serve as "Queen and Her Court of Honor" to dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago by exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress.

THE RULES:

1. By special and exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress, the Chicago Tribune seeks fifty-one of the most charming girls in the world to become "Queen" and her "Court of Honor" to dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago. Girls everywhere are invited to submit their photographs.

2. This offer is open to every girl—unmarried or widow—residing anywhere in the world, excepting professional beauties such as stage girls and artists' models and excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. It is free. There is no charge of any kind.

3. From all the photographs submitted in this competition the fifty-one most charming girls will be chosen to serve as the "Queen" and her "Court of Honor." These fifty-one girls will be invited to Chicago for the final judging. All their expenses will be paid. From these fifty-one girls three Grand Prize winners will be chosen and the following cash sums will be paid to them:

1st Grand Prize . . .	$5,000.00
2nd Grand Prize . . .	3,000.00
3rd Grand Prize . . .	2,000.00

The 1st Grand Prize winner shall be crowned "Queen." The 2nd and 3rd Grand Prize winners shall be, respectively, the first and second Ladies-in-Waiting. The forty-eight other girls chosen shall, with the two Ladies-in-Waiting, complete the fifty members of the "Queen's Court of Honor." The "Queen and Her Court" will formally dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago under suitable ceremonies.

4. The "Queen" and members of her "Court of Honor" shall be guests of the Chicago Tribune at the Exposition. The Chicago Tribune will furnish proper chaperonage for such girls while in Chicago and will pay all such expenses as transportation, hotel accommodations, entertainment, etc., and will provide suitable gowns for the use of the "Queen and her Court" at the dedication. Each entrant agrees to abide by the regulations of the Chicago Tribune respecting chaperonage, conduct, services, and any and all other matters. Should any entrant be unable for any reason whatsoever to abide by such regulations, the Chicago Tribune reserves the right to disqualify the entrant and name any other entrant selected by the judges to fill her place. The girls chosen as "Queen" and her "Court of Honor" agree that they will not accept any theatrical, movie or talkie engagement for a period of one year from June 1st, 1933, without the written consent of parent or guardian and the Tribune Company.

(Total $10,000.00.) These prizes are in addition to the Grand Prizes. Every girl whose photograph is submitted, whether published in the Tribune or not, will be eligible for the Grand Prizes.

6. Photographs may be submitted by the entrant or by any relative or friend. However, the prizes shall be payable only to the persons whose photographs are submitted. Any kind of photograph will do—a small snapshot, a cabinet photo or a postcard picture. Style of photographs will not count. If necessary, in the opinion of the judges, standard photographs will later be made at the Tribune's expense. Therefore do not hesitate to send in any photograph you have.

ANOTHER GROUP OF ENTRANTS IN NEXT SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE

© 1933, Chicago Tribune

If a chicken doesn't get the same amount of heat all over, it becomes too crisp and even dry in places —and is perhaps almost raw in other places. A beautifully browned, tender, juicy roast chicken needs a steady, even heat on the top, bottom, and sides. You couldn't get that with a gas-jet!

Cooking food and roasting coffee have a lot in common. Both need a uniform spread of heat.

If you would know the zest and thrill of perfectly roasted coffee, try Hills Bros.! It is roasted a little at a time—as the blend flows evenly, continuously through the roasters. The process—Controlled Roasting—is exclusive to Hills Bros. A steady temperature penetrates each berry equally! There is no variation. As a result, every pound of Hills Bros. Coffee has the same delightful, exquisite flavor!

In ordinary methods of roasting—in big batches—such amazing uniformity is impossible. There is no way to roast each batch alike. Disappointing flavor-variations naturally result.

As you open a can of Hills Bros. Coffee, a wonderful aroma—an indescribable goodness—leaps upon the air. And when you make a cup, that same marvelous coffee-fragrance wavers up on the steaming wisps. Eagerly you lift it and drink. What pleasure there is in each warming sip! Just try Hills Bros. Coffee and see for yourself. Order some today, by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

GROUND RIGHT TO TASTE RIGHT

No coffee, however good, can be uniform in taste unless uniformly roasted and uniformly ground. Hills Bros.' exclusive, continuous process—Controlled Roasting—and correct granulation insure this uniformity. Hills Bros.' granulation will give best results by the drip process or any other method.

FRESH ALWAYS!

The vacuum process of packing coffee, originated by Hills Bros. in 1900, is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness — the air is removed from the can and kept out. There is no magic about a vacuum can — it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh. No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it fresh always!

NEW COATS DESIGNED TO BRING SPRING DAYS NEARER

SKETCHED BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

Unfurred or Furred Styles Equally Good

By Rhea Seeger.

SIGNIFICANT collections of new spring coats are all that any particular shopper could possibly desire . . . grand new coats, with and without fur, with plenty of dash and distinction, plenty of coat appeal, lots of zip to slim, slender silhouettes, generous shoulder sections, unusual fur trimmings as well as all kinds of new fabrics and colors.

One thing to notice is the lavish display of silver fox. Sleek black coats are loaded with this luxurious fur. You will see silver fox used as a cape, as bands, in epaulet effects, and as rather unusual chest protectors. One exceedingly interesting dark gray coat has both wide lapels completely covered with cleverly shaped lapels of silver fox. The coat has no collar, but moderately puffed sleeves and a pinched-in waistline emphasize the chest width of these fur covered lapels. This same coat can be found in black and all the good spring shades of blue and beige.

Every Type Good.

You can practically and financially take your choice of spring coats this year. . . . The collections are as varied as the price tags are modest. Every type of coat imaginable is good this season. . . . You will find swanky tweeds and wool mixtures, utilitarian affairs that can top any frock, coats without a bit of fur, with amusing shoulder details, fitted or straight lines, and unusual closing details.

You can discover snooty black afternoon coats of black wool, dripping with fur . . . new caramel beige models with fur accents of spicy brown sable or kolinsky, and some perfect beige coats loaded with bands of summer ermine.

After black and before gray come the grand collections of blue coats . . . every shade of blue from deep midnight blue to pale, gray blues. Sapphire, cornflower, and slate blues are the smartest shades as well as the most becoming. You can buy them furred or unfurred. Blue coats are worn with every dress in your wardrobe . . . but the best contrasts this spring will be vivid get-togethers, such as a fireman's red dress, or a mustard gold color, or brilliant tones of orange or green.

Other Possibilities.

Gray printed silk frocks with small designs of either a silvery white or blue are another contrast for blue coats . . . and checks, big splashy checks, and bold plaids and dizzy stripes are other possibilities. Under your beige colored coats you may decide for sooty black dresses or deep blue colors, or deep dull green, but whatever contrast you plan, if you are fashion wise you will wear dark with light.

The smartest short coats are the knee length variety, with loose, swagger outlines, unusual raglan sleeves, and a scarf collar. . . . These are the coats you wear with street clothes, with, perhaps, a matching skirt and a gayly striped long tunic blouse. Other similar coats, worn for daytime, are the coats of seven-eighths length, without any fur, and a semi-fitted silhouette. These are the coats you wear with tailored sheer wools, printed silks, and over a slim

By Mary Meade.

HAVE you rejoiced your way around a true Swedish smorgasbord, tempted your family with Danish giblet soup, or rhapsodized over that most lovable of luncheon dishes—Norwegian fish pudding—yet this year? If yes, then you know all the adjectives. If no, you have a treat in the offing that will draw cheers from critical husbands and huzzas from the children.

For there's no need, you know, of having a "son" or a "sen" tacked to your name to make these northern tempters quite at home. Soups, salads, entrees, and entremets with the broadest kind of Scandinavian accents get along quite as well, thank you, in an American kitchenette as they do among the midnight sun and fjords. And what's more, there's nothing to equal a study of the continental cookbooks with stopovers at Scandinavian recipes in working havoc with menu blues.

Preparatory Tour.

Or if Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian cookery is still a stranger to your palate as well as your kitchen, the best recipe for getting into the spirit of the thing will be a gala tour through the best Scandinavian restaurants in town. To a great extent recipes will hardly be needed. It's often the manner of service quite as much as the dishes themselves that characterizes the cookery of these countries. And where directions are called for, get on chatting terms with your restaurant's chef. It's even chances you'll be scribbling recipes before you leave. Or, if such opportunities don't offer, try home adventuring with a few of the following native dishes as starters.

First about smorgasbord, that glorious assembly of appetite boosters that starts off every typical Swedish dinner. Actually the name means "bread and butter table," but verily at such times as the chef spreads himself there is practically every other conceivable thing except, or at least besides, bread and butter on that table.

A Gourmet's Heaven.

For instance, imagine, if you please, a great table set in the middle of the room laden with from thirty to sixty dishes, each dish a small, sophisticated picture by itself and the whole making up a veritable gourmet's heaven. Not that the Swedish home serves such an array to its everyday diners—six or more assorted palate ticklers take care of the average occasion.

But when company calls or there's a wedding to be celebrated the zealous cook has her hour. Fat, baby pink shrimp boiled in their jackets and just newly undressed, inimitable Swedish meat balls, stuffed celery, cottage cheese and chives, fish omelet, meat omelet, platters of liverwurst, dishes of stuffed eggs, stuffed eels, sardines, salmon, both pickled and smoked; a bowl of red caviar, slices of big white onion, potato salad, and typical savory cheeses make up the smorgasbord. On the table also likely will appear a stack of plates and piles of "black" bread, the sour-sweet favorite of North Europe, and "knachebrod," the crackerlike

"Easy Time Ahead" Will o' the Wisp in the Life of Every Parent

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"HOW glad I'll be when she's old enough to sleep through to a civilized hour," many a mother has thought passionately when her young baby's had a spell of waking at five and staying awake.

"How easy everything will be then," she has thought, as she made her body, thirsty for sleep, close windows, and tuck in covers, and try to keep things quiet so the man of the house could finish his night's rest.

Or, "How easy it will be when he can walk and talk, and has accomplished that marvelous feat known as the dry habit," the same deluded parent may have thought later on in her child's life, leaving the diapers she was washing to dig out of the mouth of her creeping son a cigaret end, or a piece of coal, or some other horrible experimental tid-bit he has found on the floor. There probably never has been a mother who hasn't at some time in her life said, "This is the hard time—in a year or two it will be easy." Perhaps she has said it when the physical care of the baby has weighed heavily upon her. Or she may have said it during her worry over the uneven, disturbing phases of adolescence. Or she may even have said it all along the way: "This year is hard—next year will be easy."

If she's done so, she's been a deluded woman.

That Time Never Comes.

That "easy time" coming is like a will o' the wisp, a sort of Fata Morgana that gleams ahead of you, a light which you stumble over obstacles to grasp, but which always eludes you. There just isn't any easy time in

Likes Wed to Likes Are Safest Guarantee of Lasting Marriage

By Doris Blake.

We have but to review the divorce causes in the annual statistics report to prove the impracticability of one such prejudice—namely: that unlikes get along better than people of like temperament, taste, habits, and so on.

Incompatibility, for as long back as I can remember the annual expose of divorce causes, heads the list. Granted, of course, that incompatibility may and does cover a multitude of sins not recorded in the statistical reports on divorces, that it is the alibi de resistance of the freedom seeking individual, there is still evidence enough that actual incompatibility of tastes, amusements, temperament, and so on contribute a grave percentage of discordant homes.

While a good many of the old aphorisms have been abandoned,

More Divorces Traced to Emotional Differences Than Any Other Cause.

this one of opposites making the ideal marriage combination persists. Possibly because in the world of physical nature unlikes do attract. But the phenomenon does not extend to human nature so far as living together in marriage is concerned.

Unlikes may attract—but for living together over a long period of years, people who like the same things, whose moral principles are alike, whose amusement cravings are about the same, whose emotional lives are in tune—have the better chance of a long time companionship.

Otherwise we would not have so many misunderstood husbands and wives in the world. There would not be so many charges of coldness of nature, of quarrels, of mental incompatibility.

It's when an affectionate, demonstrative woman finds herself married to a man whose idea of returning her affection is like a blast from an ice plant one realizes that incompatibility of temperament works havoc in domestic relations. Or it may be the reverse—the man the affectionate one rebuffed at every attempt by a cold woman.

Ephemeral Attractions.

And more of these misfit couples, emotionally, are on the records than is commonly imagined.

The man who is pleasure loving often is attracted to the quiet, restrained girl. Or the gay, light hearted girl to the serious young man. All of which makes fascinating contrast in the prenuptial days. But later on it's no fun for the pleasure loving one to be checked up and curbed for the effervescence of his spirits. And stepping out without the "lecturer" or the party "wet blanket" becomes a strain on the domestic situation. Quarrels and more quarrels ensue unless the pleasure loving one is given his or her fling.

In the matter of mental companionship—heaven only knows how many couples run into arid evenings, though they may sit home side by side. There is nothing to while away pleasant hours with a mate whose reading is confined to the advertisements; whose conversation is limited to the petty gossip of the community. If the man is an intellectual he shuts up like a clam—and the woman feels herself ostracized without knowing why. Worse, perhaps, when the woman happens to be the student, the reader of worthwhile things. To be tied to a man and forced to spend evening after evening with him whose mentality rates away below hers is nothing short of corporal punishment.

Other Misunderstandings.

The man who has no interest in his youngsters leaves his conscientious and affectionate wife in a continual state of resentment. Or the man who does not want children married to a woman who wants children above everything is no uncommon occurrence in the divorce revelations.

A woman who has been attracted by her opposite may find herself unhappily married later on to a man who has no appreciation of home life whatever. There are men to whom a hotel room spells home, or all they would ask of a home. If the woman is a born housekeeper and home maker this temperamental difference will cause any amount of chaotic misunderstandings.

For the short marriage run or the light hearted romance that does not reckon marriage in—the opposites may be all the fun in the world. And for those in marriage who know their lesson of compromising well! But for the general run of humans, who are difficult enough to understand when motives and temperaments are plainly understood and in reasonable unison marrying a mate for his or her opposite traits carries no happiness insurance.

Congeniality a Saving Grace.

Congeniality is the force that carries most marriages through to a successful finish. There naturally will be fewer quarrels over conflicting opinions where tastes and opinions and habits are similar. They do not have to be identical. They rarely are. But they're enough alike for one to understand the other's viewpoint and compromise, where it must be made comes easier.

In the matter of friendships we are greatly attracted to one who comes along with new tales, a new point of view, new experiences—the more "opposite" to our established form of living the more thrilling the friendship seems. Yet for a long term friendship this type of person would not serve nearly so well as one more closely bound by similarity of conventions and experiences.

rye bread that is becoming popular.

Each diner annexes a plate and then tours intently about the smorgasbord, expertly taking to himself spoonfuls of this and wedges of that from any or all of the plates, the number depending on appetite, gastronomic curiosity, or both. Then to a table, where he munches Swedish flat bread, Danish black bread, or Norwegian huney bread along with his choice of appetizers. And all that, you understand, is merely a preface to the meal proper, which is brought to the table when the appetizing is over.

Menu Favorites.

Now for a look at Scandinavian cookery on the whole. Meats, fruits and vegetables are limited in selection, and so an astounding number of the dishes of these countries owe their goodness to the presence of fish, thousands of which finny delicacies flip their fins in the cold northern waters. In fact, it's been said that on entering a Scandinavian kitchen the first thing one meets is fish, the second cream, and the third coffee. Breakfast means a combination of the three and so does the last meal of the day, while meals at 11 in the morning, at 1 or thereabouts, and at 4 in the afternoon offer these standbys together or singly.

Swedish flat bread makes a stanch background for any fish inspired meal, whether it's Swedish or Cape Cod in origin.

SWEDISH FLAT BREAD.
5 medium sized potatoes
1 scant teaspoon salt
1 cup flour [approximately]
Sugar
Cinnamon
Melted butter

Peel the potatoes, boil, and mash. Add the salt and enough flour to form a stiff dough. This may be more or less than a cup, depending on the moisture in the potatoes. Roll the dough out on a floured board as thin as possible and cut it into five inch squares. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] until brown, then turn over to brown on the other side. Now mix together the sugar, cinnamon, and melted butter and spread the mixture over the bread squares. Fold the corners of each square to its center and serve piping hot.

Red cabbage is another Scandinavian favorite which adapts itself merrily to American tables.

6 cups [1½ quarts] finely sliced red cabbage
¼ cup butter
⅓ cup brown sugar
2 cups water
2 teaspoons caraway seed
¾ cup vinegar
¾ teaspoon salt

Combine all the ingredients except the cabbage and bring to a boil. Drop in the cabbage and cook, covered, till tender and the liquid is almost absorbed. The Norwegian cook will advocate a two hour cooking period, but a shorter time will tender the cabbage and American palates will be better pleased. Serve with a pork roast or roast fowl.

If you are breakfasting in a hotel with a Scandinavian cuisine you may be offered an assortment of six or so kinds of cheeses and half a dozen or more different guises of herring. And it's not a question of making a choice. They're to be eaten all together. But if you are taking breakfast in a modest home you'll find the cheeses more or less present, but the herring will wait its turn. The varieties will rotate and a different one turn up each day for a week. Then turn and repeat.

[Serves 6.]
6 salt herring
1 medium sized onion, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup cream

This fish should be started two days in advance, though the actual preparation time is brief. Place the herring in cold water and soak for two days, changing the water several times. Half an hour before breakfast take the fish out, dry, skin, and split. Remove the backbone. Now melt the butter in a frying pan and brown in it the onion slices—yellow them, rather. Corner the slices at one side of the pan and proceed to fry the herring [folded back together] in the flavorsome fat. Let sizzle gently, browning on both sides, for about ten minutes, then transfer to a hot platter along with the onion slices while the sauce is being made. For this add the cream to the pan fat and heat just to boiling. Pour over the fish and serve bubbling hot.

Now to wind up the meal in the Scandinavian manner. This date nut soufflé is wisely named

HIMMELSFUTTER.
[Heavenly Fare.]
3 cups dates
1 cup English walnuts, chopped fine
¼ cup flour
2 eggs, separated
1-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1-3 teaspoon salt
½ cup whipping cream

Stone the dates and chop them fine. Combine with the walnuts and add all but a generous tablespoon of the flour. Toss the nuts and dates in the flour until the particles are well coated, then shake out the excess. Beat the egg yolks until fluffy and lemon colored, and beat in the sugar. Add the nuts and dates, the saved tablespoon of flour, and the baking powder, folding all in well. Add the salt to the egg whites and beat until stiff but not dry. Fold gently into the date batter and turn at once into a greased baking dish. Place the dish in a shallow pan of water to protect it from too direct heat, and bake in a moderately hot oven [365 degrees F.] for twenty to thirty minutes. Garnish with whipped cream.

Try These Stretching Movements and Attain a Trim Silhouette

By Antoinette Donnelly.

TODAY I offer a review of the first week's exercises, which appeared daily in THE TRIBUNE, arranged through the courtesy and coöperation of the United States Military academy at West Point. Each succeeding Sunday I shall review the foregoing week's exercises for the benefit of Sunday readers. Also, in case any one following the dailies may have missed one or failed to save it, I suggest that you cut out this Sunday review for ready reference while performing this most valuable corrective series.

As urged during the week, I want to see all the family enjoying the benefits of this incomparable West Point series. Dad and mother, the grown sons and daughters, the small members of the family, too. If you're overweight, do them. If you're underweight, get in on this course. If your spine has any of the sway, hump or kinks noted in the drawing of what is wrong with the average spinal column, join us on this corrective, body building and body beautifying series. If you look dowdy or feel dowdy do these exercises. If you're feeling down, here's your chance to recover that old vitality of yours.

Thanks to the officers of the academy at West Point and to the direct coöperation of Maj. Harold M. Rayner, master of the sword and director of physical training, you are permitted to enjoy the benefits that distinguish a West Pointer wherever he is seen.

Good Posture Emphasized.

The posture, the fine, erect, alert carriage of the West Point boy is a matter of enthusiastic admiration always. How he comes by that supersmartness of bearing you may learn from this series arranged by Maj. Rayner, and demonstrated by Gordon Kimball, cadet, 4th class.

The West Point theory of building finer bodies is to begin with the foundation, which it names posture. The importance of posture supersedes everything else. It is the rock on which are built smartness, neatness, poise and pride of personal appearance.

"Nothing equals the importance of proper and correct pocture," says the West Point Manual of Physical Training. "It is the very foundation upon which any successful course in physical training must be based."

So, don't miss this invaluable series. I want the growing boy and the awkward aged girl to get its benefits; the small girl and boy to get their feet and spines set in the right direction. Adults, for their individual needs; reducing, gaining, and, above all, for a better, smarter personal bearing, without which getting any kind of attention is a pretty difficult thing these highly competitive days.

Stretching Is Vital.

Note chiefly the STRETCHING emphasis Maj. Rayner puts into the execution of these exercises for getting the spinal column in shape. It isn't the mechanics of the movement that is so valuable. It is the stretching of muscle during the performance of the movement.

Exercise on a full breath! This is important! Exhale at completion of the movement; relax and take another deep breath for the repeated movement, or a new one. Maj. Rayner advises not more than three or four repetitions apiece for the beginner. Twice may be sufficient, in fact, if the stretching is done well. You can gradually increase as your muscles begin working properly.

Only the White, Hand Engraved Card Is Correct

Variations in Size and Type Are Permissible; Use of Initials Not Sanctioned.

Miss Bartlett will be pleased to answer etiquette inquiries. If a personal reply is desired, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE visiting card is the social representative of the person whose name it bears, and as such it should be in perfect taste. It is left as evidence of one person's presence in the house of another; it may serve as witness to the fact that one regrets his or her inability to be present in the house of another; it is often the bearer of congratulatory or condoling messages to a friend, and it frequently serves as an informal invitation.

There is a fashion in cards, as in almost everything else, but it is one that moves slowly and conservatively. Color in a visiting card has never been adopted. Neither has printing. Hand engraving is still the only correct thing.

Variations in Size.

The size of cards has varied a bit in the last decade and so has the popular taste in types. The flourishing script is no longer smart. Good stock is always used; it may be white or ivory. Parchment has had a great vogue, and when the type used on it is of severe simplicity, it is smart in the modern manner. No visiting card should have ornamentation.

Men's cards are smaller than women's—longer and narrower. The double or "Mr. and Mrs." is larger than either—usually 3¼x2¼ inches.

To be unquestionable, correct initials are not used on visiting cards, but this rule of convention is often disregarded. The full names should be used and titles always preface the names.

A widow, like a married woman, uses on her card her husband's name, prefaced by "Mrs." A divorcée retains her husband's surname, of course, but precedes it with her maiden name. To illustrate: If Margaret Bowen married Harold Martin, her name, after a divorce, is "Mrs. Bowen Martin." Never, under any circumstances, is it "Mrs. Margaret Martin." And only in rare cases is her maiden name resumed. It is not resumed unless granted by the courts, and even then it is rather a pointless procedure.

Prefixed by "Miss."

The cards of a young girl after she is 16 always have "Miss" before her name. Boys, like girls, do not have cards until after they leave school, and "Mr." precedes their names.

The use of "Jr." after a name does not do away with "Mr." Incidentally, when it is spelled out a small "J" is used. Socially a man is never "Senior." If he is the eldest, he bears the name of John Jones. His son is John Jones Jr., but neither the elder man nor his wife use "Sr." after their name.

The double card does not have a variety of use. It is useful only for formal calls or as an enclosure with wedding presents, flowers, or any other gift represented to come from both the man and his wife.

The etiquette of the use of cards is often confusing. Perhaps no other social custom has fallen by the wayside like the once important business of calling and returning calls, but there are circumstances when even the most indifferent to social obligations must leave or send cards.

Their use in connection with receptions or "at homes" is particularly important. When you have been invited to an "at home" and cannot attend, you are obliged to send the proper number of cards, by mail or by messenger, to arrive the day of the affair.

Attractive Little Hat Can Be Crocheted Quickly and Easily

By Barbara Dean.

THE Turkomans of western Asia are responsible for the piquant little hat shown today, a chapeau of American design; it is reminiscent, further, of caps worn by German and French doctors when receiving academic degrees. Maude Adams dressed with a similar bit of headgear and white stock in her portrayal of Portia, all of which resolves itself into that old bromide, "Nothing new . . ."

The swanky little cap, however, has more subtle feminine nuances than the fez or the millinery of the venerable doctors. And the making of it is simplicity itself. Three balls of boucle, a No. 6 crochet hook, a few hours, and lo, a creation with all the distinction of an original Paris model!

Instructions for crocheting this hat may be had by sending 5 cents in stamps or coin to Barbara Dean, Chicago Tribune. Write your name and address clearly. Or call in person at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen
(Nationally Known Stamp Authority)

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be inclosed in case a personal reply is desired.

This issue of stamps commemorates the 100th anniversary of the formation of the kingdom of Belgium, and presents the portraits of the three kings who have ruled that country since its formation. They are Leopold I., Leopold II., and Albert I., the present king.

BELGIUM at the opening of the 19th century was an integral part of France, governed in the same manner as other parts of that nation. Upon the fall of Napoleon, Belgium was placed under an Austrian governor general, but soon united with Holland to form the kingdom of the Netherlands under the prince of Orange, who took the title of William I. The Belgians were treated by the Dutch as an annexed state and not as an equal partner in the government, and this and other things finally caused a revolt in the southern provinces which comprised about two-thirds of the population.

This revolution starting on Aug. 25, 1830, led to the formation of a new kingdom under Leopold I., who was elected to this position on June 4, 1831.

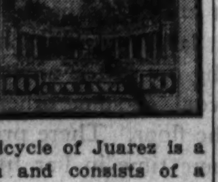
The Dutch attempted to punish the Belgians for their disregard of authority, but France put an army in the field to assist her neighbor.

Son Takes Reign.

Leopold I. ruled 34 years and throughout this time was greatly respected by all his people. His death occurred on Dec. 10, 1865, and on Dec. 17 his eldest son, Leopold II., took the oath of office. His reign was not so tactful as that of his father and was marked by several outbreaks. Under him the Congo Free State was established and while it was declared to be a purely personal interest of the king still in 1908 it was annexed to the kingdom. Leopold II. died in 1909 and was succeeded by his son under the title of Albert I. To him fell the hardest period in the history of the little kingdom. In the previous trouble between France and Germany in 1870 Leopold II. had maintained neutrality but in 1914 it became evident that such a course could not be followed and Belgium cast her lot with the allies, knowing that it might result in oblivion for the nation. Albert survived the war and today rules his country with a gentle hand.

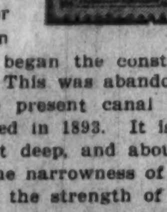
Juarez Memorial.

Benito Pablo Juarez was president of Mexico from 1861 until 1871, except for a period from 1862 to 1867, when a combination of European powers placed Maximilian upon the throne as emperor. The Hemicycle of Juarez is a memorial to him and consists of a group of statuary in a large semi-circular colonnade of white marble. This stands on Avenida Juarez at the side of the Alameda in Mexico City.



Corinthian Canal.

This Greek stamp of 1927 shows a view of the ship canal which cuts through the isthmus of Corinth and shortens the journey from the Adriatic sea to the Ægean sea by over 200 miles. In ancient times the Greeks dragged their galleys over this ridge and in 67 A. D. Negro began the construction of a canal. This was abandoned and in 1881 the present canal was started and opened in 1893. It is 70 feet wide, 26 feet deep, and about 4 miles long, but the narrowness of the cut coupled with the strength of the current make it a dangerous hazard for most of the vessels of the Mediterranean sea.



Pony Express Cachet.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) Collectors' club will sponsor a cachet on April 3 to commemorate the 73d anniversary of the start of the pony express from that city in 1860. This will show the postmark used at that time and a short history of the pony express will be included in each cover. Send your name and address and five cents to G. J. Luhn, Secretary, 314 Felix street, St. Joseph, Mo. Stamps, envelopes, etc., will be furnished by the club.

Your Questions.

A. D.—"Catalog value." Standard catalogs containing pictures and lists of all the stamps issued by the various countries of the world are published by various concerns in many of the principal countries of the world. The one used in the United States is published by Scott and gives a list value for each stamp. This price does not always correspond to the price asked by dealers for the stamp, but it furnishes a basis for comparison, and for trading stamps. Dealers often quote discounts of 25%, 50%, etc., from catalog value.

Dukey—The Commonwealth of Australia began using postage stamps in 1913. Prior to that year the individual states or colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria, and Western Australia had their own distinctive stamps except that since 1902 they had used postage due stamps of a single design for the six colonies.

Paris Agrees to Let Hats Have Their Own Willful Way

Spring Bonnet May Match Up with the Face

Fetching Variations in Shapes, Sizes Forestall Unhappy Incongruities.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Congress isn't the only body that cannot seem to operate in a "get-together" spirit. The French milliners have turned recalcitrant, insurgent, and generally rebellious against any leading hat style for everybody.

The Paris hat styles for spring are minus any unity. They range from Reboux's high turbans to Talbot's pancake hats with high crowns and Maria Guy's berets and the successful revival of the cloche. Jean Patou and Marie Alphonsine play up the sailor.

Feather and flower toques are all over the place and very becoming they are to most faces. The bellhop tambourine turban is something new and takes some wearing. There are also bonnets, alpine felts, and boat shaped hats.

The struggle over the crown is desperate. Will it go down over the head, or sit on top in shallow frivolity? At present leading French milliners show both kinds. Most spring hats have crown trimming or hand work.

Tipped to Side or Front.

And the tilted movement is again gaining weight, after the recent attempt to make women wear their hats straight on their heads. Spring millinery is all on one side or down in front.

Fabric hats are big in Paris millinery. Straw alone or with fabric is also very important. There are lots of shiny straws and just as many dull, dull ones. Much less exotic straw is shown in Paris. Leghorn straw is being offered and felts are still with us.

Millinery colors to date show a predominance of red, green, blue, cyclamen, yellow, and heaps of black. There is some white but much less than last season. Hat colors, however, usually follow those of your costume in any season.

Who is going to wear these forty-seven different varieties of spring hats? Ay, sister, there's the rub. To pick a hat that goes with your own particular face is the important thing, since fashion is flying off into so many different shapes and kinds. Of course the return of the cloche helps to simplify this problem, because the cloche is every woman's hat, and for practical wear you can't go wrong if you let your fancy light on this shape.

New Cloche Hat.

At the very lowest point in our drawing is one of the new cloche hats seen in Paris. It is made of pale beige supple felt and has a rather deep crown at the back, where the brim is turned up. In front the brim ripples across the forehead in a flattering way. A red quill is stuck into the brim on the left side toward the back. This is the 1933 cloche introduced by Mainbocher.

Just above and to the right is Maria Guy's toque-beret, designed for girls who wear long hair. It is made of silk and wool fabric in light green and is pulled forward and over the right eye. A black dotted quill is stuck in across the front. This kind of hat is not for girls who have a surplus of avoirdupois.

While we're on the subject of berets, shirred and tucked berets made of satin and tilted over one eye are popular with Parisiennes for wear with dressy clothes. The beret for spring is a larger and softer one than in the past and is usually made of fabric.

Bell Shaped Chapeau.

At the lower left is a new type of bonnet being shown by Maria Guy. It is made of dark brown grosgrain ribbon and is shaped like a bell. It is set well down on the head and tipped over to the right side. A roll of grosgrain on top makes this bonnet look higher. A couple of loops and ends of orange velvet ribbon are passed through this roll and hang down on both sides.

Above and to the extreme left is sketched Agnes' new hat. It has a boat shaped crown and a brim that is turned up sharply on the left side and droops on the other. Gray picot straw makes it, and three black velvet bows adorn the front of the crown. This kind of shape is flattering to the matron with flesh on her bones, but not for thin ladies, as it plays up the lack of flesh.

To the right and a bit above is shown Suzanne Talbot's flower toque and muff for dressy wear. Any woman with a bit of individual adaptation can wear such a hat. This toque is made of white satin pansies, as is the muff, which has three purple pansies in the top. The little chenille dotted veil is pansy colored and very flattering.

Veil for Spring.

Veils are extremely chic this spring. Shoulder length circular veils are actually being worn by certain smart women in Paris. Le Monnier puts them on her dressy hats, like the one shown in the upper left hand corner. This hat is entirely made of tiny pipings of pastel blue satin, appliqued onto coarse tulle. It has a turned-up brim and a little blue and black feather at the top of the crown. The veil is black with blue satin dots at the bottom. Women wearing this kind of veil should see to it that their locks are neatly arranged. It would be inappropriate with a Garbo haircut.

For Young Girls Only.

The bellhop turban is shown in the center right. This is for young girl consumption only. It is made of shiny straw and comes in all the bright shades and in white or black, with camellias stuck on at the sides. There are, around Paris, lots of shallow tambourine crowns like this, with brims attached which pass for sailors, but they are not to be found in the exclusive shops.

In the upper right hand corner is something new in feather hats, the feather sailor created by Marie Alphonsine. This hat has a rather shallow rounded crown and a narrow brim, both completely covered by natural coque feathers that are glued on flat. A spiral feather fantaisie is placed at the front of the crown and a boa of natural coque feathers goes with the hat. Women who wear glasses beware! Choose instead the feather toque of which there are hundreds of different kinds. Glasses and hard brims are not compatible.

Feather toques that combine several different colors are appearing about Paris. They are new and gay.

Brimmed or Brimless, High or Low, but All Worn with an Insouciant Tilt

SKETCHED IN PARIS BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

fitted tailored coat. They have high collars, pockets sometimes, and a distinctive air of sophistication.

Delightful Caped Coats.

Most of the caped coats are delightful creations, fashioned with cavalier swinging capes, edged with fur aid tied with either wool or bows across your chest. You will see short capes, shorter capes, long capes, and moderately long capes. There are cape coats for every shopper. Know your silhouette, your height, plumpness, or slenderness, and you will find the right cape for your particular architectural specifications.

Five coats have been sketched from one collection . . . five representative new models that can be worn immediately. At the extreme left is shown the new beige colored coat (available in other colors and black), trimmed with deep brown marten fur wrapped intricately around the lower sleeve. A square neckline, with a wool bow perched high on the left side, distinctively contrasts the dropped shouldered sleeve. The skirt is long and severely straight.

Slenderizes Wearer.

The sports or street coat, sketched third from the right, is of a grayish brown wool mixture. It fits the figure snugly and slenderizes any one who wears it. An ascot tie scarf of the same material is fastened under the neckline at the back. Huge wide lapels spread fashionably high across the shoulder line. . . . A double row of large buttons holds the coat tight around the ribs. The slender waistline is accented by a wide calfskin belt. Moderately puffed sleeves achieve added shoulder width.

Next to the right is another beige wool creation trimmed with golden tan summer ermine. A demure round collar tops a flattering deep swinging cape and a bow of the wool material ties the high, round neckline.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

Maria Guy makes garlands of field flowers and puts them round the crowns of dressy toques.

A new summer velvet from Ricquer is making a sensation in Paris. It comes in dull and shiny surfaces, and has a nap a half-inch long. It looks like a shaggy Arab rug and is called Ric and Rac.

Spring Modes Well Suited to New Materials

By Clotilde.

THE jacket dress, made by pattern No. 2897, is bound to be a favorite, and isn't it a beauty? The bodice is becomingly draped. At the back the neckline is straight, but is cut in a V at the front. It is collarless and is finished with a narrow bias binding. The bodice is made with drop shoulders, and these are bound the same as the neck.

The jacket is one of those abbreviated affairs, very youthful and flattering, and the sleeves are full length and close fitting.

The skirt is a four piece, circular one with a yoke top, and is attached to the waist under a removable belt. The bodice is as easy as can be to make.

You will see by the chart how the front of the skirt is put together. In pinning the yoke to the skirt and the top piece in place, begin at the center front. The pinning and basting of the skirt seams must be done from the top towards the bottom.

A brown printed silk was used for the original model, and rough silk crêpes in plain colors and novelty silk and wool mixtures will be smart.

The dear little dress, made by pattern No. 3196, has matching bloomers. These are finished at the top and bottom with hems or casings through which elastic is run.

The dress is made with a shallow yoke across both the back and the front, and the dress lengths are gathered to the yoke. A wide collar and matching cuffs are used, making as pretty a dress as one could wish.

Wool challis is a wonderfully nice material for dresses of this kind. There is no weight to it, and it is warm and launders beautifully. Wouldn't a red challis with tiny blue dots be pretty, using white piqué for the collar? Blue linen with white is also attractive, and there are many other colors and spring materials one could use.

A sports type dress simply fashioned is shown in pattern No. 3223. It has the fashionable shoulders broadened through a dropped yoke. The dress closes under the left arm, and the yoke at the center front is slashed, bound, and finished for closing. Inverted plaits in front and back are stitched down part way, and then allowed to flare prettily when in motion.

The dress is cut to the normal neckline, and finished with a turn-over collar and jabot frill. It's the sort of dress that smart girls and youthful women like for general day wear.

A mouse gray, lightweight woolen combined with white piqué is as smart as can be, and with it wear a black patent leather belt. Printed silks with fresh white contrasts are also delightful.

Ends of Long White Silk Scarf Serve as a Vest

A long scarf with wide ends is made of heavy creamy white silk. It makes a jaunty Ascot bow under the chin, then the ends swoop down and around to serve as a vest.

Parents' Easy Time Ahead Never Arrives

rearing children. There's a different time ahead—a time difficult or enjoyable or interesting in a different way, but not an easy time.

To be sure, it may be easy in the exact sense you mean at the time, like better sleeping hours, or less washing to do, or not having to be watched every minute as they have to be at twenty months, we'll say. But the time ahead is not going to be easy in a general sense because there always will be other things to cope with. When the huge daily wash decreases, something else will pop up that takes an equal amount of your energy and time—of it not that, of your thought and management.

As you go from baby-in-the-cradle days to creeping days, from walking and talking days at home with you to the bigger world of kindergarten days, as you move from primary school to grammar, from sheltered days to the age when the outside world of people and affairs spreads itself out, you'll see what I mean. You won't find yourself sitting back with a sigh and saying, "Ah, now it's easy!"

It's different, but it isn't easy or carefree. What you'll find is that you're simply exchanging one sort of difficulty, though I don't like the word, for another. You may exchange bottles and diapers for biting and hitting the neighbor's baby; you may trade getting-into-everything for shyness, or the wrong school, or contagious diseases, or rebellion against restraint.

One Problem for Another.

If it's easier in one way, it isn't in another. You may get more sleep, or your legs may not ache so, but your mind may be more concerned with the children. That is, you may exchange a physical problem for a mental or emotional one. And you often exchange a simple matter or problem for a more complex one.

So, don't waste the present, whether it's babyhood or adolescence, looking longingly ahead to the time when "it's going to be easy." All I will admit is that the physical strain on a mother is eased when the children get past the creeping and early runabout days.

Of course, there will be spells when everything goes exceptionally smoothly, when you feel yourself a most successful mother. But you'll realize if you glance back that each age brings its own set of behavior or physical matters to be dealt with. They are not necessarily problems—not necessarily things to worry about. But they are things to think about, to study, to mull over or talk over or work out.

We shall find at each step of the way something that taxes our ingenuity and wisdom, our energy and affection as much as did the preceding step. But also, there will always be new things to watch and be fascinated by, to love and to enjoy. But that easy time doesn't come.

So, don't live with one eye cocked on the future with the idea that it's going to be a bed of roses. It isn't—not only because our children are growing, and growth means change. But because this old world is not perfect and the children are not perfect and we are not so very wise, after all. If you have an eye on the "easy" future, you can't take in with the remaining eye all the pleasure and interest and unfolding richness of the present aspects of your children's lives.

You need both eyes to see calmly and intelligently what has to be done at the time. If you give all your energy to solving your present problems, you'll be more successful and you'll enjoy to the full your son or daughter at that very age—which after all, is not so very trying and will not come again.

Those who want to gain some perspective on the whole subject of child management will find some interesting reading references in our leaflet called (Long) Child Management Reading Suggestions. This will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

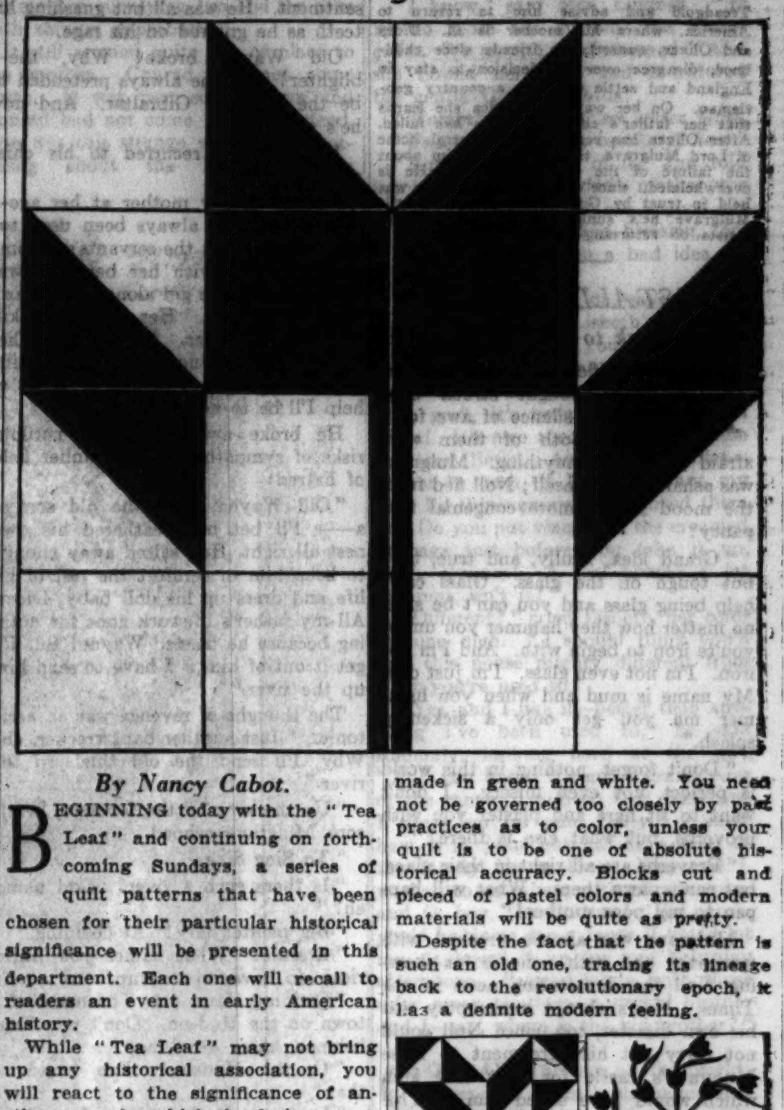
"Tea Leaf" Is First in Quilt Series Commemorating Historic Events



By Nancy Cabot.

BEGINNING today with the "Tea Leaf" and continuing on forthcoming Sundays, a series of quilt patterns that have been chosen for their particular historical significance will be presented in this department. Each one will recall to readers an event in early American history.

While "Tea Leaf" may not bring up any historical association, you will react to the significance of another name by which the design sometimes is called "Tea Party." The pattern, of course, commemorates the famous Boston tea party.

The early examples of the design from revolutionary days were always made in green and white. You need not be governed too closely by past practices as to color, unless your quilt is to be one of absolute historical accuracy. Blocks cut and pieced of pastel colors and modern materials will be quite as pretty.

Despite the fact that the pattern is such an old one, tracing its lineage back to the revolutionary epoch, it has a definite modern feeling.

French Woman Rules Over Buddhist Monks

Mlle. Suzanne Karpeles is the only woman in an Asiatic monastery and the power behind and surrounding the throne that rules 400 Buddhist monks. She is 30 years of age and a native of France. The priests in her "kingdom" believe Mlle. Karpeles to be the reincarnation of Pnom-Penh, the holy priestess of Buddha, who founded the capital 700 years ago.

The state treasurer of Idaho is a woman. Myrtle Enking has this distinction.

The Uphill Road By Rupert Hughes

The Story So Far:

At the behest of her father Dicey Wayne flies from Paris to London to see Oliver Treadgold and advise him to return to America, where his mother is ill. Dicey and Oliver, quarrelsome friends since childhood, disagree over his decision to stay in England and settle down as a country gentleman. On her way to America she learns that her father's chain of banks has failed. After Oliver has rented the ancestral home of Lord Mulgrave, the latter tells him about the failure of the Wayne banks. He is overwhelmed, since his entire fortune was held in trust by Guilford Wayne. He tells Mulgrave he's sunk, and the Englishman insists on returning Oliver's check.

INSTALLMENT III.

Back to the Farm.

THE magnificent words and the majestic thought struck both men into a silence of awe for a moment. Both of them were afraid of awe for anything. Mulgrave was ashamed of himself; Noll fled from the mood into a more congenial flippancy:

"Grand idea, Mully, and true, too; but tough on the glass. Glass can't help being glass and you can't be steel no matter how they hammer you unless you're iron to begin with. And I'm not iron. I'm not even glass. I'm just dirt. My name is mud and when you hammer me you get only a sickening splash."

"Don't forget, nothing in this world is perfect, not even misery. I don't want to sit here and plaster you with proverbs, but what else is there?"

"Proverbs are all right in their place, but can't pawn them. What will happen to my poor mother!"

Mulgrave was almost wrecked with sympathy and with remorse for showing Noll the devastating news in the Times. Noll's abrupt bankruptcy was his own disaster, too, since Noll could not carry out his agreement to lease Mulgrave's castle for that tidy sum which would have saved him and his mother from poverty and kept his sister, Lady Aurelia, from seeking a job in a shop—and probably not finding one. Mulgrave had a mother, too. In spite of all past experience with panics people will have mothers. They go on having mothers.

Mulgrave tried to steer Noll away from an emotion that he found ruinous to cold, clear, intellectual calculation:

"Let's not get maudlin," he said. "We've got to set our skulls together and give the gray matter a little much needed exercise."

Noll gave a start: "I've got to give that new dog of mine a little much needed exercise. I've left him locked up in my room at the Savoy all this time!"

The two men left the Garrick on their errand of urgent mercy and sped to the Savoy, and Noll darted through the lobby, up the steps and along the corridor to his own door. The moment he had it open, his little Welsh corgi was on him with frantic rapture. Noll dropped to a knee to embrace him. His heart aching with the realization that here was one wild little whelp-of-all-weathers who would love him as well if they slept under a haystack in the rain together.

The dog did not reproach him for his absence and had guarded his room from all intruders as well as from himself at heaven knew what cost. Noll bundled him up in an overcoat and stole out with him. The chambermaid who smiled as he passed, and the floor headwaiter, who bowed low (though he looked like an earl who had not yet had time to change from his full dress of the evening before), and the page who snapped a forefinger to his brow all filled Noll with a sense of being a sneak thief carrying off their deference under false pretenses that more tips were to come. He resolved that he would go in a blaze of glory if he had to starve. Tips were to him what "debts of honor" are to gamblers—holy obligations, taking precedence over all others.

As he and Mulgrave sauntered the walk along the Thames, pausing when Paddy paused and making his tempo their own, Noll studied with a new interest the sodden wretches who loafed along the walls. Some of them were in a frenzy for work they could not get. Some would not have known how to handle a job if they could have found one. Some were content with shabby gentility on the dole.

He felt a sudden and complete kinship with all of them. He saw in them a prophecy of himself. He wanted a job and did not know where to find one. If he found one he would not know how to manage it or hold it. He had been living in gaudy gentility on the dole of his father's toil.

The first beggar that whimpered at his elbow sent Noll's hand to his pocket, but his muscles checked themselves and all he gave for alms was fellowship:

"I'm one of you, old man."

"Bloody likely!" was all he had for welcome to the ranks.

THERE was something cataclysmic in the spectacle Noll had of the whole human race at a standstill like a vast herd of shepherdless sheep, not knowing which way to move, to find pasture and shelter. If he had been alone in his dismay he would have died of it, but he found something not unlike exaltation in his utter woe, as the millions of world war soldiers had found a kind of fierce joy in the frozen mud of the endless trenches. One man alone would have perished horribly of a cruelty which, infinitely multiplied, warmed herded multitudes with a somber glory. But then they were fighting for their country, not for themselves. Was there any way to make them fight the depression with the same high self-forgetfulness to the same great victory?

The chief tragedy with Noll was his stiff necked pride. He had been from birth so cocksure of his wealth and his independence, that he could not imagine how he could survive poverty and dependence on earning powers that had no existence. He was like a tropical prince suddenly whisked to the arctic circle with no fur robe and no experience of winter. He felt doomed.

Suddenly his dismay turned to resentment. He was all but gnashing his teeth as he gnawed on his rage.

Old Wayne broke! Why, the—blighter! And he always pretended to be the Rock of Gibraltar. And now he's melted!"

His thoughts recurred to his chief anxiety:

"Think of my mother at her age—after what she's always been used to! She'll have to let the servants go. Some of them were with her before I was born. How'll she get along? She can't take in washing. Her pride will kill her. It'll kill her. I must cable her that I have the news and I'm coming home and she's not to worry. A lot of help I'll be to her!"

He broke away from the perilous risks of sympathy to the manlier field of hatred:

"Old Wayne, why, the old son of a—— I'll bet he's feathered his own nest all right. He's salted away enough to keep him in comfort the rest of his life and dress up his doll baby, Dicey. All my father's lifework gone for nothing because he trusted Wayne! But I'll get it out of him if I have to send him up the river."

"To Sing Sing."

"Is there such a river? Odd name, eh?"

"Big penitentiary! At Ossining."

"Arsenic? What names you Amirican do have, to be sure."

"Ossining, damn it! The name of a town on the Hudson. Don't you Englishmen know anything?"

"O, the Hudson! I've heard of that."

"I must tell the river. It will be flattered."

This was merely the savagery of a wounded animal snapping automatically at any outstretched hand. Mulgrave understood. Noll maundered on:

"That's where he belongs, up the river, the dirty crook! But I've got to get home first. I never earned a cent in my life. I don't know how to earn one. Perhaps I could work my way across as a steward on one of the liners. Can you see me as a steward, Mully? Can you see me answering bells, making beds, and rushing basins to retching wretches? Or perhaps I'll have to be a deck steward only and shift steamer chairs, tuck in the feet of old ladies and serve bouillon and tea twice a day."

Mulgrave pondered: "It's a strain on the imagination, I admit, but what of the tips? I mean to say, what will you do when somebody slips you half a crown or tries to buy your soul with a thripenny bit? Will you refuse the insult and sing the Stah Spangled Bannah, or—or what?"

NOLL winced at the ghastly prospect, but accepted it as part of his new life: "I don't know the words of the Star Spangled Banner and I never could reach the high notes—or the low ones. I'll have to swallow the insults and hope that they may be big ones. Tips! My God! Me!"

"Again I fancy you're only borrowing trouble. I distinctly remember reading somewhere that almost no stewards are being carried across and those on shore are in great distress."

"I'll have to go as a stoker then."

He looked at his hands, his soft pink hands fresh from a manicure. He laughed. He held them up to Mulgrave and laughed again. Mulgrave sobered him quickly:

"I faintly remember reading that stokers are in the same condition as the stewards."

"If you don't quit reading I'll never get across. And suppose I did. What could I do when I got there? Without a penny! The land of the almighty dollar! And even the dollar has lost its power! What's come over the world? What's going to become of everybody?—especially me! and mine!"

That was a question that multitudes were asking and nobody was answering.

His frantic wits ranged from anger to tenderness. Looking at his contented corgi, discovering fascination in the humblest places, he sighed:

"One thing—if I go back I'll get to see my old dogs again—if they're still alive. Dogs grow old so soon! Did I ever tell you about my old hound?"

"No, and you're not going to tell it again."

"But this will break your heart."

"Tin that stuff. Cheese it, bo. Dogs are more sentimental than mothers. I have dogs of my own. Remind me to tell you about——"

"I never will."

Mulgrave seized him, dragged him back from a taxicab that grazed him so close as to leave muddy oil on his trousers. Noll sent a flight of curses after the back-cursing driver. He looked at the maculate elegance of his trousers in disgust.

"Would you look at that! Don't I have the rottenest luck?"

"Good God, man," Mulgrave growled, "you complain of a little mud on the trousers. Why aren't you on your knees thanking God you have trousers?"

That brought a whoop of much needed laughter from Noll.

But yesterday he was leasing castles and white peacocks and crossing slavey's palms with gold. Today he must be grateful for legs not bare!

He went back to his hotel and took out his check book. I: he canceled the orders he had given to the tailors and the furniture makers and sold his new car for what it would fetch and paid what bills he could not decently ignore and left the Savoy for humbler quarters and took the cheapest passage home he could just make it, arriving with next to nothing. But he would do it all on his own without skimping on his tips or borrowing from anybody.

He had a grim battle with Mulgrave over the hundred pounds advance, but the Englishman won and Noll had three hundred and sixty dollars more than he thought he had. But he did not devote it to improving the quality of his lodgings or his quarters on the ship.

Three hundred and sixty dollars—a sum he would have tossed away without a qualm—was a fortune to him now. And it grew in size as the moon descending enlarges when she nears the horizon and vanishes in enormous grandeur. So Noll's final three hundred and sixty dollars swelled visibly as his last trace of capital.

When he packed his belongings for the steamer he was aghast at his positively criminal five-man supply of costly hats, shirts, underclothes, neckties, handkerchiefs, suitcases, trunks, golf bags, guns, fishing rods, what not. He gave away lavishly to escape the cost of extra luggage. He shipped only one trunk to America and carried his one suitcase along the Strand to the railway station while the corgi managed to tangle his leash and himself in an amazing number of knots and legs. Mulgrave insisted on walking with Noll and carrying the ventilated bag in which corgi was to be secreted on the boat train. They paused outside the station and stuffed him in.

THE parting with Mulgrave was not exactly according to the language of Damon and Pythias, but the spirit was the same. Noll mumbled:

"Mully, you're a good Indian. How I'll ever show my gratitude I'll never know."

"Gratitude, my eye! Don't be a sillier ass than nature intended. All I ask is a slight favor."

"Granted. What is it?"

"The first boy your Dicey presents you with—name him after me—John."

"Dicey! Good gosh, are you still harping on that harpy? I wouldn't marry her if she were the last woman on earth."

"But she'll not be, never fear. Of course you'll marry her. They always do."

"In the movies and in Shakespeare. You go to them both too often."

"That's a black slandah. I haven't seen a play of Shakespeah's for yuzz and yuzz. If you don't look sharp, however, and marry your Dicey in good season I may come over and carry her off myself. I've been practicing the stunt with my own horses. I've made my sister Aurelia act as the—don't you call it the goat? She stands by the roadside and I ride up to her—bend over, grasp her about the waist and lift her into the saddle and ride off with her as dear old Tom Mix does in the cinema. That is, I expect to do it, but up to now I have only succeeded in being pulled out of the saddle and landing on Aurelia's feet. I pulled the horse over, too, the last time. But I'm improving. Aurelia is a trifle large and not very elastic. Dicey is ever so much lighter and I fancy I could manage it with her after I've practiced a bit longer. Then I'll ride off with her to my ranch—that is, if you don't mind."

"O, I'll not mind. I'll be ever so much obliged. You bring your sister over and I'll ride off with her in a limousine."

"That's a wajah. But if you don't take Dicey you'll take somebody else—or somebody will take you. There's Alberta, wasn't it—Alberta Skipalong?"

"Skipway."

"You say her father is stinko with money. Go on and marry her. There's a job for you."

"Marry Alberta? O God!"

"She's better than starving to death, isn't she?"

"I doubt it. I think I'll——"

"But they're whistling for your train. Whichever girl gets you, the first boy is John. Good-by, old boy, and the best of it always!"

Noll's right hand said the strong words his tight throat could not utter. Then he ran to fling himself into a third class compartment, his suitcase swinging wildly in his right hand and Paddy in the bag tucked under his left arm, close to his heart.

WHILE Noll had been asking the unreplying sphinxes his numberless riddles, Dicey Wayne was wondering how she could live through the last few days of her crossing. When she awoke the morning after the news of her father's ruin she looked about the imperial suite she had paid for in advance and called herself an imperial idiot. When she realized that she had brought along a freight of Parisian clothes to be paid for all over again at the customs desk on the dock she had no word for either her guilt or her folly. But nearly the whole world was feeling the same remorse.

Still the sky was clear and the ship had run out of the storm and she took a certain animal zest from the air. She dressed in her bravest and went out with Jinka on a leash. Or perhaps Jinka had her on the leash. Together they marched along the deck, carrying their heads so high and keeping their gazes so interested in the vast rollers following the storm that they did not even see the stares of the deck populace and thus escaped the wounds of scorn and the worse humiliation of pity.

THEY went first to the cages where all dogs were supposed to be kept and where Dicey had consented to leave the Irish wolfhound she had bought at a dog show in the Champs Elysées one rainy day. Even in Paris, the paradise for dogs, Dicey had created a sensation because it was hard to say whether her hound were a bit too big for a dog or a little too little for a horse. She called him Gilhooley. When she approached him now after his night of loneliness and storm he mingled womanish shrieks of retrospective grief with ululations of ecstasy at the prospect of being released and his tail rapped the wire with the vigor of a shillelah. He came out in a flood of black power, spiraled aloft till his head was higher than Dicey's as he set his paws on her shoulders and would have sent her sprawling backward if she had not braced herself. Jinka, who was of imperial stock, rebuked the merely royal wolfhound with shrill wrath and attacked his fetlocks, but Gilhooley only looked down at him over Dicey's shoulder and laughed. Then he dropped to the deck and swabbed the little Pekingese face almost off with such affectionate humility that Jinka forgave him and they set out for a walk, dragging Dicey after them in the unequal leaps of yoked dolphin and trout.

After a few loops of the deck Dicey turned in at the companionway stairs and went to the office of the purser, who rose quickly and offered her a chair. To forestall any sympathy she said:

"I see by the papers that I'm a beggar. Any further good news this morning?"

"I'm sorry to say a radio did come to the effect that the street broke badly again this morning and that your father had gone to his farm for recuperation."

"Back to the farm, eh? Could I save anything by moving to the tourist cabin?"

"I'm sorry, miss, but I'm afraid we can't refund any money we get our hands on these days."

"At least, I can take a seat in the dining saloon and save the extra charge for meals served in my cabin. I must owe quite a bill by now. This ring ought to cover the cost. If there is any change figure it out, won't you? And give it to me. I'll need it, I imagine."

"But, Miss Wayne, really."

"I'd rather, if you don't mind."

She had planned to send her father a radio that she was on her way to him, but now she was afraid that he would come into town to meet her and be set upon by reporters. She was in such a daze that she could hardly make up her mind on any point.

SHE walked out and went round and round the deck, pretending to be quite at her ease and perfectly in command of herself, but she walked right through a shuffleboard game without offering an apology and without hearing the apology of the unhappy man who sent a disk skirling against her ankle. It hurt her horribly, but she did not even know it until she found the blood on her stocking when she finally took refuge in her cabin and wondered how she had come by the bruise.

It took almost more hardihood than she could collect to go to the dining saloon and eat with all eyes upon her, but she was steeling herself to a life of entirely new democracy. Henceforth she was going to battle with the people and for the pennies. Her soul was pondering the terrors of a woman's problems in the new world. She realized that she was suddenly and completely broke. She must scatter no more tips, get along without servants, cut out parties, fine clothes, freedom, flirtations, graces, charities even. She would have to let her French maid go—repatriate her at a painful expense. She would have to live harshly, have no fun, no opportunity, no—anything.

Of course, there was one strangely simple and pleasant solution to her problems; she had only to walk to the rail, climb over, and do a pretty swan dive into the oblivion of the deep ocean. But she had a child to think of; her father, undoubtedly a total wreck. She must take care of him, wait on him, amuse him, fend off reporters, creditors, neighbors. All the militant qualities that Noll had abominated in her came to her rescue now, and gave her the heart of a soldier, a dangerous one.

She was spared for the time being the knowledge that her father's collapse had dragged Noll down to ruin, too. This supreme degradation might have cracked what courage she could muster. She had as much trouble as she could handle at the moment.

As she sat brooding, with Jinka on her lap and Gilhooley leaning against her, a finger of sudden fire seemed to write on the wall with fierce haste these abruptly remembered words from the ship's newspaper:

She saw her father in a courtroom. She saw a jury filing in and declaring him "guilty"! She knew nothing of penitentiaries except from moving pictures, but schooled by these she saw her father in prison garb at Sing Sing, surrounded by criminals of uncouth caricature. He was crushed and bent with age and shame as he labored at some ignoble task—breaking rock, perhaps. She was revolted by the vision and cried out:

"No, no!"

The dogs, understanding only that something menaced her, snarled and made ready. The hound bayed so horribly that Jinka shrank back. Then he rushed at the door and gave tongue to fierce war cries. When there was no effort made to force the door he assumed that he had driven off the bandits and came swaggering back with an insufferable conceit so frank, graceful, and grotesque that Dicey laughed, then apologized:

"And who am I to laugh at you, darling? I'm trying to chase the wolf away from the door with a bark not half as good as yours and no bite at all."

GONE were the dyspeptic hours when she sickened and famished for bitters because sweets were too plentiful; when she could find nothing to amuse her because nothing was denied her. Money took on tremendous value now. Each penny was like a drop of that last priceless water which castaways cherish on a raft in a wide, wide sea.

She went over her check book and corrected her headlong additions and subtractions, realizing for the first time that strict accountancy is the key to vital knowledge. Heretofore the tellers of the banks had laughed at her quaint arithmetic, knowing that her father would make good any errors. But the tellers would laugh at her no longer. They would refuse to honor her overdrafts. She began to remember that people had actually been arrested and sent to jail for giving bad checks. It had seemed to her a bit harsh to punish the poor for being poor and to increase the embarrassment of people temporarily embarrassed. Now she, herself, was under the shadow of the law and she cringed.

Her good resolutions were like those of an old toper whose flask is empty and his keg drained. She was smitten by the thought of the tips she must distribute. Tips! How she had scattered them! If she only could reclaim some of them! Tips! The word flicked her like a whiplash. There was a long list to pay before she left the boat, the exit-money. Her occupancy of the imperial suite had put her under a heavy obligation. Like Noll, she felt that to renege on such I. O. U.'s to servants would be worse than welching on a gambling debt. The stewards and the stewardesses had families; they had wives and children. Tips were essential parts of their incomes. Henceforth she must wait on herself, join the ancient firm of Skimp & Scrape. But the stewards and others who had learned of her bankruptcy and resigned themselves to stingy tips or few or none when the crossing ended were deliciously jarred by the sums she put in their hands.

But on the dock the inspector rifled her trunks ruthlessly. She started to say: "Why do they make me take an affidavit if they're going to treat me as a sneak thief anyway?"

But she was afraid to protest. She could not invoke the great name of Wayne to overawe the minions of the treasury. The great name of Wayne was now her greatest detriment. She trembled with the defenselessness of the poor and trembled the more because she imagined with what delight the papers would welcome the scandal if guilty old Wayne's wicked daughter were caught smuggling in the loot her father's "stolen" riches had bought abroad. The jailers would chortle as they bade him move over and make more room for his thievish child.

When the gross amount of duty demanded of her was announced by the men at the desk she sighed.

But Uncle Sam did not care to accept the personal intimacies and frivolities she had fetched from Europe. His representatives agreed to store her things. If she did not redeem them within the year they would be disposed of at public auction.

Within the year! By then the Parisian news would be obsolete. She herself would probably look worse, for she felt that she was going into cold storage, too. But there was no use crying over spent cash. With greatly lightened baggage she was admitted to her native land, with one maid in a state of consternation at the strange sights and two dogs in a state of hysteria over everything. On their account she had to engage two taxicabs; one for her small stuff and Nanine; one for her dogs and herself. Arrived at her railroad station, she had to pay fares for the dogs and leave them with the baggage man, who promised them every care.

SHE was about to mount the steps of the chair car when she remembered that an extra charge was made for its ease, and she turned to a day coach.

As the train slid hooting and chattering through the long city into the countryside and the scattered villages she dreaded more and more the meeting with her father. If only she could have been hastening to him with the money she had wasted on her perishable trifles and triflings! If only she could come back with inspiration for his rescue. She had not been a good daughter and about all she could be was a crutch for his lameness, a clown for his gloom. She kept telling herself that she must be very gay, and confident, and proud of him, and never betray a hint of despair, or cowardice, or pity.

Reaching her station, she left Nanine by the luggage, ran to the door of the baggage car and, holding high half a dollar and two baggage checks, received in return two dogs that imagined themselves winged. The tangled leashes slipped from her hands and the dogs charged opposite ways. She managed to seize the end of Jinka's leash just before he darted beneath the rolling wheels of the train, but the wolfhound was where?

Some man had leaped at him, missed, stepped on the leash, stopped him with a jerk. When the big wolfhound whirled and fought, snarling and baring his white knives, the stranger walked right up to him, seized him by the collar and twisted that till the hound was throttled into surrender.

Dicey was about to protest at the manhandling of her dog, but the fellow had acted in self-defense, and in courtesy to her. She could not decently insult him. Besides, he looked as if he might treat her as he had treated the hound if she showed fight. She was not afraid of men, but this tall, keen, rough-hewn citizen looked ominous standing there with the big dog submissive at his side.

There was the hint of a fighter even in his courtesy as he shifted his left hand to Gilhooley's collar, for he lifted his hat as if it were a helmet. His hand was hot and hard when it transferred the leash reluctantly to her hand. His eyes dragged across her as if they were barbed and caught in her flesh. She was so startled that she mixed her speeches hopelessly:

"How very kind of you! Be still, you fool! They're enough to drive one mad. I'll beat your head off if you don't keep quiet. I don't know what I'd have done without your help. Haven't you any manners at all?"

She judged from something in the man's smile and a faint familiarity about his demeanor that she had known him somewhere, some time, so she ventured:

"You're looking well. It's been ages since—darling! Will you behave?"

"Thank you, Miss Dicey. I'm glad to see that you're as—as ever. I'd like to say, while I've got the chance, that if there's anything I can do to be of help to your father I'd be mighty glad to do it. There's ways I could be useful to him—and you. You better call on me."

This rather dazed Dicey. He was so condescending about it.

"Indeed, I will! And thank you—damn you, come back here! I'll see you very soon. I hope—and, will you keep your muddy feet off me, you imbecile. Good-by! Come along!"

SHE had not the faintest idea who the man might be and she tried to mix him one of those omnibus looks that convey either polite recognition due to a courteous comparative stranger and the warm gratitude due to a dearly beloved friend, leaving the receiver to select the proper interpretation. As her eyes left his they felt again that dragging of hooks. When she turned away she felt his eyes stroking her shoulder blades. The brute made her feel female, and she hated that. Yet—

Her plot to surprise her father had succeeded so well that there was no one at the station to meet her. She chartered a rusty contraption, whose driver she remembered from childhood times as Mr. Strack. Nanine sat in front with Mr. Strack, Dicey in the rear, jammed in between the restless bones of the hound and the violent flutterings of Jinka, who, like a volatile gas, filled all the space there was by vigor of motion in lieu of bulk. The baggage was to come up in a truck. Dicey leaned forward to say:

"O, Mr. Strack, who was the man I was talking to at the station?"

"Why, Miss Dicey, you know him."

"Doubtless I do, but I don't."

"Why, that's the boy mayor!"

"Really! Well, neither the boy nor the mayor shows on the surface. Why do they call him by that funny name?"

"Becuz he was the mayor for one term, and him only twenty-five. And a good mayor he was, too—too good for the political gang here. He wouldn't kowtow to Boss Diskin a little bit. They tried to throw him out, but they had to comp'mise with him, and now he's kind of junior boss around here. Old Diskin still rules, but the boy mayor gets his way mostly. He's very powerful. But we always call him the boy mayor."

"Has he any other name by any chance?"

"Sure he has. He's old man Laraway's boy, Ben."

"Mr. Laraway, the grocery man's?"

"He died last year. But you ought to remember Ben."

"I ought to, but I have softening of the brain lately."

"Why, he used to pull your sled up the long hill in winter, and a long, steep climb it was, too. But you'd never let him slide down with you."

This jolted Dicey. Had she been, then, such a snob in her early days? She had been reading Wasserman's "Doctor Kerkhoven" and had been struck by his statement that grown people are always ashamed of their youth, always forgetful of its conditions, and ideals, and excuses, and always disgusted with them. She wondered if she had been altogether inhuman as a little girl. She asked anxiously:

"Did he—the boy mayor—did he ever ask me if he could ride down?"

"Lord, no! Bennie was so shy them days you could 'a' knocked him over with a feather. He's got over all that long since. He ain't shy of nothin' or nobuddy now. But you was the great folks then."

She noted the past tense with a sick smile and took a little melancholy grandeur from being what she had so often read of "a decayed gentlewoman." She felt decayed and was surprised to find herself so gentle about it. Mr. Strack went on:

"Little Bennie used to take groceries up to your house. Later on he'd carry telegrams out. When they was snow on the ground he'd make an excuse of being going your way so's to drag your sled up, and you on it, o' course. You were awful pirty in them days, and you never forgot you was a Wayne. You expected ordinary folks to wait on you. I can see you now, settin' on your little sled, beatin' Bennie with a whip and hollerin', 'Gitty up, hossy!'"

"O, no, how horrible!" Dicey wailed.

The FLAT DAY By Florence Crannell Means

The Story of Twenty-four Hours in the Life of Mrs. Lindner, Who Worked So Hard for Her Meager Existence That She Even Forgot Her Birthday.

IT was one of those flat days. Mrs. Lindner recognized it when she awoke in the deep darkness of the February morning.

Usually she longed for another hour. This morning she did not even wish to thrust her body deeper between the covers and cling to vanishing shreds of drowsy comfort; she ached with weariness of the lumpy bed. And certainly she did not wish to get up into the cold and begin another weary gray round. The day sat dankly on her breast, tasted thin and acrid on her lips.

Nevertheless, she crept shivering to the kitchen to shake down the dead ashes in the stove and coax the dim glow to a flicker. She dressed hastily, knotted with the chill that struck through the light plank and tar paper structure. Her feet cringed from the floor as from an icy pool. By the time young Lisbeth and little Conrad had to get up the fire would have thawed this rigor.

The flat day had evidently laid its hand on them also. Lisbeth came into the kitchen just in time to slick her blonde bobbed hair before the wavy mirror, and Conrad splashed and spluttered at the basin after the other two had sat down to the lamp lighted breakfast table. Brother and sister opened hostilities as soon as they raised their heads from the murmured German blessing.

"Look at him simply soaking his bread in the corn sirup!" Lisbeth fretted. "I don't see how he can stand it like that."

"It iss goot that he can," their mother said mildly. "Boys need much food, und eggs are still very dear."

"Well, at least, he needn't dribble it all over the tablecloth. Why boys have to be so disgusting——!"

"Gee whiss, can't she watch her own plate?" demanded the goaded Conrad. He dabbed at the brown puddle with his knife, smearing it widely and transferring shining drops to other parts of the clean, patched tablecloth. He drew in his chin and thrust out his lower lip as he scraped at another chain of sirup beads on his shirt.

Mrs. Lindner's eyes rounded.

"Und why have you your best shirt worn?" she inquired.

Conrad stared down at it, knife suspended. "Is this my best shirt? Well, gee whizz!"

"Gewiss is it your best shirt. One that I from Mr. Gray's last summer made. When you had already one half dirty. Und this a Saturday even. . . . After breakfast you shall change it and go to the coal yards for two sacks of coal."

Conrad's face wrinkled anxiously. "But, maw! I can't get the coal this morning, honest I can't. I—I promised, see? Tonight I'll get it."

"All your Saturdays still you fool with that radio of Jimmie's."

"Well, I notice you skip out as quick as you can after breakfast your own self."

Mrs. Lindner arose wearily and blew out the paling lamp flame, drawing a strand of kerosene odor across the table. "I shouldt be glad if you could this morning help a little," she said. "We have overslept and it is washing day for Mrs. Ramsay."

"O mamma!" The girl's voice mingled irritation and regret. "I don't see how I can. I've got to get down in time to fix the stock in my department."

While they talked Conrad slipped from the table, his mouth still untidily full, and paused before the mirror for a little while. Now he pulled his coat and cap from their hooks and slid stealthily out the door.

"There! He has his best shirt worn," Mrs. Lindner exclaimed tonelessly as the door shut behind him.

"I do think it's awful the way he sneaks off without even saying goodby! But, honestly, mamma, I can't help going early this time. Saturdays are always an awful jam at the five and ten, anyhow; and this week we're having a sale in the tinware."

SHE made up her face delicately at the mirror, slipped into her coat, pulled down her small felt hat, drawing out a provocative silver-gold wing of hair against her cheek. The coat was flimsy and so was the hat, but Lisbeth was lovely with the loveliness of nineteen. And she was wise in her generation; she neither smeared the lipstick on in peppermint blotches nor dappled her high cheek bones with rouge; she added only a blush, an accent, so that she looked, when she had finished, like something done in Dresden.

"Have you washed your face well this morning?" her mother asked, but she was really feeling thankful that Lisbeth was not the bold modern type with their clown painted faces. She had never had to worry about Lisbeth. Never had to suffer that pricking, nagging thorn of trouble. Not until lately.

"You are planning for something this evening, daughter?"

"Yes—O, yes, I suppose so. What is the date, anyhow?"

She wheeled from the mirror to lay her finger on the curled leaf of a calendar and stood poised, studying it.

"Why don't you sometimes spend the evening at home?" her mother asked. "You could pop corn. Und Conrad has the little crystal set so goot fixed."

"O—mamma! Entertain Jim in the kitchen, I suppose?"

"Well, if Conrad gets the coal we can a fire build in the front room, Bettchen."

"With a bare wood floor! And nothing but a stand and a couple of chairs and the cot! No, thank you . . . Mamma, you don't seem to understand. Jim—he boards in a really nice place. He—O, mam-ma!"

She kissed her mother sharply on the cheek and was away.

Mrs. Lindner went on washing the dishes hurriedly, hurriedly. Flat dawn had opened into flat morning. Half past seven. When had she been so late? She mustn't even stop to brush the crumbs from the table and fold the cloth away, though the omission was almost as painful as falling asleep without prayer. On the unmade bed and Conrad's tumbled cot in the parlor she closed the doors as on a crime. Banked the fire with nervous haste.

Twenty minutes to eight. She must ride to Mrs. Ramsay's. It was good she had kept that one last quarter. She went to the mirror shelf, where she had put it the night before, and ran an accustomed finger under the newspaper covering.

She knitted her brows and lifted the scrubby brush, the ragged comb, the paper. There was no coin there. She shook the paper, unfolded it, crouched on the floor to see if it had fallen, pulled a hairpin from her hair, and probed the crack between shelf and wall.

There was no coin.

For a long moment she stood, shrinking, wilting. Conrad?—Conrad——. Quarter to eight. She shrugged into her coat, catching her hand on a rag of sleeve lining, skewered her hat on her head with a steel pin and went out the door, leaving the key under the door mat.

IT was gray as few Colorado days are, with heavy air that pressed down like a tangible weight on the hurrying woman. Two miles, with every block stretching out longer and longer. Through the outskirts, where the city fire laws did not reach and little frame garage dwellings crouched on the back ends of their lots, waiting hopefully for the bungalows that had promised some day to sit on the front; little tar paper shacks waited as hopefully for their chilly sides to be clothed in clapboard or stucco. Through streets of small bungalows, red brick, brown brick, gray brick, red brick, brown brick, gray brick, like a boarding house bill of fare.

Mrs. Lindner hurried with the futile haste of the weary or the old, her body straining forward, her face set. A heavy old coat, brought down from some one's attic, flapped about her ankles and impeded her gait. She held her arms tense at her sides, her knuckly red hands clenched. Thirteen blocks—eleven more to go.

Bright, too. Wasn't even Conrad bringing home cards with mostly B's and only a sprinkling of C's? Which was good enough for a twelve year old boy. Mysterious felt badges, too, that denoted honors in athletics and citizenship. Lisbeth, of course, was different. She was in the upper ten of her huge class when she was graduated from high school last year. Lisbeth had the promise of a really good stenographic job next month. And now—fourteen blocks—ten more to go.

So petulant Lisbeth had been lately. Was it only last year that she had really loved her mother? Loved her uncritically and without shame? And now——

Mrs. Lindner was not blind, she saw and understood. Lisbeth hadn't bothered about boys before. Jim meant something. And Lisbeth had never brought him to meet her mother. Always there was some reason, some excuse; she would meet him at the corner or run hastily out the door when he honked the horn of his shining little car. Sixteen blocks and eight to go.

This was hard. But harder—ah, harder was this about her boy, her baby. Straight. Clear eyed. But—where else could the quarter have gone? He had stood long at the glass. There had been a rustle of paper. Mrs. Lindner closed her mind against the furtive rustle of that paper and walked on in her dull, blank grayness. Fourteen blocks and seven to go. Six to go. Five to go——

Up the alley past a dozen square brick ash pits, a dozen green fences and gates, a dozen narrow yards, drab with February. In at one of the green gates and up the cement walk.

Mrs. Ramsay threw open the door. Mrs. Ramsay was a querulous young woman with a ripped bungalow apron and hair that needed a new marcel. A three year old girl clung to her knees and thrust out a pink tongue at Mrs. Lindner.

"Well!" Mrs. Ramsay's voice was acrid. "I'd just about given you up. You might be so good as to phone when you're going to be an hour late."

Mrs. Ramsay's was one of the few places where the clothes were still rubbed out on the old fashioned board. It was a two weeks' wash besides—"und, ach, so dirty!" Mrs. Lindner trembled with weariness and haste as she scrubbed and lifted in the steamy basement.

Fragments of thought shifted through her mind, forming patterns like those in some colorless kaleidoscope. Conrad—it was only a quarter, but she had taught them it was a sin to take so much as a penny. That was the way crime began; she'd read it often. Her boy, Conrad, with the upstanding feather of hair at the crown of his head; with the sturdy way of spreading his feet apart; with the straight way of looking you in the eye. A Sunday school scholar. A Boy Scout. Her anguished heart leaped to the ultimate—the end of the downward path that started with a stolen quarter.

The appetising odor of frying steak drifted down the stairs and she shook with hunger and exhaustion. She was not so strong as five years ago. She was fifty years old. Today—why, today she was fifty! It was her birthday. She had forgotten it till now.

The suds dripped down her arms and ran into her sleeves while she stared blankly ahead. She, Dorothea Lindner, fifty years old. It was impossible. Only day before yesterday she had been thirty, newly married, with life ahead, full of joys and hopes and comfortable realities. Reinhardt had brought her a fancy German cake he had found at a little German bakery; and a brooch, a double knot of twisted gold. She had looked somewhat as Lisbeth did now, allowing for the change in styles. She could remember herself well enough in a heavy wool skirt down to her ankles and her best black taffeta shirtwaist, with the collar fitted tight and reaching up in little boned points behind the lobes of her ears, with a fine white ruche topping it.

That was Dorothea Lindner, that pink and white young woman with the golden pompadour. She looked frantically across the abyss of the lost years. What had they given her in exchange? What could they give her? Other mothers—yes, other mothers had trouble with their children; other mothers found their daughters ashamed of them; but she had never thought——

"Can you quit now and eat your lunch?" Mrs. Ramsay shrieked down the stairway.

Wiping her arms on her apron Mrs. Lindner toiled up the stairs. Mrs. Ramsay and Marie Claire were eating in the dining room and Mrs. Lindner's lunch was set out on the bare kitchen table in a jumble of silverware. There were bread and butter and a mound of mashed potato and the coffee pot. She bowed her head for a moment ("Danke, lieber Vater!"—Thank you, dear Father!") and then tasted the potato eagerly and laid her fork slowly on the plate. The potato had waited too long on the pantry shelf; it was sour. Bread and butter and coffee would do well enough, although the coffee had evidently stood on its grounds since breakfast; it was as flat and bitter as the day.

While she ironed the little girl sat at her feet in her little red chair. She chattered busily to Mrs. Lindner and the woman nodded and smiled or answered with a gentle far away "sure" or "ja liebchen." When she made no response Marie Claire stamped viciously on her foot. "But it iss not her fault," Mrs. Lindner excused her. "It iss the way she has been reared. The mother iss no lady. Not like my Mrs. Gray, with her pretty manners."

MARIE CLAIRE reminded her of Baby Lisbeth, different as were her brief frocks and the length of bare baby leg above her short socks. Just such hair Lisbeth had had, with scarcely a tint of color, glistening pale as raw silk. And blue eyes, but the eyes were different. Marie Claire's peered pertly through the downy tangle of her bangs, a frosty lacework in their bright blue irises. Lisbeth's had always been two cornflowers under delicate clear brows.

Only Reinhardt had been with her on that thirtieth birthday. Reinhardt had seemed enough. What it meant to have him to lean on! It made even the dear Christ seem nearer. When Lisbeth was born life seemed full to overflowing. Reinhardt had never seen his little son—an automobile accident just before the baby's birth. Dorothea could not bring herself to name him after his father; it had been too keen a pain to speak the dear name.

"I'm going to town for an hour, Mrs. Lindner," said Mrs. Ramsay, jerking the child carelessly into bonnet and coat.

Mrs. Lindner's thoughts trudged on still more busily in the silence. No sound except the tick of the kitchen clock and now and then the shrilling of the telephone in the front of the house and the regular thud of the iron. One after another she hung the garments over chair backs—there was no clothes rack—and stacked towels and pillow cases and table linen in clean smelling, warm piles. . . . She had really believed that Lisbeth appreciated—the girl used to plan so much about the time when she would be earning enough to take her mother out of other people's kitchens. All the way through high school Mrs. Lindner had scrubbed and ironed for her. And lately she hadn't been talking of her plans. It was this Jim.

Well, Mrs. Lindner would ask nothing better than for her to marry a good man and have her own home. She and Conrad would make out. It wasn't so strange that Lisbeth didn't want him to meet her mother; her eyes lifted unwillingly to the scrap of mirror in the cabinet door and she thrust hastily at the lifeless hair that straggled around her sallow face. Nothing left of that young Dorothea except the cornflower blue of the eyes.

Nor so strange that Lisbeth didn't want him to see the house. That house! How proudly they had bought the two lots, with an old apple tree on one end. Reinhardt had put up the small dwelling with his own hands and they had lived in a tent until it was ready. A good, solid frame he built, but covered only with tar paper. Next year he would sheathe it with clapboards and paint them white. The year after that he would bring the water in. The year after that he would build on a room and put in the bathroom plumbing. The year after that——

Next year instead he had died. The tar paper had faded to brown and pulled loose at the edges.

SHE folded and smoothed the last bath towel. She looked anxiously at the clock; a half hour ago she had had to snap on the light. It was five o'clock. She would have to stand up on the street car and her body was sagging with weariness, her feet swollen and burning.

She put away ironing board and iron, shrugged into her coat, skewered the hat on the top of her head. The house was quite silent. She went to the front door and looked up and down the darkening street. Mrs. Ramsay was not in sight. She stood irresolute. It was not the first time Mrs. Ramsay had been away when pay time came. Slowly she went out the door and turned her face homeward. It was too far. She was too tired; and the air, with February snow nascent in its chill, drove through her clothing. She would go around by Mrs. Gray's house, it was only three blocks out of her way. She could stop casually, and if she told Mrs. Gray of her wageless day Mrs. Gray would insist on lending her car fare. Mrs. Gray was a lady and she recognized that Mrs. Lindner also had been carefully reared; she treated her as a friend whom the shifts of life had brought into hard places.

Mrs. Lindner thrust forward impetuously; far more than the ride home she needed the word of friendly sympathy. She had never been able to chatter her woes across the back fence—"close-mouthed Mrs. Lindner"—but Mrs. Gray was one who understood. The only one who understood.

Eagerly she tapped at the back door, and after a moment's wait the woman opened it.

"Why, Mrs. Lindner, come in! Come in and have a chair here where it's warm. I'm just baking biscuits for dinner."

Mrs. Lindner sagged into the chair and spread her gnarled hands on her knees. As Mrs. Gray looked at her her blue eyes suddenly swam with tears and she had to bite her lip sharply to steady it.

"Why, my dear!" said the other woman gently, pausing with rolling pin held over the smooth white dough. "My dear, you're overtired. I'm going to make you a cup of tea."

She placed the puffy white rounds deftly side by side on the tin and slid it into the oven, which sent out a hot breath of baking potatoes. Then she made the tea with quick precision and set a cup, strong and hot, on the shining porcelain table beside her. Mrs. Lindner watched her flying hands numbly. She was scarcely aware of the drink, though the scalding fragrance of it cleared her mind somewhat. She was wondering how to tell her about Lisbeth—and Conrad—and feeling already the relief from that tight ache that the telling would bring.

"Billy is going to take you home," Mrs. Gray interrupted her train of thought. "No, he'll have just time before dinner and he has nothing better to do. And, dear Mrs. Lindner, you'll excuse me, I know. I have guests tonight and I must finish making the table pretty."

In ten minutes Mrs. Lindner was standing on her own walk, murmuring her thanks through a throat that seemed more achingly tight than before. No one to care. It hadn't mattered much whether she had friends when she had the children—good, loving children. She thought, with no dream of irreverance, that God had been enough—then.

She walked stiffly into the little dark house; shook down the stove, coaxed its dim glow to a flicker, added fuel. Then, without taking off hat or coat, she dropped wearily into the low chair beside it. The day was ending as heavily as it had begun. The wind was rising, besides, and wailed dismally through a loose weatherstrip.

PRESENTLY there came the swift sound of feet along the walk, and the children clattered in on a rush of cold air. No, not the children: Lisbeth and a tall young man. Jim, it must be. They did not see her there in the dark, but her eyes, grown used to the dimness, could make out that Lisbeth was setting parcels on the table and unloading Jim, who stood awkward with full arms. Mrs. Lindner felt sure that he kissed the girl as she took the bundles from him, and her heart beat heavily.

Lisbeth lifted a lamp from the corner shelf—two lamps; and lighted them with sure rapidity. Mrs. Lindner watched as she might have watched a play, the flicker of light illumining the two faces: Lisbeth's eager, flushed; Jim's blunt-nosed and deeply tanned, with a slow smile whitening across the brown now and then. He was not handsome enough to be so sure of her lovely Lisbeth, Mrs. Lindner thought resentfully. Only the eyes, clear gray, and thick-lashed like a little boy's, held the mother's glance with half angry fascination. They were intent on the girl, and when she had turned the lamp-wicks to her satisfaction—teasingly slow—she looked up at him and smiled; and he smiled down with a little, tender narrowing of the lids, and reached out to gather her into his arms. It was just then that Lisbeth caught sight of her mother.

"Why, mamma! You're not sick?"

Mrs. Lindner shook her head. "Shust tired," she said unsmilingly and fumbled for her hatpin. Lisbeth came and knelt beside her, taking the hat off and smoothing her mother's hair with deft pattings and tuckings. Mrs. Lindner had swift memory of herself smoothing the small Lisbeth that she might show to good advantage before some one very important.

JIM GATES stood before her awkwardly enough, and took her hand in his large strong one.

"I would think you were Betty's mother," he told her shyly. "Betty has your eyes."

"Go—along! Stop flattering her!" commanded Lisbeth and blushed again. "Stop flattering me and help get supper."

"But, Lisbeth!" protested her mother, pulling herself up out of her chair.

"You haven't anything to do with it tonight, mamma. You go in and put on your good dress—and the gold pin, mamma. Jim decided he'd rather do this than go alone to the show."

Mrs. Lindner went into the front room first and made up the cot in a shamed hurry. By the time she had come back from the bedroom, her hair combed and the collar of her best navy blue foulard fastened with the gold brooch, they had the table set and the supper cooking. Jim was laying the silver straight, while Lisbeth tossed him saucy instructions over her aproned shoulder. She was warming up potatoes and broiling a steak and doing something sizzlingly fragrant with butter and golden noodles from a bowl in the cupboard. Mrs. Lindner sat down weakly as the keen hot food smells filled her nostrils.

"And where'll I find the plate for the—you know?" asked Jim.

"In that cupboard, right in front of your nose!" she told him, and he laughed possessively down into her eyes, and got out the dish with clumsy care and set it on the center of the table. From a square box he took something pink, and white, and gay with fluted sugar ribbons and roses, and setting it carefully in the plate, he stood back to admire it.

"That's Jim's present," Lisbeth told her mother, surveying Jim and the cake with shining approbation.

It still seemed quite out of place to the mother. Conrad had not come home. It was past supper time and Conrad had not come home. Instead, here was this strange young man pottering about the kitchen, doing women's work. This strange, presumptuous young man.

"But, gosh, Mrs. Lindner," he answered her murmured protest, "this suits me down to the ground. If you'd been living round in boarding houses like I have!"

"Your father and mother" "Vater und mutter," she said it.

HIS eyes clouded and he stood with one strong shoulder lifted as he opened and closed the cake box with intent care. "My dad just died two years ago. But before that it had been boarding houses just the same. You see—well, my folks agreed to disagree when I wasn't anything but a little shaver, and I stayed with my dad. Funny thing about me; I have the time of my young life if you just give me a hammer and nails and turn me loose to putter round a house. I'm real handy."

They sat down to the table.

"Will you be so good und ask the blessing, Mr. Gates?" Mrs. Lindner asked formally.

Up to the ears Jim blushed and turned appealing eyes on Lisbeth.

"I know," said Mrs. Lindner. "It iss no more the custom, the Tischgebet. We remain old fashioned." And she bowed her head and murmured the gentle German words:

"Komm, Herr Jesu, sei unser Gast,
"Und segne was du bescheret hast."

"I made out some of it," Jim told her bashfully. "My dad's mother was Dutch, and she taught me a good bit of it. She always asked blessing, too. I don't think it's such a bad idea, at that."

"No, sir," he went on, savoring the expert seasoning of Lisbeth's food, "I don't know whether you'd believe it, hardly, but this is the first time I've sat down in a regular home to eat—why, gosh, it's been as much as ten years! It's nice the way you fix these potatoes, Betty. And these noodles—honest to gosh, if I was to shut my eyes I'd think gramma had fixed them up. Do you put vinegar in the creamed cabbage just before you take it up, too? Ummm! A real home's a lot different, isn't it?"

"Different?" cried Lisbeth, her color burning high. "I should think you'd find this house mighty different from what you're used to."

"Yes, and I like it—better than anything I've been used to," he said solemnly, looking hard at the girl. "And you know, it's got a grand view of the range; I noticed that first time I drove up for you, Betty. I know how it is, your not having a man in the family for so long. Dad and I, we had to get along without a woman, and O, boy, the buttons! But, gosh, you'd be doing me a favor if you'd let me clapboard it up for you Saturday afternoons. Painted white, with those nifty green shutters—your kid brother and I—say, where is the kid brother?"

CONRAD. Through all the brightness and warmth the name had woven like a thread of anguish.

"I'm not going to light the candles till he comes," said Lisbeth. "But he doesn't deserve any birthday cake at all, staying out this way."

"Birthday cake?"

"O, mamma, had you forgotten? Really? Mamma darling, I forgot, too, till the calendar slapped me in the face with it this morning. I haven't been thinking about anything but myself. And then, all of a sudden, I could seem to see papa giving you that brooch, like you told me—and kissing you. And what would he have thought if he'd known you'd have to—to do other people's washings? O, mamma! Kids are awful. You do everything in the world for them and they——"

Again the door swung open. This time it was Conrad, and he was breathing hard.

"Gee, mom, I'm awful sorry I'm so late, but——" he paused at sight of the stranger, and ducked a hasty bow when they were introduced.

"Gee, mom," he went on as he attacked the plateful of supper his sister brought from the stove, "I borrowed a quarter off you this morning—you never knew it, I bet, and here it is back." He groped importantly in his pocket and brought out a coin. "You see, I had to get 'way over the other side of town and be on time, too." With a lordly air he sat back in his chair and spun the silver across the table, his lips folded over a grin, his eyes bright upon her.

"But—Conrad! This is a dollar!"

"Interest, mom, interest! O, gee, mom!" His nonchalance broke in frank delight at her bewilderment. "I got me a steady job Saturdays and after school. I'm air boy at the Simplex filling station. Yes, sir! Won't a coupla dollars a week help out, mom?"

His feather of pale hair waved triumphantly, and his freckle-smudged face was one broad, eager grin. Mrs. Lindner could only smile back tremulously.

Lisbeth had thrust four pink candles among the sugar roses and ribbons of the birthday cake.

"Let me light 'em!" begged Jim, and their heads almost touched above the tiny tapers. "One for each of us? That's the game? And don't we wish a wish before we blow 'em out? Gosh, I know what I wish, all right!"

Outside a shingle flapped in the rising wind and the loose weatherstrip wailed eerily. The four at the table were silent for a moment as they gazed at the four small flames that flickered in the drafty room.

"Many happy returns, mutterchen!" Lisbeth said softly.

Mrs. Lindner dabbed unashamed at the tears that trickled down her cheeks.

"May it please God!" she said. "For it has been a blessed day. A blessed day!"

The Wind's Work

By Eleanor Jewett.

Into every cranny and nook
Where the snows of winter lie
The March wind sweeps with a swirl of skirts
Out of the brisk March sky.

Never a bit of snow must rest
On field or meadow, by bush or tree;
The frost must melt from the flowers' beds,
Or what will they think of me?

April is coming when March is gone,
April with tears in her lovely eyes;
I must blow winter straight out of the world
Before April cries.

Brick Red, Gray Provide Striking Color Combination

RIGHT off the boats bringing buyers and fashion writers back from the recent Paris showings comes word of the newest color combination. It's brick red and gray—a boon to blondes and brunettes alike.

The costume in these colors that sent the fashion world into ecstasies has a frock in brick red, printed with gray designs, destined to be worn beneath a gray coat with high puffed sleeves and broad shoulders. Below the shoulders and the sleeve tops the coat is straight and slim, held snugly at the waist with a wide, crushed belt.

And it's worthy of note that the Paris couturiers have at last gone practical, thereby getting in step with the rest of the world. For instance, the coats to be worn over print dresses are not lined with the same print, but in self color. This permits their being worn with other dresses in the wardrobe.

Small Shower Stall Adds Comfort to the Basement

With Present Low Costs It's Simple Matter

There Is Plumbing Equipment on the Market to Meet Every Budget.

By Louise Bargelt.

WE see today a basement which has just been given a grand start on its way to modernization, that start being, in brief, the installation of a small shower stall and a small lavatory—by way of getting things all in readiness when the warm weather comes!

There is a vast amount of pleasure and comfort for all the family, but especially for the family's younger members, to be had from the placing of such equipment in the basement.

Now, of course, it goes without saying that there are stalls—and stalls and lavatories—and lavatories—degrees in elegance, in beauty, and in fittings. But the interesting thing about all this at the present time is that much attention is being paid to equipment which is decidedly moderate in cost as well as to that which is comparatively higher priced. We can really have so much for so little these days, a quantity of sheer physical comfort for a small outlay of money.

Something for Every Purse.

In fact, it may be said that one can have what one can afford. Always buy as good a quality of plumbing fixtures as you can afford. Don't stretch your budget too far, however. That takes away from the pleasure of the possession. But, whatever else you do, have your plumbing modernization of all kinds installed by a reputable plumber. Have your plumbing system checked over by an expert, especially if your home is middle aged, before you go ahead with new lavatories, toilets, shower stalls, fixtures and so on.

Take the two stalls shown today. If the modernization started on is to be simple and the expenditure low, lath and plaster would probably be one of the least expensive materials to use. These stalls are some three feet by three feet in floor overall. It would not be necessary to have the same degree of beauty in finish and fittings for stalls in the basement as if they were placed on the first or the second floor of the house. One wants just solid, substantial, well installed affairs that members of all the family can use and by using them save much tramping of muddy and dusty little feet throughout the house.

Prices at Their Lowest.

Again these stalls could be of concrete, of steel, of aluminum, glass, tile, or marble, as beautiful or as simple as one wants. All items, fundamentals as well as accessories connected with lavatories, toilets, and shower stalls have made great strides in the last few years. Shower heads, valves, curtains, and fittings have all improved steadily. And yet prices have not risen accordingly, but come down. So people today are offered phenomenal values in many, many lines.

Usually in the average home there will be no problem of "water starvation" on the floors above from installation of shower and lavatory equipment in the basement. If this happens it is caused probably from the layout of the piping system, and replacement of pipe that is too small for pipe of adequate size will have to be made. Again inadequate pipe sizes are often responsible for the fact that the shower bath water is either too cold or too hot; that it does not remain fairly constant. Here again a good plumber can detect such faulty conditions, if they happen to exist.

The shower bath is a modern luxury. It is, besides, quite a bit of a time saver, for the busy man or woman of the house. It takes scarcely a moment to set the mixing valve at the point which determines the proper condition of the water. A minute or two under the spray and one has had the morning or evening invigorating shower.

Don't Waste Water.

Where people like to use a colder temperature of water there is really a big exhilaration from the shower bath, especially where one has the fine needle point spray which brings the blood to the surface with a rush. Shower baths, too, need be no extravagant consumers of water. It doesn't take so much water for the average shower bath as one uses in a tub. And children can be taught to use the shower economically, without any real waste of water.

Nor are the shower heads any longer huge affairs as they were twenty-five years ago; requiring, of course, proportionately vast quantities of water for their use. From some 18 inches in diameter these shower heads have come down to 12, 8, 6 inches. This latter size is still in use, though 4 and 5 inch sizes are the most popular. And in the last few months we have seen tiny 2½ inch shower heads which will yield the user a satisfactory shower with only 3½ to 4 gallons of water per minute!

Economic Installation.

And speaking of real economies, one man I know recently equipped a workable little shower for the youngsters and grownups, too, in his basement. There was a good floor drain and also an abundance of hot and cold water. So he took a lawn sprinkler, inverted and mounted it on a joist. [He could have used a crosspiece.] Then he ran a hose from the laundry tub, branched so that one end was attached to the cold and the other to the hot water faucet by way of providing a mixture of warm and cold water.

He curtained a small area around all this with a rubber curtain, and he had his stall. [Though, incidentally, such an unprotected mixing of hot and cold water isn't entirely safe if small children are to use it. Better save such a homemade affair for the really hot weather, and use only cold water for the shower, to eliminate any risk of scalding from too hot water.]

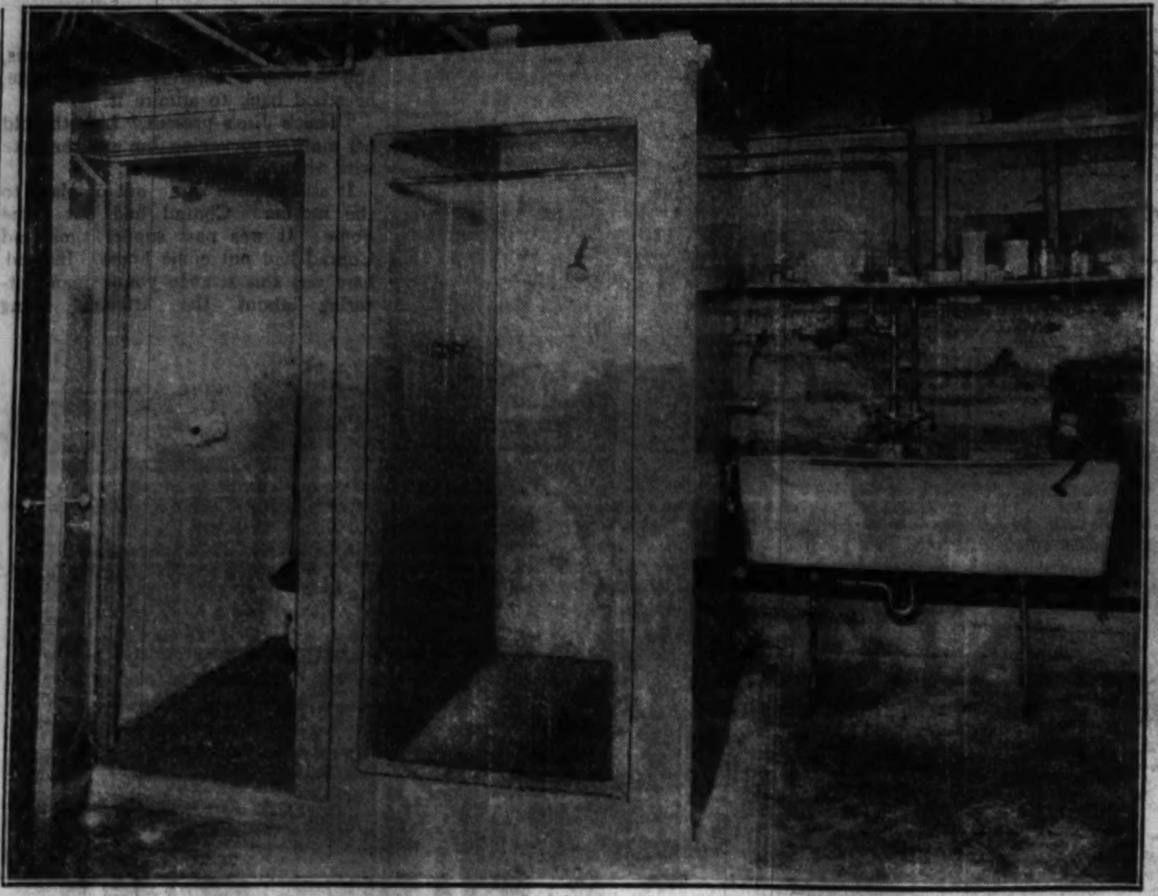
In fact, the mixing valves on the market are perfected fittings. There are two types of general showers, the compression shower and the mixing valve shower. The first has separate valves for the hot and cold water, the second a mixing valve to temper the water. And if you wish you can have devices which give complete thermostatic control and protection against scalding.

Shower Over Tub.

There is no reason for not having a shower in your house this summer, if you want one, for even though you may not be ready for a shower stall upstairs or in the basement you can have a simple shower over your tub. Of course, if you want your piping concealed in the wall, that is more expensive. But if you don't mind having the shower riser pipe visible, the cost is much less.

You just have the shower riser pipe attached to the spout of your tub with the old tub spout replaced with a new one which has a diverter valve. And these attachable showers, it may be said, are made in so many styles, sizes, and types that whatever kind of tub you may have, be it on legs or recessed or what not, may have a simple shower all its own. No breaking of walls required for this kind of shower—or building of walls, either. Just a good, strong screwdriver is required to attach the shower arm flange to the wall.

And speaking of economies again, if your water bills are running high and you have a faucet that is leaking and dripping, you can connect the two. They are cause and effect! Your faucet is probably the compression type. You will find that the washer has become worn. Buy a new one from a hardware store, take out the worn washer and install the new one. A very simple faucet repairing job, but a necessary one when conditions demand it.



This basement has been given a fine start on its way to modernization. We see the new shower stall and separate lavatory compartment. Such equipment in a basement is a big comfort contributor, especially where there are children. And today's prices bring this type of improvement to moderate levels.

Summer Furniture Will Add Color to the Landscape and Delight to the Budget of Small Proportions

By Edith Weigle.

IT'S not too early to be thinking of summer furniture, for in a few weeks the stores will be showing a perfect galaxy of reed, rattan, hickory, peel cane, and springy metal pieces that are going to be smarter looking and more reasonably priced than ever before. And the colors are in keeping with the new ideas.

That stunning combination, brown and yellow, is going to be very good on porch and terrace furniture this spring. We saw an extremely good looking semi-circular stick reed settee and accompanying chairs which had for upholstery brown linen seat cushions and life-saver back cushions of tangerine linen. The reed was painted a citron yellow, and this uniting of brown, tangerine and yellow was simply lovely.

Brown and white will also be very good, as will plaids in brown, yellow, green, and white, and brown, yellow, and black with a touch of scarlet. One State street store is showing a white stick reed porch group in Chinese Chippendale style—it really looks like painted bamboo—with cushions of solid color brown piped in white. The same thing comes with marine blue cushions and is equally good looking.

All white, as mentioned before in this column, will be one of the favorites for spring and summer. Green—not blue-green, but a grass or lettuce tone—is going to be popular again when combined with white. It is one of the coolest colors and we're told the demand for it is always steady.

Water resisting fabrics used on outdoor furniture are ever so gay and colorful this season. With the Century of Progress Exposition just around the corner one notes a decided flair for the modern in design in these practical materials. Geometric and modernistic flowers against a green background; conventional patterns on yellow, and an all scarlet are slated for the shops in a few weeks. Solid color materials that look exactly like leather and can be washed off with a damp sponge are just the thing for chairs and settees that are going to be left out in the garden or on the terrace in good weather and bad. With framework of chromium, the upholstery in pure white or black, the effect is new and chic.

Peel cane is going to be just as popular as ever this summer, and maybe more so, for there's a new touch to it. Backs and seats can now be had in woven, varnished strands with a thread of bright green and black running through them. These enameled threads or strands are made in France, shipped to China, where the peel cane furniture comes from, and there incorporated in the chairs and settees.

Good looking, huge hour glass chairs, peacock chairs, chaise longues with the ottoman separate and slipped under the seat when not in use are some of the types the stores are stocking in peel cane. You know how light and easy to move this furniture is. It is equally sturdy, standing any number of hard knocks.

Hickory furniture, another inexpensive kind, will add some new items to its summer line. There is, for instance, the huge beverage cart on two wheels that can be trundled down to the tennis court and that is nice for afternoon outdoor parties. For the summer camp or log cabin there is a tea cart, actually, in hickory, as well as all sorts of dining room pieces, and rustic chests and beds for the bedroom. Even a radio comes housed in an attractive hickory cabinet [two styles] for the summer cottage.

Rustic hickory furniture is in perfect harmony with flowers and foliage. For this reason one Indiana company has made a complete line of rustic lawn vases, hanging baskets, ferneries, trellises and arbors. These pieces are made of selected tamarack and sassafras, for these woods are best suited to the purpose. This firm also makes a great variety of chairs, settees, tables, etc., that are as comfortable as they are good looking.

Have you seen the new bumper furniture? The chairs are of metal, the curving arms and back being cromium, and the base made like the bumper of an automobile, is a continuation of the sides of the chair. The seat and back are slung between the sides a little like a hammock, all in one piece, and are made of a fadeless and water resisting material that looks like corduroy or leather. A set of glider, settee, and chairs may be had in ensemble or as individual pieces and you'll be surprised at the low price tags.

White painted iron furniture, somehow, has a foreign flavor. We saw a charming little group in a Chicago store. It's made up of huge round table with a glass top and semi-circular benches with rounded backs. When these benches are pushed together they form a circle about the table, a pretty effect. Of course this painted iron will never wear out. All it will need will be fresh coats of paint occasionally.

The picture today shows one of the newest ideas in summer furniture. The solid, fence-like sides of the chairs and settee are of natural color rattan and are the new feature in this group. The settee for two has striped seat cushions and back cushions of plain color, piped in a contrasting shade. One of the armchairs has the same upholstery; the other is varied by having a back cushion in the ridged or life-saver manner.

This notion of using solid color back cushions with plaid or striped or figured seat cushions, or vice versa, is a very popular one this season. All the best looking new summer furniture comes made up in this way.

Everything we've mentioned will soon be for sale in Chicago stores. Some items are on the floors already.

Here is a group of the new summer furniture of rattan, colorful, and with solid, fencelike sides.

Slip Covers Brighten the Appearance of Any Room and Are Easily Made by Following Simple Directions

Colorful Chintzes, Cotton Reps, Linens and Sateens May Be Used.

WillElla de Campi will be glad to help the home maker in any problem pertaining to home furnishings. Address her in care of the Tribune. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By WillElla de Campi.

AS we look over our homes with the critical eye induced by sunny spring days we are almost invariably conscious of a longing for something different—a spring tonic of some sort for the rooms which have become winter weary. We heave a grateful sigh, then, for the prevalent use of slip covers, which may be so commonly used now in either formal or informal interiors.

Color schemes may be completely changed through this delightful medium to suit the moods of the varying seasons. Lovely fabrics offered at remarkably low prices for the spring market make it possible for us to dress our furniture in a becoming new wardrobe at minimum cost. And the psychological effect of such a pleasant change brightens our spirits as well as our homes, making the experiment well worth while.

Chintzes, linens, sateens, cotton reps and percales prove to be the most practical and satisfactory materials for slip cover use. These may be in plain colors with contrasts in pipings and edgings, or in stripes, geometrical figures, or floral designs. The possibilities of beautiful color combinations, of course, are unlimited.

Many establishments specialize in making slip covers to order and the results are sure to be satisfactory. The woman who is clever with scissors, pins, needle and thread should have no difficulty, however, in "making her own" at home. Each piece of furniture, of course, has its own special requirements and the amount of work to be done depends upon the shape and size of the piece to be covered. The following ten simple rules may serve as a guide in cutting and making slip covers for the average upholstered chair:

1. Pin the material across the top of the back of the chair, leaving a good seam margin.
2. Bring the material down to the seat and pin a ½ inch tuck straight across.
3. Lay material smoothly across seat, pinning in another tuck across the front edge.
4. Let the material extend below the edge of the seat to correct depth, allowing for seams.
5. The back piece should then be pinned to the front section, across the top, then allowed to go down the back, to the same depth as the front.
6. Cut straight strips the width of the top of each arm, allowing for seams.
7. Pin lengths of the material to the inside and outside of the arms and sides of the chair, pinning in ½ inch seams on each edge of the straight arm strips.
8. Take the cover off, baste, and stitch on basted lines.
9. Turn in edges and baste or overhand together.
10. Stitch close to the edges to make French seams taken on the outside.

Piping of contrasting color may be used in the seams if desired. The covers may be cut to reach to the floor or may be made with a 3 or 4 inch box, with a gathered or box plaited flounce set on.

Today's illustration shows a comfortable sofa with a slip cover of glazed chintz, cool and clean in character as well as in appearance. The chintz has a design of black snow flakes, widely spaced, in a field of tiny black polka dots on a white ground. The same material may be made with the design in white on red, blue, or green and in red on yellow. In this instance, it is piped with emerald green and there are two extra cushions covered in plain green rep, finished with black ball tassel fringe.

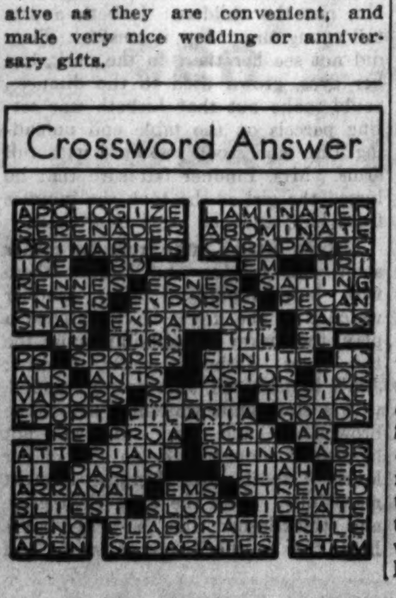
The comfortable sofa illustrated is dressed in a slip cover of chintz in black and white design, and the armchair nearby is done in black, green, and lemon yellow. These covers are easy to make.

Leather Boxes for Family Pictures

FOR those particular people who do not like to have photographs of the family strewn about the living room there are commodious leather photograph boxes imported from Italy in which to stow all one's collections. These boxes are as decorative as they are convenient, and make very nice wedding or anniversary gifts.

Crossword Answer



THE UPHILL ROAD

But Mr. Strack defended her earlier self from her later.

"It wasn't exzactly your fault that Ben never rode down with you for as soon as he'd git you to the top he'd always say he hed to go on and deliver somethin' even if he hadn't nothin' a' tall. We used to kid the life out o' the kid. But o' course you never suspicioned us common critters was alive in them days."

There were so many things she had never suspicioned in them days! Them was the happy days! Or was they?

THE car was grunting up the hill she had descended at such speed on her little stomach in them days. She could feel anew the wild, fleet rush down the grooves of dazzling snow; then the slow, exhausting trudge uphill, except when the boy mayor happened along. She saw a kind of symbol in it of her most recent experience. Her father's collapse had sent her scooting down from the heights and left her to climb to the top again on her own legs, if at all. The boy mayor could never help her back to those far off heights of yesterday. Or could he? He said he could. Perhaps he could. There was an ugly insolence about his manner, but she could not afford to be particular now about people who could help her father. Mr. Strack was still talking:

"How's young Treadgold makin' out? The one they called Nolly. Seen much of him?"

"Not much, no."

"Gosh, how you and him used to fight! He'd never pull you up the hill like the boy mayor done. Not him! You two used to scrap like all get-out. You sure had a temper, Miss Dicey, in them days. All the other boys was afraid of you, and you bossed 'em all around and gave 'em what-for if they didn't step lively. But not Noll! No, sirree. He give you what-for for what-for. Lord, the little terrors you children was!"

It came over her with a sudden surprise that there was after all a kind of perverse flattery in Noll's unrelenting wars with her. He had granted her all the rights of equality, including the honor of being hit just as hard with a snowball as she threw at him or he at any boy; the right to have icicles pushed down her neck when she pushed icicles down his; blow for blow, and the retort discourteous in return for the same, as man to man.

But she forgot him as she approached the gates of the old Wayne farmstead and she broke in on Mr. Strack's ancient history with a word of alarm. She had just remembered that she could count on being met by a tumultuous rush of dogs, leaping about the automobile and risking their lives to clamber in and welcome her. What wouldn't they do to the wolfhound and he to them? She could hold Jinka high in her arms, but the hound would start a frightful battle.

"As you come to the gate, Mr. Strack, speed up, will you, please, and cut right through the pack of dogs that is sure to meet us."

But no dogs met her. Between the ivy clad gateposts a chain was stretched. In front of the chain stood a small dinky car, empty; the driver had got out and was expostulating across the chain with Stefan, the Polish superintendent of the farm, who stood shaking his head at the stranger and refusing him entrance.

Everything, from Inside Out, Belted, Is Fashion's Edict

THE fashion world has gone completely and delightfully mad about belts, leather or fabric affairs that are high, wide and handsome. No piece in a woman's wardrobe, not even lingerie, can afford to be without its belt, and the wider the smarter. Play clothes and work clothes, all must be securely and spectacularly belted.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

SACK of funds have frustrated the ambitions a number of people entertain for themselves or for their children. It is for these, if their ambitions are directed toward music, that I am printing an interesting letter this morning.

"Dear Sally Joy Brown: No doubt with your wide contact with families in the different walks of life, you may know of some who would be glad to give their children the benefit of what I have to offer. . . . I should prefer to take only those who positively cannot afford to pay but who have sufficient enthusiasm to want to study.

"I wish to give five of six worthy youngsters violin instruction free. I have studied in Chicago for seven or eight years and, though not actively engaged in teaching, I should be happy to give this instruction. I now have a lot of spare time on my hands and realize there must be many who would like to study music but cannot afford to enroll with a school. Furthermore, since there would be no financial gain for myself in it, the students would benefit more. It would be purely a matter of art and the furtherance of some student's ambitions. Let it be plain that I refer only to violin instruction and not to any other instrument. Yours truly, S. M."

It's a marvelous opportunity for those who feel they may have some talent but have not been able to develop it. There are no restrictions or obligations on your part and the only requirement is that you show a willingness to study. S. M.'s offer is open only to those who cannot afford to pay for lessons.

If you wish to take advantage of this splendid opportunity please write to me immediately. We cannot consider telephone applications.

Gift for Amateur Milliner.

"I have a large box of beautiful feathers of various colors, formerly used as hat trimmings. I wish to give them away and wonder if you know of any one who could use them. I also have some opera librettos and some silk patches which could be used for quilt pieces or doll dresses. Perhaps some one could use the plumes which are perfectly lovely in making hats or masquerade costumes.

"MRS. L. [illegible]"

The home milliner should have a grand time with this collection of colorful plumes and feathers and there are other gifts for the rest of you, too. Write and tell me which of these you'd like to have; please do not telephone.

Prospects for Spring Term on Chicago Stage

Two Theaters Survive Banking Crisis; Shows Coming for World's Fair

By Charles Collins.

THE Chicago stage emerges from the clouded period of the banking moratorium with two theaters alive and prospering—the Harris, where the Abbey Repertory company of Dublin is converting its limited engagement of two weeks into an indeterminate run, and the Cort, where "The Family Upstairs" resides with apparent determination to win the season's duration contest. "The Red Robin" survived the financial coma, but expired at the Grand Opera house last night.

The casualties of that strange and historic week were: "The Bride Retires," which would never have had a chance under the most favorable circumstances, at the Blackstone; "Dixie on Parade," which had already enjoyed more than its natural life, at the Garrick; and the Chicago Operetta company, whose revival of "Katinka" marked the last flicker of an ambitious but weakly capitalized adventure, at the Civic Opera house.

Doldrums of Lent.

Thus, with two survivors of the crisis, the era of renewed economic hope and ended panic begins for the city's footlight amusements. The fresh start coincides with the time of Lenten austerities and the spasm of pangs in the domestic budget caused by the filing of income tax returns.

Also, from New York, the main source of supply for the Chicago stage, come reports of a concerted movement among the managers to curtail their activities, perhaps to close their theaters in desperation, for the purpose of securing wage scale concessions from the stage hands' and musicians' unions. Altogether the omens for early spring premieres are not propitious. A doldrum, apparently, is at hand.

First Night Prospects.

However, there are signs that Chicago's theatrical life will begin to quicken when lilacs next in the door yards bloom. The success of the Abbey company and its surprising box-office immunity to the effects of the banking holiday has brought to an attitude of attention the producing managers with tourable shows in their possession. Moreover, A Century of Progress draws near as the winter leaves are torn off the calendars, and the pilgrims to the exposition will magnify one hundred fold this city's potential theatrical audience.

The schedule of first nights between this date and the first week in May is still incomplete, but it contains certain items of definite interest. For example: "Counsellor-at-Law," with the highly acclaimed Paul Muni as its hero, will appear at the Apollo theater April 7 for a week's return engagement. The company will be composed mainly of veterans of the long Chicago run of last season.

On April 18 Maurice Schwartz will bring his Yiddish Art theater company to the Apollo for a brief stay in "Yoshe Kalb," a drama that is rated as one of the classics of the Hebraic repertory. Schwartz's reputation in New York extends far beyond his racial audiences; all of Broadway's most exacting and sarcastic first nighters have lavished eulogies upon his character studies and his stage direction.

World's Fair Star.

Walter Hampden, unless he has canceled a date made long ago, will reach the Apollo May 8 with his revivals of "Hamlet" and "Caponsacchi." His

Animal Tamer and His Beasts in Grand Film

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

For a first hand view of one of those wide open spaces where men are men and lions and tigers are most emphatically lions and tigers, I refer you to "The Big Cage"!

This is the picture with the sterling mark. In other words, when you see Clyde Beatty, youngest animal trainer in the world, working in a cage with wild animals, that's really what's happening—and little if any trick photography foolin'!

Clyde Beatty bears the distincton of being the first man to work lions and tigers together in the same arena. Furthermore, he is the first tamer to put on a successful act in which both sexes of brutes are represented.

A Great Animal Thriller.

In "The Big Cage" he does his stuff—and I'm here to tell

NEW PLAY STRIKES AT GRAFTERS IN CONGRESS

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—Maxwell Anderson rises to explain. His new play, "Both Your Houses," which the Theater Guild produced this week, does, as charged by this correspondent, stem from Mercutio's line, "A plague o' both your houses!" so far as its title is concerned. But it is not the playwright's intention to substitute the houses of congress for those of Montagues and Capulets, which this correspondent also inferred.

The Anderson reference is to the Republican and Democratic parties, as these are represented by the professional politicians who run them. These professionals, says he, have become so calloused to injustice, so blind to the extravagances they permit and so unconscious of their own deficiencies that the situation is no less than appalling.

Politicians, shouts Mr. Anderson with more boldness than many if not with more originality, have made graft, special privilege and corruption practically their only business. And even now, in the face of all that has happened, they are sublimely unconscious of the rising temper of the people, who will one day sweep them from the governmental offices they have cheapened and disgraced.

Caught Grafting.

He has centered his attack, the better to illustrate his argument, on the appropriations committee caught in the act of increasing a $40,000,000 deficiency bill to $200,000,000 in order to buy up various groups of votes that will guarantee the bill's passage over a presidential veto.

His protagonist is a young school teacher elected to the house of representatives from Nevada, where there is no money. The politicians have accepted this young man, Alan McClean, as a youth amenable to discipline whom it will be easy to handle. But the first thing Alan does on arriving in Washington is to investigate his own election. Finding this to have been largely purchased by certain interests, he turns

TEN NORTHWEST SUBURBS GO TO POLLS APRIL 18

Two or More Slates Seek Offices in Each Village.

Politics moved into the spotlight last week with the announcement of party tickets for the municipal and village elections to be held in northwest suburbs on April 18. The deadline for filing last Tuesday found at least two, and in several instances three and four slates, in the field in each of the ten municipalities which will elect officials. And there were also, as usual, a few independent candidates in the running.

Lively bi-party contests were in prospect in both Des Plaines and Park Ridge. In Des Plaines, Mayor Charles Hammerl, who heads the constructive government slate, is being opposed by Ald. George W. Kinder of the Third ward on the new deal party ticket. A mayor, city clerk, treasurer, police magistrate, and five aldermen are to be elected in Des Plaines and a similar number in Park Ridge, with the exception of police magistrate.

Des Plaines' Two Tickets.

Mayor Hammerl's running mates on the constructive government slate in Des Plaines are Charles Kemmell for city clerk; Arthur Wiedemann for city treasurer, and Vincent Connor for police magistrate. The aldermanic candidates are: Hobart Ahbe [1st], Edward Rielly [2d], Raymond Imig [3d], Victor Lacey [4th], and Jacob Heinrich [5th]. Ahbe and Lacey are incumbents.

On the new deal ticket with Ald. Kinder are Edgar Friedrich for city clerk, Charles Larson for city treasurer, and Dana Schubert for police magistrate. The aldermanic nominees are: [1st] Harry Tucker, [2d] Walter Pflughaupt, [3d] Paul J. Huxmann, [4th] E. A. Fredericks, and [5th] Louis Meinshausen. William R. Hayes, police magistrate, is an independent candidate for reëlection. Friedrich, Pflughaupt, Huxmann, and Meinshausen are running for reëlection.

McKee vs. Platts in Park Ridge.

The two complete tickets in Park Ridge, the better government and the united economy, are headed respectively by Mayor William A. McKee and Dr. L. Arthur Platts.

Running with Mayor McKee as the better government candidates are City Clerk Ian Glass and Leonard H. Johnson for city treasurer. In the First, Second, and Third wards, George N. Stembridge, Harry E. Jacoby, and Vernon W. McAfee are the respective aldermanic candidates for reëlection, with P. T. Weber in the Fourth and Walter H. Lake in the Fifth ward completing the better government's council slate.

On the united economy party ticket Halbert H. Porter is the candidate for city clerk and William J. Becker for city treasurer. The party's nominees for aldermen are: Helmer Hansen [1st], Robert J. Monohan [2d], Charles Stade [3d], Roy J. Miller [4th], and Francis S. Percival [5th]. Miller is running for reëlection.

Three Elmwood Park Tickets.

There are three tickets in Elmwood Park, where a village president and four trustees, one for a one year vacancy, are to be elected. They are Citizens, Communist, and Better Government slates.

Thomas Carey is the candidate for village president on the Citizens' ticket. George W. Mulroney, Albert Jacobs, and Adolph J. Bochte are running for trustees for the full term, and James G. Dal Carro for the vacancy.

On the Communist slate William Mack is running for president, and Joseph Debeck Jr., Theodore Flucher, Enzo Macchini, and Wesley J. Herrick for trustees, Herrick a candidate for the vacancy.

The Better Government candidates are John A. Cullerton for president of the board, and Olaf Schau, John A. Wesler, Eugene Ceragioli, and Charles R. Evans for trustees. Evans is running for the short term.

Two Slates in River Grove.

River Grove will have a biparty contest in the election of a village president and three trustees.

Martin L. Enger heads the Citizens' ticket, with Fred J. Von Rath, Louis J. Goergen, and John L. Steinmetz as his running mates.

The Nonpartisan Taxpayers' party offers Frank A. Conboy as its candidate for village president, and Joseph E. O'Donnell, Samuel Curran, and Louis Pope as the nominees for the board.

Three Way Fight in Franklin Park.

Franklin Park will see a three cornered fight for the presidency of the village board and the three trusteeships, with an independent candidate for village president to enliven the race further.

Ernest Siebold heads the Citizens' ticket, with Peter J. Erickson, Richard Ciehler, and William Cullen as candidates for the village board.

Schiller Park Taxpayers.

The Taxpayers' ticket in Schiller Park is headed by Herman H. Werth for president of the board of trustees, with Henry G. Schure, Harry C. Cutler, and August F. Wahl as candidates for the board.

Julia M. Kolze leads the Peoples' party for village president as the only woman candidate for that office in any northwest suburb. Her running mates for trustees on the ticket are George Kirmse, Robert J. Rohlfes, and Emmett M. Sheridan, while John H. Burns is the candidate for police magistrate.

The third Schiller Park slate is that of the Goodwill party, composed of Richard L. Mentzel for village president; Otto Welinske, Clarence M. Rasmussen, and Angelo Festi for trustees, and William F. C. Mueller for police magistrate.

There are three independent ticket candidates for police magistrate. Morris E. Dudley, Walter A. Thiede, and Gilbert H. Finke are running under the Efficiency, Welfare, and Nonpartisan banners, respectively.

Mount Prospect President Runs Again.

In Mount Prospect Herman F. Meyn is seeking reëlection as village president on the Progressive ticket and is being opposed by Gustav A. Andresen, who heads the Citizens' slate. Dudley W. Budlong, Walter F. Niebuhr, and Arvid Carlson are candidates for trustees and George Tatge for police magistrate on the Progressive ticket. Budlong, Niebuhr, and Tatge are running for reëlection.

The Citizens' party's candidates for village trustees are Walter E. Bach, Edwin Haberkamp, and John B. Martin, while Frank L. H. Lueders is running for police magistrate.

Two Parties in Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights is electing a village president and four trustees, one for a one year term. J. E. Flentie is a candidate for reëlection as village president on the Regular party ticket, and is opposed by Nelson F. Hauff as the United People's party nominee.

Running for trustees on the Regular ticket are Gus Framberg, Walter Krause Jr., Charles Pingel, and John Firnbach for the short term. The candidates on the United People's slate are George Schaefer, Otto Wulbecker, Arthur Weinrich, and Elmer W. Crane for the short term.

Two Party Contest in Palatine.

In Palatine A. R. Godknecht heads the Citizens' ticket for village president, with M. E. Plate, S. J. Oltendorf, and R. B. Remus for trustees. Mrs. Grace Greener and R. J. Schotte are the party's candidates for the two places on the library board.

An opposition ticket is composed of W. S. Dollinger for president, A. G. Schmidt, Arthur Mess, and Herman Sherner for trustees.

Free-for-All in Barrington.

The field of candidates in Barrington, where a village president, three trustees, a police magistrate, and two members of the library board are to be elected, appears to be a free-for-all. The only semblance of a ticket is that of the Taxpayers' Independent party, which has a candidate for president and two for trustees. The party's nominee for president is H. D. A. Grebe. Edward Davis and Lylia Deerman are its candidates for the village board.

Frank Partridge and Elden Gieske are running independently for president; Earl Hatje, Vernon Schroeder, John Blanke, and John Deschler for trustees, and A. D. Church and Frederick Sturtz for police magistrate. E. M. Wallace, Harry Munsig, and Mary Peterson are candidates for the two 2-year places on the library board, and Gertrude Schmemm for the one-year term.

DIRECTS BENEFIT

MRS. J. W. DAMMERS.

The Chicago Amity club is sponsoring an evening card party for the benefit of the Oak Park and River Forest School Children's Aid society to be held at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in the Elks club, Oak Park.

This charity was organized a year ago and the club has had many calls and has provided needy school children with shoes, clothing, and dental and medical care, which included the fitting and furnishing of glasses.

Mrs. J. W. Dammers, social chairman, is in charge of this affair.

ALD. MORELAND ASSAILS RIVAL AS "YES MAN"

Calls Holmes Servant of Administration.

In his fight for reëlection to the city council from the 41st ward Ald. James C. Moreland has attacked his opponent in the April 4 runoff election, Oliver W. Holmes, as one who, if elected, would take order from the city hall administration, instead of giving the ward a nonpartisan representation. Holmes now is an assistant corporation counsel.

Moreland is charging that Holmes in the aldermanic election two years ago supported the Democratic candidate on a promise that he would be given a job in the city hall. Moreland further asserts that there are too many "yes" men in the council whose actions are directed by the political bosses, and pledges himself to give the ward independent representation. Moreland is a Republican.

Asserts Holmes Forgot Promise.

"My opponent," Moreland accuses, "promised to conduct a clean campaign and during the early days of the February campaign kept that promise. But nine hours before the polls opened he spread propaganda that I was responsible for certain things that should have been charged to the account of himself and his Democratic sponsor.

"It was said that I was responsible for the lack of feeder bus transportation on the Northwest highway. As a matter of fact, two days after my election as alderman I proceeded to work for the extension of the Surface line system on the highway and two months after my election I filed a petition with the Illinois commerce commission asking for feeder buses on that street to serve the people of Norwood Park and Edison Park."

M. V. L. Supports Holmes.

Holmes, however, got the indorsement of the Municipal Voters' league in the February election this year. The M. V. L. criticised Moreland for voting against economy proposals of the late Mayor Cermak. Moreland contended that the proposals did not represent true economy.

DENTIST CANCELS $11,000 IN DEBTS TO AID 'NEW DEAL'

So confident is Dr. Septimio Di Cosola, a dentist at 947 Taylor street, that better times are already on the way that he canceled yesterday more than $11,000 in debts owed him by patients.

"Business conditions are really coming to the turning point," the dentist said. "With our new President problems will soon be solved. I am certain of this and in accordance with the President's 'new deal' I have canceled all debts up to now. Most of them were contracted in the last four years.

"Many of my patients couldn't pay, but told me they would when they went to work again. But I want to wipe everything clean and let them start new, too. My father often spoke of similar times long ago, but he refused to be discouraged. He always said that as long as a man was willing to work he would more than make up for time lost when he got work again."

Dr. Di Cosola, who is known as "Little Doc" in his neighborhood, expects to open his new office at Cicero avenue and Jackson boulevard. He has been at the present location since 1919.

CHURCHES MAKE RAPID PROGRESS ON FAIR EXHIBITS

Hall of Religions Is Being Built on Lagoon.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

George W. Dixon, chairman of the religious exhibitions at A Century of Progress exposition, has announced that the major religious bodies of the country are making rapid strides toward the completion of their exhibits for display in the Hall of Religions. The Hall of Religions is rising rapidly on a site fronting the lagoon, not far from the north end of the exposition grounds.

Separate exhibits are planned for Missouri Synod Lutherans, Episcopalians, the Salvation Army, and several other communions which will be housed in the Hall of Religions.

Hugh S. Magill Put in Charge.

Mr. Dixon also announced the appointment of Dr. Hugh S. Magill of the International Council of Religious Education, in charge of all the religious exhibits.

Methodist participation in the exhibition is being pressed by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Chicago area. He recently appointed a committee of 60 Methodist pastors and leading laymen to direct the work of that denomination in its preparation for the exposition. Mr. Dixon is chairman of the committee. Four subcommittees to carry forward the Methodist work in respect to institutional participation, finance, missionary and benevolent boards and exhibits were also appointed.

Episcopalians Build Chancel.

Episcopalians are erecting a Gothic chancel of elaborate design opposite the main entrance. While some of the churches, including the Episcopal group, will keep their exhibits distinct from all others, several communions will offer a joint exhibit which will be organized to show the principal functional activities of the coöperating Protestant faiths.

BISHOP TO SPEAK IN LOOP

The Rt. Rev. Charles E. Woodcock, bishop of Kentucky, will come to the Grand Opera house Lenten noonday services of the Church Club of Chicago this week. He will speak each noon at 12:10.

Bishop Woodcock is widely known for his comments upon present day conditions. He once said he prefers the modern flapper to the "Grecian curves" and hoop skirts of half a century ago.

Since 1905 Bishop Woodcock has been head of the Episcopal church in the diocese of Kentucky, with headquarters in Louisville.

ORATORIO AT HOLY NAME

Perosi's oratorio, "The Passion of Christ," will be performed for the first time in the central states at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening, Laetare Sunday, when the Cardinal's Cathedral choristers will sing it in Holy Name cathedral under the direction of the Rev. Edwin V. Hoover, musical director of the cathedral. There will be no admission charge.

The blessing of babies will take place in Holy Name cathedral at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Children up to 6 years old will receive the papal blessing, will be enrolled in the Miraculous medal, and will each be given a medal.

15 SCHOOL BANDS TO COMPETE FOR DISTRICT HONORS

Fifteen high school bands, including 150 soloists and 300 ensemble players, will compete in the northwest district contest of the Illinois School Band association to be held Friday and Saturday at Proviso High school, Maywood.

Winners will represent their schools in the state contest at Urbana April 27, 28, and 29, and several of the successful contestants will seek further honors at the national contest to be held at Evanston in June.

High school bands to compete this week-end include those from Thornton Township High, Harvey; Blue Island Community High; Bloom Township High, Chicago Heights; Lyons Township High, La Grange; Deerfield-Shields Township High, Highland Park; Waukegan Township High; Leyden Township High, Franklin Park; Maine Township High, Des Plaines, and Proviso Township High, Maywood. Most of these communities are also entering grade school bands.

The J. Sterling Morton High school band, Cicero, which, with East Aurora High band, last year won the state contest, is expected to appear on the program as guest band. Due to the fact that a national contest was not held last year, the Morton organization is automatically qualified to represent Illinois in that event this year.

WEST SIDE GETS READY TO HELP FAIR VISITORS

Mark Shanks Is Head of Hospitality Group.

Community leaders of the west side and west suburbs have launched a program designed to give aid to the host of motorists who will visit A Century of Progress exposition this summer to promote the exposition and to benefit their own neighborhoods.

At the first meeting of this group, held at the fair grounds recently, Mark Shanks, representative of the West Towns Chamber of Commerce, was elected chairman. Mr. Shanks handled the drive for $5 pledges for the fair in 1928.

The prime object of the movement is to extend hospitality to world's fair visitors, to provide information at points of concentration, and to place at their disposal data concerning hotels and rooming houses which will be advantageous as headquarters.

Uniform Decorations Planned.

Mr. Shanks has announced that the group will coöperate to the fullest extent with the exposition's traffic department. It is probable that business men of the district will be asked to adopt a uniform system of window decorations.

Motorists, it is pointed out, will find it convenient to park their cars before entering the loop, to arrange for headquarters, and to continue to the exposition by other means of conveyance.

Community leaders designated to arrange a fitting welcome for visitors were selected because of their familiarity with their particular neighborhood.

NORWOOD FORMS LEAGUE TO CHECK PARK EXPENSES

New Group to Scan All of Board's Acts.

A close check on the activities of the Norwood park district board, particularly in respect to expenditures, is the objective of the newly organized Civic Publicity League of Norwood Park, according to an announcement made by the organization committee following the initial meeting last Tuesday evening in the clubrooms of the Norwood Park Woman's club.

The announcement pointed out that the league is to be strictly a nonpartisan body, interested in the board's acts solely from the taxpayer's point of view. It proposes to wield its influence purely in the interests of economy and efficiency in the administration of district affairs. No attempt will be made to dictate to the board, it was pointed out, but any action by the board that involves the expenditure of money will be subject to review by a committee of the league which will attend board meetings and otherwise keep a check on its activities.

"To Let the Taxpayers Know."

All data on proposed bond issues, outright expenditures by the board, and the district pay roll will be aired by the league's committee with a view to "letting the taxpayers know how and why their money is being spent."

"Any proposed step by the board that seems to be not in the best public interest will be laid before the tax paying residents of the district and the weight of public sentiment brought to bear against such contemplated action," according to the announcement by the organization committee.

Steffen Temporary President.

KILLERS' ALIBI SHATTERED BY W-G-N LOG BOOK

Checkup Blasts Listener's Story; Two Convicted.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Figures entered in W-G-N's logbook shattered the alibi of a couple of Danville murderers and contributed materially toward their conviction recently. Here's the story:

MARTIN DOHERTY.

Ralph K. Towl, assistant manager of a Sears-Roebuck store at Danville was shot and killed during an attempted holdup shortly after 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening, June 2 (the day Franklin D. Roosevelt addressed the final session of the Democratic national convention). Towl was leaving the store to deposit receipts at a neighboring bank when accosted by one James Bureca and one Joseph Tropea, a pair of transients. When Towl turned to run back into the store he was shot in the back. Nine witnesses identified Bureca as the killer and six identified Tropea.

The defendants lived with one Alphonse Del Valley, whose brother, Alfred Del Valley, offered the alibi. Alfred testified that that evening between 8 and 10 o'clock he listened to W-G-N's broadcast of the Democratic convention proceedings in his garage, 250 feet from his brother's home, where, he testified, he saw the defendants playing cards.

State's Attorney Oliver D. Mann, first Democrat to hold that office in the county since the civil war, was well aware that the Democratic convention had adjourned shortly after 6 o'clock p. m. and that W-G-N had left the air.

The court, however, held that the evidence that W-G-N had ceased broadcasting the convention at 6 p. m. was not proof that all stations broadcasting the convention were off the air. The jury disagreed at the first trial.

Prior to the second trial, State's Attorney Mann communicated with Frank Schreiber of W-G-N to establish all of the details of the broadcasts at the convention. Schreiber referred Mann to Martin J. Doherty, superintendent of the Stadium. In consequence Doherty was called as the final witness for the state and testified that he personally supervised the dismantling of broadcasting booths and saw the final wires torn out of the Stadium not later than 7 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time, July 2. The defendants were convicted and sentenced to life terms in the state penitentiary. Alfred DelValley was indicted and faces trial as an accessory to the killing.

Charlie Agnew left a big hole in the Sunday musical schedule when he concluded his series last week. Agnew and his fine vocalists made an auspicious start on the program almost a year ago, but they finished even better. Tenor Stanley Jacobsen was at his best in "Rosita," a new number by Henri Woode, new colored arranger for Agnew, presented for the first time last Sunday. We shall miss this half hour musical program, which is supplanted by the Northwestern Chronicle, a newspaper sketch, featuring Dolores Gillen. At 1:30 today over KYW.

The puff series featuring Ruth Etting, Jane Froman, and Lennie Hayton leaves the air April 14. . . . Tony Wons, long popular on the air, and Nick Lucas, a favorite even earlier as a troubadour, are featured at the Palace this week. . . . With Wons are Peggy Keenan and Sandra Phillips, well known radio piano team. . . . Jack Russell's orchestra will replace Tweet Hogan's on the airways beginning next Thursday. . . . Herbie Kay is at the Lowry in St. Paul and heard over WCCO and KSTP.

Clyde McCoy, W-G-N batoneer used to play with Burns and Allen on the vaudeville stage 'way back when George was doing the comedy and Gracie the straight part. . . . Clyde was with the Louisville Loons at the time. . . . George Burns and Clyde McCoy are both addicted to and adept at billiards. . . . McCoy was also associated with Bing Crosby when the barimoaner of CBS was getting his start.

Here's a thumbnail sketch of Little Jackie Heller, whose appealing tenor voice is featured regularly over WBBM-CBS [at 4:15 today]. A shade under 5 feet, in his early twenties, Jackie was born in Pittsburgh; began his career as a newsboy yodeler; attracted attention of Eddie Cantor playing in "Kid Boots" there. Cantor took him to New York; Benny Davis featured him in vaudeville, as did Lou Holtz later. "Discovered" by Ben Bernie last fall in an Atlantic City night club and "adopted" by him. Since then he has become extremely popular in Chicago and on the airlanes. He possesses 85 medals for proficiency in athletics. Held Pittsburgh A. A. U. flyweight championship for two years. At his best, sitting on a high stool, singing "I've Got a Right to Sing the Blues."

Phil Baker's Friday night broadcast seems destined to become a favorite. Bottle, his butler, and Beetle, his stooge of the stage, contribute much to a half hour of hilarity. The jokes are a shade better than Eddie Cantor's, but hardly up to Fred Allen's. The blonde Neil sisters, the Merrie-men quartet, and Roy Shield's orchestra help to make this well balanced airfare. East and Dumke, whom Baker replaced, will be much missed at this hour. You can catch them in the afternoons, however, as "The Sisters of the Skillet."

Earthquakes hold no terror for Bob Elson, W-G-N's baseball announcer. In spite of the reports of temblors in California, Bob left last Sunday night according to schedule traveling by train to Kansas City and then taking a plane the rest of the way. He will spend two weeks with the Cubs and White Sox and the rest of the major league baseball teams in California gathering material for his broadcasts next summer.

Childhood memories came rushing back for Bernie Cummins last Tuesday when the mailman and express men were carting all sorts of children's toys into his apartment. The occasion for the gifts was his birthday, which is celebrated by the various members of the family in this traditional way. Every member of the family sends a toy as a gift. Walter, a brother, who appears with Bernie at the Trianon and over W-G-N, sent him a pair of roller skates.

Singin' Sam's Program.

Singin' Sam will acknowledge many requests for another number from his minstrel répertoire when he offers "I'm Goin,' Good-by" during his program over W-G-N and Columbia at 7:15 p. m. tomorrow.

TSCHAIKOWSKY SYMPHONY TO BE GIVEN ON W-G-N

"Manfred" Scheduled for 2 P. M. Today.

Toscanini will direct a work of Tschaikowsky over the air for the first time since he has been broadcasting when he leads the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in the Russian master's "Manfred" at 2 o'clock this afternoon over W-G-N and the Columbia network.

Described as a symphony in four scenes, the "Manfred composition was inspired by the poem of the same name by Byron.

"Ring" Scenes to Be Given.

The second half of the program will be devoted to familiar compositions of Richard Wagner. Four of the most beautiful scenes from the "Ring" operas will be heard: the preludes to Act 1 and Act 3 of "Lohengrin"; the graphic and colorful nature painting of the "Waldweben" (forest murmurs) from "Siegfried," and the thrilling musical picture of "Siegfried's Rhine Journey" from "Götterdämmerung."

Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times, will be heard as commentator during the concert intermission.

Liszt and Chopin.

Ernest Hutcheson, distinguished concert pianist, will offer a program of compositions by Chopin and Liszt when he is presented over WBBM and Columbia from 9:15 to 9:45 tonight. The Chopin group will include the tuneful Valse in C sharp minor, the lilting Berceuse and the intricate etude in G flat. Accompanied by Howard Barlow and the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, Hutcheson will conclude the program playing Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy."

R. APPLEBERRY FALLS FOR TALK OF REALTY MEN

Rube Appleberry has "gone to the sod." The famous fast ball pitcher of the W-G-N comedy sketch, "Big Leaguers and Bushers," has fallen for the smooth talk of a snappy Florida real estate salesman. Rube's on the road to wealth, if you listen to Appleberry and the real estate man. The Panthers are training in Florida, and Rube, of course, is working out his famous pitching arm getting "Hurricane Hannah," the fast ball, ready for the opening of the season.

Rube has more trouble brewing, too. On the train bound for Florida, Rube got himself a new "gal," Mary Lou. He introduced her to his pal, Tommy Malloy, and now Mary Lou is about to desert Rube and transfer her smiles to Tommy.

W-G-N will introduce a new artist from 6 to 6:15 o'clock this evening when Lillian Wayman Nicolson presents her first program of piano classics. The new artist is a pupil of Guiseppi Ferrata and Howard Wells. For her opening program she will present: "Poem," by Deems Taylor; "G Sharp Minor Prelude," by Rachmaninoff; "Etude Tableau," by Rochim; "Sarabonde," an old style religious number by Rameau arranged by Godowsky, and "Garden of Spring," by Niemann.

SCALLAWAGS TO BUILD STATION IN THEIR SHACK

A children's radio broadcasting station—that's what Uncle Quin's scallawags are building in their shack in the back yard. In their nightly adventures at 6 o'clock from W-G-N this week Davy Dreamer and Jean and Wishbone will be heard making plans for this gigantic plaything that will be the envy of every little girl and boy.

They will have tryouts and auditions, just like the regular radio stations. They will have announcers, singers, minstrels, sports broadcasts, and even a tiny dance band. Wishbone, the mouth organ virtuoso, is organizing a hot orchestra.

They will impersonate, in their make believe adventures, Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, Gracie Allen, Ted Husing, and the Mills Brothers. They will try some dramatic sketches and comic strips. And if the demand is strong enough from their neighborhood listeners they will even add market reports of their own.

EDDIE, FANNIE WILL APPEAR IN W-G-N MYSTERY

"Milligan and Mulligan" Enlist Gossipers.

Two radio programs will be rolled into one, and fact will be humorously united with fiction, in the "Milligan and Mulligan" comedy detective series over W-G-N from tomorrow to Saturday. The episodes are presented over W-G-N at 10:15 p. m., and over CBS at 6 p. m.

In the episodes of this week, Eddie and Fanny Cavanaugh, who actually present a gossip program over WIBO, come to "Milligan and Mulligan" with a story of threatening letters. Bob White, who writes the series, vouches for the fact the solution is so weird that a week after these episodes were finished the author was still amazed. The Cavanaughs will appear "in person" in the mystery.

Joe Cook on "Inside Story."

Joe Cook, well known comedian, will make one of his rare radio appearances when he appears with Edwin C. Hill on the "Inside Story" over W-G-N at 8:30 o'clock next Friday evening. Hill will engage the comic in an informal conversation, during which he will relate the background of the incident which first started him on the road to fame. If his own "inside story" compares with his famous explanation of why he will not imitate four Hawaiians the listeners will be in for a hilarious time of it.

Solve Mystery, Face Another.

Commander Dailey and his juvenile fellow adventurers solve one mystery and are immediately plunged into another one in the forthcoming episodes of "The Devil Bird," over W-G-N and a midwest network. W-G-N presents these five a week episodes from 5 to 5:15 p. m.

EFFECT OF RIGHT THINKING TOPIC ON MIDDAY HOUR

In the discussion of the theme, "What a Man Believes," speakers for the W-G-N midday service for the coming week will portray the effect that right thinking exerts in the building and development of character. McLaughlin, Loyola university; Wednesday, Dr. Timothy Lehman, president of Elmhurst college; Thursday, Dr. Herbert L. Willett, minister, Kenilworth Union church; Friday, Dr. Solomon B. Clarence Rand will sing that unusual number, "You Are Too Beautiful," from Al Jolson's latest picture, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum." Frances Stevens, "baroness of the blues," and Bill Miller, tenor, will also be presented.

Edward House Succeeds J. Wilson Doty at Organ

Edward House, theater organist, is to succeed J. Wilson Doty as staff organist at WBBM. He will be heard in all programs calling for organ accompaniment, beginning tomorrow. For nine years House has been featured as a Balaban & Katz organist. Before coming to Chicago he was organist and arranger for the 42 piece orchestra at Sid Grauman's theater in Los Angeles.

Salerno Will Present Musical Comedy Songs

Songs from popular musical comedies and operettas will be featured by Lawrence Salerno tonight when he presents a half hour program with the W-G-N Concert orchestra from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Welcome in Bitter Cold Thrills Gossiping Girls

Back home from their eastern trip, Clara, Lu, 'n' Em confess that the biggest thrill of their entire trip was a shivering but eager group of fans who waited until the girls' train came through Syracuse at 10 o'clock at night to bid the girls hello and good-by although the thermometer was near zero.

R. T. Van Tress to Give Garden Talk Wednesday

"Starting Annuals and Perennials from Seed," will be the timely subject of Robert T. Van Tress on W-G-N at 12:50, Wednesday. JACK SPENCER. [Lewis Gilchrest Photo.]

The first episode of "The Railway Inn," a comedy sketch featuring Jack Spencer, will be heard at 4 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and will continue at this same hour each Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday.

The scene of "The Railway Inn" is the little eating establishment of old Unc Pickens at the junction point of a one track railway town in the mountains. Unc Pickens runs the inn with the assistance of his good man, Jonas, and the story is woven around the customers of the inn and village. Spencer not only is author of the sketch but enacts all the rôles in his drama.

Jack Spencer comes from the stage and made his first appearance on W-G-N in an act called "Tony's Café." He was heard in "Harold Teen" in the rôles of Beezie Binks, Pop Jenks, and Olly Joe. He was the Jack Swanson of "Easy Aces," and is heard each Monday night as Oswald in the W-G-N Minstrel show.

HOMESTEAD STRIKE OF 1892 TO BE REVIVED ON HEADLINES HOUR

Does your memory carry you back to those days in 1892 when the famous battle of the Homestead, Pa., strike was fought between steel mill workers and a band of Pinkerton detectives? Quin Ryan will revive the headlines from the newspaper of July 7, 1932, at 9:40 tonight over W-G-N on his "Headlines of Other Days" program. He will picture the famous battle of the river front at the mill when the striking workers were defending the mill property from an attack by a hired force which was engaged to take possession of the mill property.

ALEX O'HARE

With Mr. Ryan on the broadcast tonight will be Alex L. O'Hare, a Chicagoan, who as a boy of 14 was one of the workers at the mill, a striker and one of the combatants. Mr. O'Hare will give an eyewitness account of the strike tonight.

Mrs. Vander Ploeg's talk has been prepared by Ellen Yockey of Taylorville, and is one of the series on "Are You a Citizen in Reality," which is sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Neighborhood Theaters

Another cinema musical comedy, replete with pretty girls, catchy tunes and excellent costuming, makes its appearance on the west side today at the Marbro theater. "Forty-Second Street" has Warner Baxter, Bebe Daniels, George Brent, and Una Merkle as headliners. The tale concerns a nervous producer whose show just must be a success. Love interest lies with the leading lady and a vaudeville performer who follows her where e'er she travels. Ruby Keeler (Mrs. Al Jolson) does nicely in her rôle of a chorus girl who is unexpectedly chosen to substitute in a leading part.

"Strange Interlude" in Two Hours.

Eugene O'Neill's five hour play, "Strange Interlude," has been condensed into a two hour drama in the film version showing at the Harding. Clark Gable. The story of the thwarted love of Nina Leeds and Ned Darrell and the triumph of their devotion through the years is presented with as telling effect in the film as in Mr. O'Neill's herculean dramatic effort. Miss Shearer gives a performance regarded by many critics as the best of her career, while Clark Gable's characterization of the stalwart Dr. Darrell, her lover, is an intelligent and convincing one.

Cantor in the Bull Ring.

Eddie Cantor demonstrates that as a bull fighter he is a good sprinter and fence hurdler in "Kid from Spain," showing at the Gateway. Eddie does his bull fighting, such as it is, in Mexico whence he has gone following expulsion from college after he had been discovered hiding in a girl's dormitory. Heart interest is furnished by Ruth Hall and Robert Young. Supporting players include Lyda Roberti, Noah Beery, and John Miljan.

It is a case of love at first sight, but the princess is called back to Kyria to rule the revolutionary subjects. Supporting rôles are excellently handled by Alison Skipworth, Paul Cavanaugh, and Arthur Byron.

The Bitterness of Love.

East is east, west is west, and the twain may never meet in "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," showing at the Crawford theater. Therein a white girl comes to China to marry a missionary and is kidnaped by a Chinese general, who holds her captive in his castle. Race and color keep them from the love that grows between them. Barbara Stanwyck, Nils Asther, and Gavin Gordon are the players.

Prospects for Spring Term on Chicago Stage

Two Theaters Survive Banking Crisis; Shows Coming for World's Fair

By Charles Collins.

announced intention is to stay only one week, but if he should dig for an exposition run nobody would be surprised.

This opening will coincide with the appearance at the Selwyn theater which has been dormant for almost a year, of Lenore Ulric, specialist in pagan girls, who frankly expresses her ambitions to become a Chicagoan for the summer if the citizenry rallies to her support. She will appear either in a new play called "The Naked Woman" or a revival of one of the great successes of her career as a Belasco star. If she is bent upon recapturing her past I wish for "The Son-Daughter" rather than "Lulu Belle."

Another prospect for the exposition period is the revue called "Flying Colors," which has been one of the popular song-and-dance shows of the Broadway season. According to the gossips George Jessell, Norma Talmadge, and Harry Richman are contemplating a three-star alliance in this production by Max Gordon, to entertain Chicago during the summer.

Irish Players Continue.

The Abbey theater company of Dublin is beginning the fourth week of its admirable repertory of Irish drama [mainly comedy] at the Harris theater, and thus its limited engagement has been transformed into a prosperous run of indefinite length. These talented specialists in the folk-drama of their race have become the talk of the town and have brought distinction to an exceptionally dull period in the annals of the Chicago stage.

No performance will be given tonight, because the players are in need of a recess from the exactions of their constant changes of bill. Tomorrow night their schedule will be expanded by a new title, "The Shadow of a Gunman," by Sean O'Casey, author of "Juno and the Paycock." Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News" will be the curtain raiser.

The Abbey program for the rest of the week will be as follows:

Tuesday night, "The Playboy of the Western World," preceded by "The Workhouse Ward"; Wednesday matinée, "The Far-Off Hills"; Wednesday night, "Juno and the Paycock"; Thursday night, "The New Gossoon"; Friday night, "The Playboy of the Western World," preceded by "Cathleen ni Houlihan"; Saturday matinée, "The Whiteheaded Boy"; Saturday night, "The New Gossoon."

Barrymore Play

NEW YORK, March 18.—[Special.]—Additional information of Ethel Barrymore's new managerial venture, "An Amazing Career," at first called "Encore," has been announced by the actress-manager. Miss Barrymore started her tour in the Wittgenstein-Gibney play, which has already been tested under the management of Arthur Hopkins, on March 15, in Springfield, Mass. From there the play will go to Providence, Boston, and Philadelphia, and on May 29 it will open in Chicago.

The star's supporting company will include McKay Morris, Frederic Worlock, Sebastian Braggiotti, Alfred A. Hesse, Josephine Hull, Georgie Drew Mendum, Erna Rowan, and Eleanor Powers. The production is being staged by E. M. Blythe, a pseudonym Miss Barrymore has used as director of previous vehicles, among them "Scarlet Sister Mary" and "The Kingdom of God."

Due to Miss Barrymore's illness the play was withdrawn in New Haven last November by Mr. Hopkins after a brief road engagement.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, March 18.—[Special.]—Next week will have a Lenten aspect on the Gotham stage. The premières will be few and insignificant. Here are the announcements:

"Raw Meat"—Opens Monday night at the Provincetown Playhouse. The authors are Holmer Little and Myla Jo Closser. Cleon Throckmorton designed the settings.

"Far Away Horses"—Opens Tuesday night at the Martin Beck theater. Postponed première of a comedy about Irish life in New York state.

"Ann Adams, Spinster"—Opens Monday night at the Sutton. This affair will be a fortnight's test of a play by Robert Ober, actor. Mabel Taliaferro and Mr. Ober will have the leading rôles.

Stars for Miller

GILBERT MILLER, now in Hollywood, announces his plans for the next stage season as follows:

"Helen Hayes, Edna Best, and Herbert Marshall will appear in New York under my management next season. Leslie Howard will stage a play under joint management—mine and his—as he did in 'Berkeley Square' and 'Animal Kingdom.' We are also planning to present him in London this summer."

German "Beggar's Opera."

Francesco von Mendelssohn has come to New York from Germany to direct the newest version of "The Beggar's Opera." He assisted in the direction of the original German version, "Die Dreigroschenoper," and directed Noel Coward's "Private Lives" in Germany. He is a great-nephew of the composer, Felix Mendelssohn.

Comic Characters in Irish Drama

MAUREEN DELANY, BARRY FITZGERALD.
[Sketch by Ben Cohen.]

Here are two of the merriest members of the Abbey Theater company of Dublin, now at the Harris theater, as they appear in "The Whiteheaded Boy." Maureen Delany, in the role of Aunt Ellen, and Barry Fitzgerald, in the part of Postmaster Duffy, are trying to outwit one another in this episode, but their argument ends in an agreement to get married. As a courtship scene the passage is unique.

New Drama by Engene O'Neill; Gotham Stage

EUGENE O'NEILL, now in seclusion at Sea Island, Ga., has written another play, which will be ready for the Theater Guild in the fall. It is said to be a normal play, without masks, dinner intervals, or any of the characteristics of O'Neill's recent works except gloom.

A new producing firm known as Henry Hammond, Inc., has acquired the rights to Albert Bein's play "Little Ol' Boy," and intends to present it in a Broadway theater late in April. This play has been held at various times by several producers.

"Champagne Supper," the play by Elsie Schauffler which Peggy Fears now has in rehearsals, will open on Thursday evening, March 23. Besides Dorothy Hall, who will be starred, the cast includes John Buckler, Charlotte Granville, Daisy Belmore, Eugene Powers, Mildred Natwick, Harriet Eells, Byron McGrath, and Charles Arnt. Arthur J. Beckhard is directing the production.

After visiting Boston next week, George M. Cohan's "Pigeons and People," which leaves New York tonight, will play consecutive weeks in Washington, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn.

Milton Aborn has a project to stage a play with music called "The Savoyards." This is part Gilbert (lyrics), part Sullivan (music), part Willson Whitman (book), and part Milton Aborn. It is a play about Gilbert and Sullivan. Spring production in probable.

The committee appointed by the League of New York Theaters to discuss wage scale reductions with its stage hands' and musicians' unions is composed of Brock Pemberton, Lawrence Langner, William A. Brady, David B. Finestone, Eva Le Gallienne, Laurence Schwab, and Marcus Heiman.

"Strange Gods" will begin a preparatory engagement at the Broad Street theater, Philadelphia, on March 27, prior to its Broadway première on Easter Monday, April 17. The cast is headed by Minor Watson, Vera Allen, and Ralph Theodore.

Laura Hope Crews will be co-starred with Roland Young in the new play by Clare Kummer, tentatively called "Only With You," which Max Gordon plans to present on Broadway next October.

"A Trip to Pressburg," now on tour, will appear in Washington next week. Several changes in the company will be made before the play reaches New York.

"Lone Valley," a new play by Sophie Treadwell, which opened March 10 at the Plymouth theater, closed the next evening, having played but three performances. "Our Wife," a comedy at the Booth, which had been announced to close on Saturday night, will continue at that theater.

Among those expected to appear in the cast of "The Secret Among Four," now in preparation, are Louise Prussing, Lee Patrick, Virginia Farmer, Audrey Ridgwell, Jessamine Newcombe, Averell Harris, and Noel Tearle.

Ethel Barrymore began her tour in "An Amazing Career," formerly called "Encore," in Springfield, Mass., on March 15.

The openings of two Broadway attractions have been postponed. "Champagne Supper," which was to open Thursday night of next week, will not be presented until March 27 or 28 at the Booth theater. The other production to delay its première is "The Party's Over," which will come to the Vanderbilt theater March 27.

Rehearsals for the new W. Somerset Maugham play, "For Services Rendered," which Sam H. Harris plans to present in the week of April 10, have begun under the direction of Robert B. Sinclair. The cast includes Fay Bainter, H. Reeves-Smith, Elizabeth Risdon, Jane Wyatt, Katherine Grey, Henry Daniell, Percy Waram, Leo G. Carrol, Lillian Kemble Cooper, and David Glassford.

Margaret Sullavan, last seen in "Chrysalis," will replace Marguerite Churchill in the cast of "Dinner at Eight" on March 25.

Veteran 'Supe' Puts Thrill in German Drama

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—[By mail.]—For years Hans Stura, veteran opera singer and actor, dreamed of having the stage to himself, of being the cynosure of all eyes, of stirring the hearts of his hearers by high declamation. But engagements as supernumerary were all that presented themselves and his talents were swallowed up in the press of the crowd of other "supers." His lines, too, were brief and insignificant: "Hail, the king comes!" or something similar spoken in chorus with many, many comrades.

There came a night when Stura trod the boards, once again just a super, but——

The play was a historical drama, "Oliver Cromwell's Mission." The audience in the Volksbuehne theater was tense. The neighborhood outside was in an uproar. Just opposite was the headquarters of the communist party of Germany, the Karl Liebknecht house, flying a huge red flag in the glare of a battery of floodlights. Underneath, soldierly young policemen patrolled for blocks around, shouting gruff commands, "Shut your windows or we shoot!" "Keep moving," meantime energetically swinging their clubs at knots of jobless assembled to hoot and jeer them.

All during the day the square outside had been brown and black with uniformed Hitler troops who had marched, under the protection of hundreds of police rifles and machine guns, to demonstrate their defiance toward communism before the very doors of its national headquarters.

The last act was in progress—the great final scene—a sitting of England's parliament under the Great Protector. There was commotion in the mob of "populace" on the stage. A fiery figure burst forward to the footlights and declaimed in ringing grand manner: "Stop, you myrmidons of the law! As last of the decapitated parliament, I confess myself converted and hope that soon a German Cromwell may arise who will drive out the parasites and plunderers of prostrate Germany. Hurrah for the free German republic!"

The audience gave his impromptu a round of applause, but the theater management did not applaud the sensational originality of this last and least of their cast. They had him fetched from the stage, grilled him, and threatened him with abject dismissal. "Super" Stura, in all the dignity of his recent rhetorical triumph and his 65 years, denied that he had any ulterior political purpose—he had wanted only for once to shine in his own proper glory, to have a real part for himself.

"All my life I dreamed of the moment; now I saw my chance to make it real——"

The decision was to make his punishment mild.

German Actor

MAX MONTOR, a German actor, will give a recital of German ballads and lyrics in Harper Assembly room, the University of Chicago, on April 6 at 4:30 p. m. His program, sponsored by the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, is open to the public without charge.

Mr. Montor's first appearance on the American stage was made nine years ago, and he has since played with Eva Le Gallienne in "The Master Builder," with Walter Hampden in "Hamlet," and in "Street Scene." His readings at the University of Chicago will include selections from Goethe, Schiller, Hebbel, Heine, and Fontane, all in German.

McClean is put through the usual paces, snubbed in committee, rendered impotent in debate and protest, handtied and tongue-tied by the usual methods. But it happens that the vote on the deficiency bill is close and that he, with his youthful and enthused eloquence, is able to rally six or eight nonpartisan liberals to his side and give the regulars a thorough fright. When he sees he cannot defeat the bill he determines to load it with all the exorbitant items the pork barrel crowd have proposed in order to make it so ridiculous the congress will have to vote it down, and is dumfounded and depressed to see it, thus loaded, go sailing through with a better than two-thirds majority.

A Prophetic Warning.

At the play's end he stands in the midst of their liquorish celebration and issues a prophetic warning with such fire that audiences have remained to applaud him:

"I'm not a politician," says he, "I'm a Nevada school teacher. I don't know your tricks; you showed me that tonight and I won't forget it. But I didn't lose because I was wrong. I lost because I tried to beat you at your game and you can always win at that. You think you are good and secure in this charlatan's sanctuary you've built for yourselves. You think the sacred and senseless legend poured into the people of this country from childhood will protect you. It won't. It takes about a hundred years to tire this country of trickery—and we're fifty years overdue now. That's my warning.

"And I'd feel pretty damn pitiful and lonely saying it to you if I didn't believe there are a hundred million people who are with me, a hundred million people who are disgusted enough to turn from you to something else. Anything else but this!" he stalks out of the room.

"And good luck to him," mutters Simeon Gray, the veteran chairman of the committee who has tried so desperately to be honest.

Clearly Spoken, Direct.

As propaganda drama, which it is, "Both Your Houses" has the advantage of being more clearly spoken and more direct than most. It is not cluttered up with many scenes as was Elmer Rice's "We, the People." Neither does its author permit himself the costly luxury of getting mad. His effort apparently is to do his bit in stripping masks from political cheats, a work that has been going forward for some time and that has recently gained considerable impetus, what with "Mirrors of Washington" and such like attacks.

In picking types Mr. Anderson has not neglected the essentially honest old fellow who has been in congress for thirty years and fought for his people through every one of them, even when he had to barter and trade and cheat with the rest to get what he could for them. His most lovable character is that of Solomon Fitzmaurice, a veteran of the political wars, who began honestly enough, was duly whipped into line and is now a little proud of being regular in his grafting enterprises and those of his protected friends.

Graft, reasons Sol, has been guilty of many crimes, but graft has also built railroads and motor roads, public buildings and public parks. Graft has been responsible for the organization and functioning of all forty-eight state empires. Graft will never be removed from politics because, to Sol, "the natural resources of this country in apathy and indifference have not even been touched."

Two Excellent Actors.

This rôle is played by the Walter C. Kelly (brother of George Kelly, playwright) who, I hope, many of you will recall as the likable Virginia judge of your happier vaudeville days. He steps into it with all the poise of an old-time legitimate character actor, and adds so much in the way of geniality, shrewd wit and homely banter to each of his scenes that he is of vast help to the play.

The boy who plays young McClean is also new to this district. Shepperd Strudwick is his unstagelike name, and I am told he has come through several seasons of experience in various stock companies. He was engaged originally to play a minor part and to understudy the lead. Suddenly he found himself advanced to the lead and waded into it with such fine enthusiasm, backed by a definite stage talent, that he was highly successful the first night.

The ladies, who are of negligible importance in a plot that has little touch with the common romance of the stage, are Mary Philips, playing a wise stenographer who helps the fighting McClean, and Aleta Freel, who is the old politician's daughter Alan might have loved if he had had time for that sort of thing. Worthington Minor has directed the play with excellent judgment.

Spectacular Negro Drama.

The newest of the colored shows is a fairly spectacular folk drama with much singing called "Run, Little Chillun." Hall Johnson wrote and arranged it, and if he needs further identification he is the man who directed the spirituals in "The Green Pastures," than which nothing in the way of choral singing has been more inspiring to me.

Ever since that experience Mr. Johnson has wanted to evolve a dramatic background that would permit an illustration of the way Negro spirituals were born, and here he has it. By posing two religious groups against each other, a pagan sect called the New Pilgrims and a Christian group of Hope Baptists who are strong for revivals, he is able to stage two tremendously stirring climaxes.

In his first scene Jim, the Baptist minister's son, restless and doubtful in his own mind, is being lured away from both the church and his wife by Sulamai, a fascinating gal from Toomer's Bottom. Jim goes to a meeting of the New Pilgrims in the woods with Sulamai and there sees the ungodly indulge in an orgiastic tribal dance that is as weird and as moving as any similar exhibition has ever been. A dimly lighted stage crowded with dusky blacks, some all but naked, some robed in white; half a hundred voices chanting and shouting pagan hymns; half a hundred dancers writhing, stamping, leaping in bodily gyrations that were forerunners to all the hulas since invented. This scene stirs an audience to many encores.

Back in the Fold.

Next act Jim is brought back into the Hope Baptists' fold through the earnest prayers of his good wife, and this is, logically, cause for such rejoicing as has never been staged in camp meeting scenes before. Now the Christians are thrown into various fits of religious hysteria, while the choir sings and the preachers exhort the penitent. Now the saved are on their knees in prayer. Now they are on the floor prostrate before the altar. Now Jim has come rushing through the door to embrace his tearful father. Now Sulamai has followed after and, taking Jim's mind briefly off the glories of salvation, would lead him again from the church, when the thunder rolls, the lightning crashes and Sulamai is stricken dead!

This, too, is a stirring adventure in the theater. It would not surprise me if, the bank holiday over, "Run, Little Chillun" would become something of a fad with a good share of our novelty-hunting public. Fredi Washington, known to the night clubs and colored music shows as a beauty and a dancer, plays Sulamai.

Popular Dramatists.

The result of a poll conducted by the Liverpool, England, Playhouse placed Sir James Matthew Barrie as Britain's most popular dramatist, with "Mary Rose" being his most liked play. John Galsworthy came second and Shaw third, followed by Frederic Lonsdale, Somerset Maugham and

HELEN MORGAN.

Helen Morgan's next venture will be in a light opera version of the celebrated emotional drama "Camille." She has anticipated the production of this piece by posing for photographs in the style of Sarah Bernhardt, famous interpretress of this old school heroine.

Vox Playgoer

To the dramatic editor:

CHICAGO, March 13.—I am still undecided whether "The Red Robin" should be called a musical comedy or an operetta. Had they left Nick Long Jr. with his "high jumping" and his fixed smile out of it I think we could legally term it a typical Shubert operetta, but with Mr. Long and his hurdling one cannot but anticipate a chorus to follow, thus making in my meager judgment a musical comedy. I firmly believe there is a distinction between the two.

The prologue was much superior to the first act. Its present day slang and modern witticisms would have been very much out of place in Vienna in 1908. Charles Chesny is, I believe, worthy of mention. He has a full toned voice, perfect control, and certainly a personality that is an asset in putting a song over.

The first act I thought rather long and without anything apparently accomplished, except for the introduction of new characters. Mr. Jones was excellent as usual. He is much more at home in "The Student Prince" or "Blossom Time." I am afraid, however, that the Shuberts in attempting to commercialize on his good looks are going to ruin his voice with too much work and strain.

I'm just a playgoer with an intense interest in the theater. To confirm that I might mention that I have seen "The Student Prince" twelve times in the last eight years.

LEWIS H. HUSS.

O, Yeah?

Chicago, March 14.—Congratulations are in order for your review of "The Red Robin." You showed your first sign of humanity and animation for a long time. Your only previous humanity has been in your references to the Albertina Rasch girls and the "Third Little Show" girls.

JAMES SAPPLE JR.

Vaudeville Bills

PRESENTING one of its semiannual "festival" shows, the Palace offers seven instead of the customary five acts on its current program. These are the acts:

Tony Wons—A philosopher and humorist of the radio, assisted by Peggy Keenan and Sandra Phillips, in "Tony's Scrap Book."

Nick Lucas—A crooning troubadour of stage, screen, and radio.

De Wolf, Metcalf, and Ford—Rapid fire dancers whose moratorium on the rumba gives their turn its title—"What, No Rumba?"

The Chicago theater's stage program of this week includes:

Mae West, star of "Diamond Lil," and recently starred on the screen in "She Done Him Wrong." She sings "Frankie and Johnnie," and similar songs, and appears in a comedy playlet written by herself; Ed Lowry, master of ceremonies and entertainer, in two novelty numbers; King, King, and King, fast stepping dancers, and the Chicago Theater Dancing Ensemble.

Optimists

DWIGHT DEERE WIMAN and Tom Weatherly, producers of "The Gay Divorce," in which Fred Astaire is now starring in New York, announce that because of the steady improvement that is taking place in the legitimate theatrical business they have decided to begin immediate preparations for a "Fourth Little Show" revue, to be presented early next fall.

In this production they will deviate from their original formula inasmuch as the forthcoming "Little Show" will have a thread of a plot running through it. The work of assembling material has already begun.

New "Counsellor"

PAUL MUNI will act the title rôle in Elmer Rice's drama, "Counsellor-at-Law," coming to the Apollo theater for one week, beginning Sunday night, April 9. He originated this character. His company includes Jennie Mossowitz, Harry Mervis, Anne Teeman, Regina Wallace, Dorothy Day, Jack Leslie, Martin Wolfson, Conway Washburne, Angela Jacobs, Malka Kornstein, T. H. Manning, J. Hammond Dailey, Doris Underwood, Sam Bonnell, Sue Moore, Ned Glass and others.

How to Spell Miss Cornell's Christian Name

THE printed dedication of Clemence Dane's play about the Brontës, "Wild Decembers," misspelled Katharine Cornell's first name, which brought around anew the discussion about the spelling of Katharine. How Miss Dane feels about it is indicated by the fact that when she presented the actress with printed copies of her drama she indignantly crossed out the offending e, substituted an a, and signed her name with a flourish to register for posterity that she was not responsible for the typographical error.

While the Encyclopedia Britannica spells the name one way only, "Catherine," the Century Cyclopedia of Names gives a catholic choice, "Catharine or Catherine, also Katharine, Katherine," and adds that the name is derived from the Latin-Greek meaning "clear, pure."

That it is not only in America where Katharine is used is shown by the Oxford University Press edition of "The Complete Works of William Shakespeare," published in 1923, for there Katharine is so spelled in "Love's Labour's Lost," Henry V.," and "Henry VIII.," while in "The Taming of the Shrew" a third a is added, making it Katharina.

Miss Cornell says that she received the spelling of Katharine at her christening because her mother, not liking Katherine, did like Katharine. Ever since the actress, in sorrow, not in anger, has fought, by proxy, with sign painters and typesetters to preserve her name as it was given to her.

Hampden's Tour

WALTER HAMPDEN'S town in "Caponsacchi" and "Hamlet" is now headed for the middle west, southwest and Pacific coast. His travels will bring him to this city Monday, May 8, when he will begin an engagement of six performances of "Caponsacchi" and two of "Hamlet," at a theater to be announced later.

Mr. Hampden might be called a crusader in the cause to which he has devoted his life. No other actor or manager has had the hardihood in these parlous economic times to undertake two transcontinental tours within a year with organizations doubling or tripling in size and expensiveness all other dramatic attractions on "the road."

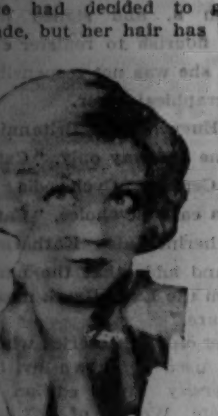
Alice White Wins Coiffeur, Loses a Fiance

Long Locks All Around Is the Barrymore Order to Dolores Costello.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Before Alice White left on her last tour there was the problem of what to do about her hair. Alice had decided to go platinum blonde, but her hair has been treated with especial care with an especially prepared mixture by her own hair dresser.



ALICE WHITE.

Cy Bartlett, Alice's manager and boy friend, stepped into the breach and learned the method of caring for the precious locks, so that he could do it for Alice while they were on their vaudeville circuit.

Whether it is wise to have a fiancé around under foot when beauty is in the making is a question, for Cy and Alice had a falling out a few weeks ago and at this writing things still seemed that way.

Alice's most recent rôle is in "Luxury Liner," at Paramount, and she stops the show. Incidentally, it is the picture-going public's first sight of Alice's new nose, by Dr. Josef Ginsberg, plastic surgeon. Seems Alice's nose was inclined to pug and two neat slits on the inside and a bit of sniping, then a neat seam and presto, the pug's straight.

Greeted with a Roar.

Dolores Costello Barrymore got tired of her long golden locks awhile back and decided to try the effect of short hair. She snipped off the side hair around the ears, leaving the knot intact in the back, and did Husband John set up a roar that echoed to the house tops. No clipping of woman's crowning glory is going to be allowed around John Barrymore's house.

DOLORES COSTELLO.

People do say that their older baby, the girl, looks like Ethel Barrymore, one of her namesakes, and that the baby son is a dead ringer for famous grandfather, Maurice Costello—curls, dimples, personality, blue eyes, and all.

For the first time in seven years the star list at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer came out this week and the name of John Gilbert was not on it. John's new film, "Rivets," is in the can and his tenure as a film star—at least, at the studio he has called home—is all over. Whether it is a good film or not I don't know. Some say one thing, some another, but an entire week was spent making retakes.

Doubles for the Stars.

Cherie May is up about again after a long siege of mumps. Perhaps you don't know her by that name, but you've seen her many, many times on the screen in the last eight years that she has been a daring stunt woman in films.

CHERIE MAY.

Cherie May does parachute jumps, jumps over cliffs, climbs ropes, falls downstairs and many other things that are too dangerous for your favorite female star to attempt.

She recently doubled for Fay Wray in "King Kong," climbing up and down dizzy heights and on ropes for her. She doubled for Janet Gaynor in "Tess of the Storm Country" and for Sylvia Sidney in "City Streets."

Three Children to Support.

A while ago, when Lenore Ulric made "Frozen Justice," Cherie May worked for her. In a fall on to a rock—a fall of twelve feet—she crushed a lung. Following this she has gained weight steadily, reaching 158 pounds, and was having trouble getting work because she could not get in the star's clothes nor do her work. Dieting made her nervous and steady nerves are a necessity in hazardous work. She couldn't exercise to lose weight because it injured her health.

Luckily for her Dr. Maurice Lebell, who has achieved some renown through his pomegranate juice reducing, tried out a combination of the pomegranate juice and desiccated vegetables on Cherie May and got her down to the necessary 118 pounds. Then came the mumps, but Cherie is up and about again ready for a parachute jump, an auto crackup, or a leap over a cliff. She does it because she has three children to support and it's the easiest way to make money.

Diamond Lil Returns

MAE WEST

She is the actress who stands as a symbol of the sexy period of the American stage, which begins to be old-fashioned. She is most famous for her "Diamond Lil," self-written vehicle, but she has written and acted in other plays of the underworld, she is a published novelist, and she recently became a cinema star. Miss West is headliner at the Chicago theater this week.

As I write—I shudder! For I am recalling a scene wherein a lion and a Royal Bengal tiger hurl themselves at each other and battle to what certainly would have been the death but for the gallons of water propelled at them with devastating force by the ever present fire hose. I am remembering another scene in which Nero, the meanest lion of them all, leaps upon the slim young man who's been bossing him around and bears him to the ground. . . . It's an undisputed fact that the hospital saw Mr. Beatty more than once during the months he worked on his stupendous act, and it's a wonder to me that the m rgue didn't get him. This nonchalant, smiling agile youth certainly looks nothing like one's idea of an animal trainer. But you, as well as his pupils, are fooled if you think he isn't. Can act, too.

The Whole Show.

Mr. Beatty and his killer kittens are, so to speak, the whole show. True, there's a bit of heart interest introduced via an assistant trainer's (Wallace Ford's) love affair with a pretty trapeze performer (Anita Page), and pathos has its way when a drunken one-time star trainer's small, adoring son runs away from school to join the circus, where he dotingly believes his dad is still the big shot, meets disillusionment and sorrow, and finds solace in the care of the new trainer. Great little actor, Mickey Rooney, almost on a par with Jackie Cooper.

All of the playing is commendable as are photography, sets, sound, and direction in the main.

This is preëminently a picture for the whole family and the producers will, in my opinion, be making a huge mistake if they attempt to promote it on a sex basis. Beatty and the Beasts—that's the selling point.

A suggestion: Bits of vulgar and uncalled for dialogue between Andy Devine and Vince Barnett need scissoring. Without exception they are extraneous. Strange that when a director has a good thing like "The Big Cage" he'd permit to be dragged in by the heels stupid, latrinal lines which are certain to offend many and that will surely cause some parents to keep their children at home.

However—I must urge you to see "The Big Cage." It may be a long time before we are treated to another such stimulating animal picture.

Bits aBOUTem.

DOROTHY WIECK, who created such a sensation as the star of "Maedchen in Uniform," was recently signed to a long term contract by Paramount and sails from Germany for Hollywood on March 20. Her first American made picture has not yet been assigned to her . . . VIOLA DANA, petite favorite of the old "silent" days, has been recaptured for the screen by Columbia and will be seen as Ivy in their short feature, "The Strange Case of Poison Ivy." . . . CLAIRE WINDSOR also reappears in World Wide's "The Constant Woman" . . . DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS will be starred with LESLIE HOWARD in Warner Brothers' forthcoming production, "Fellow Prisoners" . . . "WHICH," queries the press agent for Fox's "Man Eater," "would you rather do, fight a twenty-five foot python coiled around your body—or lie passively on a cot with your eyes closed while an equally active python crawled about your tent?" Personally, we would rather have a chocolate soda . . . BORIS KARLOFF, that specialist in weird rôles, whose "Frankenstein" monster caused the world to shudder, has sailed for his native England, there to make "The Ghoul," to be produced by British-Gaumont, just outside of London. . . . In his masterly review in the London Era G. A. Atkinson has this, in part, to say of "Cavalcade":

"The fact that this most English of plays, full of poignant English emotions, has been filmed so well in Hollywood is a miracle for which there is really no adequate comment. If we had tried to produce 'Cimarron,' say, in this country we should have some idea of the difficulties that faced Mr. Sheehan.

"It's only major fault is the ghostly presence of the American viewpoint on English life. The gentility of the Barryots and the democratic instincts of their servants are alike overemphasized. We are not quite so war guilty or so war conscious as America thinks. The past three decades of our national life were not almost wholly a Calvary of tears, and our general social and moral disintegration since the armistice stops considerably short of the excesses shown in the film.

"With these reservations, I have nothing but praise for Hollywood's 'Cavalcade.' I think it is a masterpiece of cinematic dialogue and emotional eloquence. There has been no finer writing on either stage or screen.

"It is strewn with epigrams, but not one is forced. Each rises naturally out of the situation. I am unable to recall one line in which the dialogue strains for an effect, though how easy it would have been to slip into rhetorical excess amid such a welter of crucial emotions.

"This, perhaps, more than any other factor, explains the film's notable sense of dignity and poise. It is clothed in the majesty of great words and phrases that come direct from the heart."

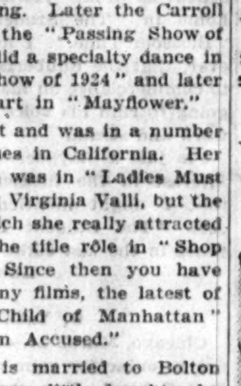
HISTORIETTE

NANCY CARROLL was born in New York City in 1906 and educated in a convent. She is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 116 pounds and has blue eyes and red hair. Her favorite recreations are dancing and riding.



NANCY CARROLL.

Her stage career was launched in a local contest staged in one of the Loew theaters on the east side of New York. She and her sister won through their super-fine kicking. Later the Carroll sisters entered the "Passing Show of 1923." Nancy did a specialty dance in the "Passing Show of 1924" and later was given a part in "Mayflower."

She went west and was in a number of musical revues in California. Her first screen rôle was in "Ladies Must Dress," starring Virginia Valli, but the first part in which she really attracted attention was the title rôle in "Shop Worn Angel." Since then you have seen her in many films, the latest of which were "Child of Manhattan" and "A Woman Accused."

Miss Carroll is married to Bolton Mallory. She has a little daughter by her first husband, Jack Kirkland.

Hollywood Happenings

Colleen Moore is her happy self again after months of fighting off the mental depression that settled over her sunny Irish smile when it seemed that she would never get a chance to make a picture under her contract at M-G-M. Now that she has the prospect of work at last, she's given up the hermit business and flits about gayly, window shopping, lunching, and visiting. She will play the rôle opposite Spencer Tracy in "The Power and the Glory," for Fox under Jesse Lasky's guidance.

Estelle Taylor, still going places with John Warburton and shedding wise cracks as she goes. Seems she has some contract at Universal under which she is to receive $2,000 a week. An insurance agent talking to her about a policy was luckless enough to remark: "I don't think you're worth that much, Miss Taylor." She answered: "Well, I don't think I am, either, but Universal just insists that I take it, so lets you and I not tell what we really think, huh?"

Betty Furness over at Radio—is warranted to have the weirdest collection of hats in town. She knits them on inspiration and doesn't know what they will look like when she finishes with them, though her friends often suspect what they will look like and they usually do.

Henry Garat made good at making love in a big way in private life. He met his wife, Betty Rowe, on a train from Paris to Berlin, and by the end of the trip and the day they were engaged.

Buddy Rogers is to play opposite Marian Nixon in "Five Cents a Glass," this being his return to films after a twelve month spent in broadcasting and in vaudeville with his own orchestra.

Jesse Lasky is all hot under the collar about the rage for men's trousers in Hollywood. Sezee: "These girls destroy the very thing that films are selling—the charm and femininity of woman. I will continue to engage only actresses who retain their feminine charm, regardless of how widespread the trousers vogue may grow." Lasky's current film, "The Warrior's Husband," is a satire on modern women, made specially pointed by his views on the trousers vogue.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters to the Voice of the Fan should be written on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope, PLEASE!

What the Movies Glorify.

Dear Miss Tinée: Is it any wonder we have bombings and banditry and savory divorce cases when most of our movies glorify these things? Of ten films seen here recently, eight have been about gangsters and lovely ladies who have left their husbands to elope happily and triumphantly with their lovers. One [and two of our best known stars figured in this] was just the apotheosis of a thief. "For Adults Only" was the legend over the door, but it was only a legend. The theater was full of children drinking it in open mouthed.

But even for those over 21, movies such as these are vicious and demoralizing. As for the minor indecencies we are all becoming hardened to them. Splashing in the bath tub by both men and women is too common to be noticed any more, and there is the usual advertising of step ins and undies. An extra abomination was seen recently however.

In one of the many movies in which "Hell" figured in the title, a well known and clever actor stepped over the dead body of a woman, flicked his cigar ashes on it, and tipped his hat in derision as he left the room. There was nothing whatever in the lines to warrant these antics nor did anything in the character call for them. To cap the climax of brutality, in the last act he sits on the dead body to telephone! Of course, he was only a newspaper reporter and the rule of the films seems to be that decency, good manners, and good taste are not to be expected from one of that clan.

MARY ONAHAN GALLERY.

No Sale for Poor Movies.

My dear Miss Tinée: I want to commend you on your review of "Tonight Is Ours" with Claudette Colbert and Fredric March. This picture certainly was worth the admission price. I went the first time in some time. I had seen people in the lobby waiting to get in, all of which goes to show people still will spend their money for value received. But you cannot sell them poor stuff. In these times a dime is a dime, and the movie fans shop carefully like every one else. Yours very sincerely,

H. T. JOHNSON.

Plans for Music Events Enliven Lenten Days

Cradle Society of Evanston Arranges a Benefit for the Spring.

By Edward Moore.

FEW things have been more encouraging in recent years than the manner in which the young musicians of Chicago have been drawn into the major musical events of the community. Within a short time the Chicago schools have furnished choruses capable of entering into musical compositions of importance and acquitting themselves as musicians should.

Twice recently public school choruses have appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The first time they sang Gabriel Pierné's "The Children at Bethlehem." Last season they took a leading part in the program, singing Beethoven's Fantasie, a group of a cappella songs, and the first Chicago performance of Constance Lambert's "The Rio Grande." Earlier than that, in 1930, they appeared with the Apollo Musical club in Henry Hadley's "Mirtil in Arcadia."

Concert Planned for May 19.

Wherefore, it is with pleasure and in the hope of some more excellent singing that they are announced for another performance, again with the Apollo Musical club. The date is May 19, the place Orchestra hall, and the composition another beautiful work by Pierné, "The Children's Crusade," a composition well applauded when it was given at the North Shore Music festival in Evanston some seasons ago. According to present plans it is due to be repeated some time during the course of A Century of Progress exposition.

The Apollo Musical club has a present active membership of 265 voices. These will be joined by the voices of 350 pupils of the junior high schools of Chicago, and the cantata will necessarily have the accompaniment of a symphony orchestra. Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien, who was the soprano soloist in the North Shore Music festival's presentation, will sing the same rôle in the coming performance.

Among the other soloists will be Olive June Lacey, Theodore Harrison, and Arthur Kraft. Mr. Kraft is announced as the narrator. Edgar Nelson, director of the Apollo Musical club, will direct. Dr. J. Lewis Browne, director of music of the Chicago public schools, has been superintending the training of the young choristers throughout the present season.

Story Based on History.

"The Children's Crusade" is the musical setting of an adaptation of a poem by Marcel Schwab. It was awarded a special prize by the city of Paris in 1904. It is elaborate, almost spectacular in character, and exceedingly difficult, the last being perhaps one reason why it is not more often heard. The story dates to the thirteenth century, and the character of the Schwab-Pierné collaboration is illustrated as well as words can illustrate music by the following explanation prefixed to the score of the work:

"About that time many children, without leader and without guidance, did fly in a religious ecstasy from our towns and from our cities, making for the lands beyond the seas. And to those who asked of them whither they were bound, they did make answer, 'To Jerusalem, in search of the Holy Land.' They carried staves and satchels, and crosses were embroidered on their garments, and many of them came from beyond Cologne.

"They traveled to Genoa and did embark upon seven great vessels to cross the sea. And a storm arose and two vessels perished in the waters. And to those who asked of such of the children as were saved the reason of their journey, these replied: 'We do not know.'"

Casting Bureau to Obtain Film Bits for Indians

HOLLYWOOD.—From now on, thanks to Jim Thorpe, whenever you see an Indian in the movies, you can be pretty sure he is an Indian. That is, of course, except in prominent rôles.

Indians in and around Hollywood, a thousand or more of them, finally have the leader they long needed. Jim, who used to be just a little better athletically than the next fellow, has become the big chief of a newly formed casting bureau, the aim of which is to obtain movie extra work for Indians. Its services are entirely free.

"It isn't my idea to tell directors how to cast their pictures," Jim explained, "but I think they should use bona fide Indians as extras and in atmosphere scenes. For a long time, almost every nationality has represented us, often to the discredit of the Indian on the screen.

"Indians aren't so very aggressive, so I decided to do something about getting work for a lot of these fellows." He pointed toward a group of stolid, peaceful looking Indians who, he said, were chiefs. Their faces were covered with grease paint, their heads adorned with sprightly hued feathers—traditional, but unconventional, dress for them.

Jim also plays extra, occasional small parts and frequently he is a technical director. He knows how certain tribes dress and the kind of adornments they wear. Jim says he had to argue for a half hour once to convince a director that Indians didn't wear war paint and carry tomahawks to a peace conference.

PLAYERS TAKE SALARY CUTS IN GOOD CHEER

HOLLYWOOD.—The spirit in which Hollywood's high salaried players have accepted their half pay, and in some cases no pay, "holiday," is reflected in Spencer Tracy's view.

"Many, like myself, who have been here two or three years, getting paid every week, have been lucky that we've enjoyed such a long run.

"This industry is getting more and more like the show business," he laughed. "We've just bumped into that old Easter pay roll vacation period again."

The attitude of others was not unlike that of Maurice Chevalier, who, when requested to chop his salary 50 per cent for eight weeks, enthusiastically replied: "Sure theeng! This ees a good time for all of us to work harder for less money."

For those who might be worried about finances, Estelle Taylor recommends jig saw puzzles. "Get a 500 piece puzzle," said she, "with one piece missing. You'll even forget to sleep."

Plain American Character

THOMAS W. ROSS

Notes of Music and Musicians

RICHARD WAGNER'S music will receive extra attention from the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Thursday evening and Friday afternoon of this week, dates falling about midway between the fiftieth anniversary of his death and the hundred and twentieth of his birth. A number of times in the past there has been a suspicion amounting to a conviction that one could hear his music better and certainly more enticingly from one of these concerts than by attending a long series of his operas.

At any rate and failing any chance to go to the opera in Chicago at present, Mr. Stock has prepared an elaborate musical travelogue of his works. Of "Parsifal" there will be the prelude to Act I. and the Procession of the Knights of the Holy Grail; of "The Mastersingers of Nuremburg," the prelude to Act III.; of "Tristan and Isolde," the prelude to Act I. and a group of four excerpts from Act III. At this point there will be an intermission, and following it will come dealings with all four members of the "Ring of the Nibelungen." "Das Rheingold" will be represented by the finale; "Die Walkuere" by the Magic Fire scene; "Siegfried" by Siegfried in the Forest; "Die Goetterdaemmerung" by the Funeral March and finale.

Speaking of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, is there an audience that would like to hear Mahler's Choral symphony? It is a mighty work presented here several years ago by Mr. Stock at the Auditorium and now is ready for another presentation should there be a call for it. It was one of the works planned and rehearsed for performance at the North Shore music festival this spring, but, as has already been told, after the festival chorus had worked on it until it was almost complete a decision was reached to cancel the festival. The choristers would be glad not to waste their labors and the symphony orchestra could revive its knowledge of the work without undue labor. All that it needs is an audience.

That surpassingly fine violinist, Fritz Kreisler, will be at Orchestra hall this afternoon in what is announced as his final Chicago appearance of the season. His program is attractive, but, then, it is a Kreisler habit to assemble attractive programs. It will begin with Bach's Second Concerto, to be followed immediately by the Mendelssohn Concerto, a work of the same name but entirely different quality. Later he will play three Paganini Caprices, his own Malaguena, and two transcriptions which he has made from the works of Dvorak, the "Indian Lament" and the "Slavonic Fantasy." In the light of many past appearances it is safe to say that he will play a number of extra pieces at the end of the announced program.

The Chicago Artists' association will give its March concert on Tuesday evening at Curtiss hall. A program by Chicago composers will be presented by Lucille Manker, pianist; William Benson, tenor; Marjorie Sherman, contralto, and Alice Livingston Kent, violinist. Dudley Crafts Watson will be the speaker.

Over a dozen church choirs and choral organizations will be represented in "The Messiah" when that famous work is presented in dramatic form at the Auditorium tomorrow and Tuesday evenings. Director Carl Craven adds that many other choirs have volunteered their services, which were regretfully declined because of limitation of time and space. As it is, the costumed chorus, it is said, will number 1,000. Elsie Harthan Arendt, Louise Harrison Slade, Arthur Kraft, and Mark Love will be the soloists tomorrow night; Helen Bickerton, Lilian Knowles, B. Fred Wise, and Raymond Koch on Tuesday, together with the added name of Agatha Lewis. The Woman's Symphony orchestra will play the instrumental score. The performances are being given under the auspices of the Christian Service foundation for the benefit of the Washington Park Convalescent hospital.

What is being accomplished in public school music will be demonstrated by the In-and-About Chicago Music Supervisors at Orchestra hall next Saturday afternoon and evening. The organization represents the territory from Waukegan to Gary and from Joliet to Michigan City. In the afternoon there will be a chorus of 600 grade children from twenty-five communities under the direction of Miss Anne Trimingham of Oak Park and James Thompson of Joliet in a program of songs. In the evening a high school orchestra of 250 members made up from Chicago and thirty-four outlying towns will play Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony under the direction of Oscar W. Anderson of Chicago, to be followed by a high school chorus of 500 in a song program under the direction of Robert Lee Osburn.

Stage Heredity

LUTHER ADLER, who appears with Katharine Cornell in Sidney Howard's new play, "Alien Corn," is a son of Jacob P. Adler, the famous Jewish tragedian. At present there are seventeen members of the Adler family in active service on the stage.

All but born on the stage [his mother, Sarah Adler, left her theater only a few minutes before his arrival], Luther made his debut at the age of 4 years with the Yiddish actor, Mogulesco, in the Hebrew classic, "Schmendrick." Since then he constantly has been before the public. His first performance in English was with a road company in "Sonia," in which at the age of 17 he acted a czar and an old ambassador. Thereafter he has alternated between the Yiddish and English speaking stages. He was with Laurette Taylor in "Humoresque" and with Margaret Anglin in "Iphigenia."

Decorating the scene at winter's end

Plans for Musical Events Enliven Lenten Hours

Cradle Society of Evanston Is Arranging a Benefit to Take Place During the Annual Festival; Grand Opera, "Aida," Hailed for Summer.

By Cousin Eve.

IN the doldrums of Lent are we, but always with a strong undercurrent of coming people, exciting coming events. Rumors for some time that the Cradle in Evanston might have to close its doors, the Cradle beautifully run home for babies and foster parents. Mrs. John C. Slade, its treasurer, smiled ironically at the mere idea—in the act of arranging a beautiful new benefit are the Cradle women. I believe they hope for two entire evenings of the Evanston Music festival with the Chicago Symphony as the attraction.

And the Chopin concert is to be on Sunday afternoon, April 9, in the Drake ballroom. Egon Petri, Polish pianist, will give the program. This will be followed by a gala tea on the terrace. It is a subscription concert, and the proceeds will go to a favorite charity, the historic Chopin house in Warsaw. The Polish consul general, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Charles B. Wilhelm, Mrs. Howard Linn, and a long list of prominent people are patrons.

Another musical matter on the far horizon is set for late June, when a grand opera event is being planned in the best Italian manner for Gen. Italo Balbo and his one hundred flyers. This will be a very beautiful, ambitious and picturesque performance of "Aida," but is still in early stages.

Plans Postponed.

It was just a year ago that Mrs. John A. Carpenter (then Mrs. Waller Borden) was energetically putting on "The Bread Line Frolics" at the Majestic. A vaudeville show by a large cast of unemployed men in the shelters, it was given before one of the most fashionable audiences of the season.

Delighted by its great success, Mrs. Carpenter was planning before her marriage late in January to produce a boxing match for these same men gathered during the winter in the shelters. With Mrs. Howard Linn as co-chairman the idea was to have an entertainment of a novel and sporting character which would attract the public and keep up the physical stamina of the men. The men are hoping to go forward with the entertainment when their patronesses return to town.

City Life Depicted.

The Arts club has been showing for a month a set of dioramas. "Towards the New City and the New City Life," they are called. Mrs. Tiffany Blake led me to them, knowing my penchant for city planning. She also introduced the director of the exhibit, Raymond O'Neill, who is taking it to New York soon.

Told in theater scenes, the entire history of the housing of man, beautifully colored and dramatic. First, the cave, and the woods. Then the glories of the Acropolis at Athens and the subsequent slums at its foot. The decline of Grecian splendor. Then the middle ages, its feudal castles and public squalor.

Finally a city and a suburb, and a nice little community in Iowa, Amana, a pretty town sharing project, a model town. Next an illustrated moral story of John and his mortgage. A working man who marries, saves, buys ground and, not having enough to build, takes a mortgage. The little scenes go on, showing John's state through a depression such as our late one, onward till he and his family are shown houseless and shirtless. Then a community planning group is shown with workmen like John, getting their houses built in co-operative plan. The factory town surrounded by dwellings in the old style, and the new idea of housing workers at a distance, and having trees and parks between them.

As It's Done in Iowa.

A lovely little scene showed the advanced idea of Iowa, the first to have state planning. Lovely straight, smooth roads bordered by trees, and alongside smooth walks, also under leafy trees. Game and fish preserves were shown, and large housing schemes as shown in Germany, modernistic in their brown and red lines. Within a huge ellipse, great gardens, and a quiet retreat for the aged with their dread of noise; playgrounds for children. The new buildings are built facing east and west, so that rooms have sun at some time of the day.

Children are shown in gardens in little shorts, and again in dark city slums in rags. Men working in vegetable and flower gardens in the suburbs of European cities are shown, and huge piles of scrap iron and junk in the open spaces that surround our own great cities.

Work to be done, men, women! Naples, once a city of most hideous slums, has replaced them with palaces and gardens for the poor, which gardens are paying investments. Algiers, Vi-

Thallis, the five year old daughter of the Thatcher Hoyts of North State parkway, is spending the late winter and early spring with her parents at their Vermont residence, which has been in the Hoyt family for more than a century and was remodeled last year into a comfortable year 'round home.

Edward Crossett French finds life perplexing even at the tender age of three weeks. No doubt he is thinking: "What's the idea of surrounding a boy with so much ribbon and lace?" He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. French and the first grandchild of the Edward C. Crossetts. Mrs. French was the former Ruth Crossett, second of the Crossetts' three daughters.

Chicago Colony Active at Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla.—[Special.] — "Business as usual—and entertaining, too," seems to be the slogan of Palm Beach colonists who are enjoying their normal life of gayety.

Chicagoans are so numerous in Palm Beach that one can scarcely turn without running into several of them.

On Friday Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock presided at a meeting of the Palm Beach Garden club, of which she is president, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Wheeler of New York.

The same day several Chicago children gave exhibitions of boxing and swimming at Sea Spray beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Gregory of Chicago, who are spending two weeks in Palm Beach, are daily visitors at the Poinciana-Breakers beach.

Seen on the Breakers Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Castle and Miss Carolyn Castle of Chicago and her guest, Miss Laura Ann Humphreys of Lake Forest, are at the Poinciana-Breakers beach daily for a swim and luncheon at the buffet bar. There also was Mrs. William W. For-

Dinner Parties Events of Phoenix Week; Two Golf Tournaments Held at Chandler

PHOENIX, Ariz.—[Special.]—At the Arizona Biltmore numerous dinner parties have been given. Dr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Martin entertained at dinner Thursday in honor of their guests, Dr. and Mrs. William J. Mayo, and on Saturday took them on a picnic at Canyon Lake. On both occasions Dr. Robert B. Preble, Dr. Hugh T. Patrick, and Charles K. Knickerbocker were present.

Another night a lovely dinner party was given for the Misses Caroline and Frances Buck, who, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Buck, returned to Chicago this week.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilder and their daughter have returned for their second season at the hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Wilder will spend the month, but Miss Wilder will leave for Chicago on Tuesday.

Arrivals at the Biltmore.

Richard Prendergast, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton are among the arrivals of the week at the Biltmore. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour is expected this coming week.

Another Chicagoan to return to the sunshine of Arizona after spending a month in Lake Forest is Mrs. Farley Hopkins. Mrs. Hopkins spends so much time in Phoenix that it is doubtful whether she is a Chicagoan or a Phoenician.

Last Meeting of Group.

The last meeting of Mrs. Wrigley's sewing group was held Monday at the Biltmore pool, at which time Mrs. Wrigley expressed her appreciation of the group's assistance and was thanked in return for originating the idea and furnishing the material. Several hundred dainty little garments have been made during the afternoons, and

Miss Gallatin to Marry Jazz Band Leader

Descendant of Famous Old New York Family to Wed Albert Donahue.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—Society here is more concerned with the arrival of spring than with anything else. It hasn't been a too pleasant winter, and now that the ineffable tang is in the air every one is sitting up and preparing plans for the summer. The avenue is quite full, and since Park avenue, Fifth, and Broadway are inextricably mingled, one pops constantly into social notables, theatrical notables, and social notables of the theater. Between St. Patrick's cathedral and the Finley Shepard house we met the statuesque Mrs. Julia Hoyt, Mrs. Reginald Townsend, Hope Williams, the comtesse De Forceville, and the ever-present Mrs. Tiffany Saportas—and that is a diversified collection at any time.

Things are topsy turvy any way one cares to look at them. Ages ago the fact that a Gallatin was intending to marry the leader of a jazz orchestra would have been a cause celebre. Now people say, "She's lucky. Has he got a radio contract as well?"

Engagement Is Announced.

For quite some time the younger set has known that Frederica Gallatin, daughter of Mrs. E. Trowbridge Bell of town and Easthampton, L. I., has had more than just a partiality for Albert Donahue, unknown to society but of that band including Rudy Vallee and Ozzie Nelson who came from the halls of wisdom to lead dance orchestras.

Now the attachment has received official sanction, for Freddie's mother recently announced the engagement, though the date for the wedding was not made known. "Al" Donahue is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Donahue of Dorchester, Mass., and was graduated from the Boston University of Law and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Frederica, however, is de-

Infants' Aid to Hold Frolic March 29th

Professional Floor Show to Be Supplemented by Members of Auxiliary.

By Ruth DeYoung.

WITH the banking holiday already a matter of history the members of Infants' Aid have launched an intensive ticket selling campaign for their annual frolic, to be held the evening of March 29 at the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman.

MRS. MAURICE LOEB

The frolic . . . the sixteenth benefit in the history of the organization . . . promises to be its most ambitious undertaking. There will be a program by headliners from all of the city's best known restaurants and night clubs and bows from prominent radio stars. Members of the Aid auxiliary, composed of 200 high school daughters of the 1,100 members of the senior society, will supplement the professional floor show with surprise numbers. As a climax there will be bridge and dancing.

Wide Representation.

"Through this annual benefit the major portion of the operating funds of Infants' Aid is realized," Mrs. Ralph A. Levin, the president, explains. "The rest of the budget comes from the contributions of junior and senior 'goodfellows' and a list of coast to coast patrons known as 'All-American Aiders.' Nearly every state in the Union already is represented on this list of sponsors."

The story of Infants' Aid is the story of eighteen years of progressive activity in the interest of babies brought into the world under some kind of physical handicap. Every Monday on the south, west, and north sides of Chicago groups of women meet to sew layettes for needy infants.

The south side group meets at 5034 Greenwood avenue, the west side organization at the Washington Boulevard temple and the north side group at Temple Mizpah. When completed the layettes, together with milk for undernourished children and comfort bundles for needy mothers, are distributed through the United Charities, the Juvenile Court of Cook county, the Michael Reese hospital, and the Joint Emergency Relief station.

Premature Infant Station.

Even more important that this work, however, is the Hortense Schoen Joseph Premature Infant station, maintained at the Sarah Morris hospital. The station bears the name of Mrs. Hortense Schoen Joseph, the founder of Infants' Aid in 1915 through a group of nine south side women, and is endowed by the aid for $85,000 at an annual cost of $5,000. It provides nineteen incubators and proper medical attention for the purpose of decreasing the mortality rate on prematurely born babies.

Through the station fifty babies were saved in 1925, 112 babies in 1927, and 185 in 1931. Infants' Aid also supports a nursery at Mount Sinai hospital where forty babies and two premature infants are given medical attention each month. Both of these projects have the sanction of the medical department at Washington.

Working with Mrs. Levin for the success of the frolic on March 29 are Mrs. Joel M. Kline, Mrs. I. S. Stein, and Mrs. Maurice Wachenheimer, vice presidents; Mrs. Joseph M. Kraus, Mrs. A. Herbert King, and Mrs. Nathan Reuben, secretaries; Mrs. Jules J. Gibs, treasurer; and Mrs. Maurice Loeb, chairman of advertising.

Also here are Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler, Mrs. R. G. Croft, who is with her mother, Mrs. Herbert L. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Russell and Mrs. Russell's son, Thomas H. Shevlin, Mrs. Verner Z. Reed, and Dorothea Onativia.

SHE'S IN FLORENCE CARR'S BRIDAL PARTY

Miss Margaret Chapman, the second of the John Adams Chapmans' four daughters, is one of the prettiest young women in society. She and Miss Eleanor Wheeler, daughter of the Seymour Wheelers, look enough alike in pictures to be sisters, although they aren't so much alike "in the flesh," for Miss Chapman is taller and more slender. Both are to be in Miss Florence Carr's bridal party when she becomes the bride of Edgar Lewis Marston II. on March 25.

Paris Recalls Earlier Days of Roosevelt

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Of course the chief topic in the American colony these days, and in Parisian social circles generally, as well as among the hoi polloi, has been the new administration in the United States. Very few of our compatriots or of the French had a chance to meet Franklin D. Roosevelt when he came to Paris year before last to spend a few days with his mother, then convalescing at the American hospital in Neuilly.

The other night President Roosevelt was the topic of conversation at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Culver at their home in the Square Lamartine. It so happens that Mr. Culver, who shares one of the new President's chief hobbies, has devoted much of his life to collecting lore on all kinds of sailing craft, and to the making of ship models in great variety. In recent years he has executed many models for the French Marine museum in the Louvre, and has restored some of its most curious treasures.

Makes Interesting Discovery.

While working on a late 17th century model, he lifted out the works and found, painted on the inside of the hull, two small bands or friezes which showed Charles II. of England surrounded by many of the feminine figures of his notorious court. This discovery, by the way, caused quite a flutter among some of the Louvre experts, marine and artistic.

Mr. Culver, in the course of his far-flung researches, managed to trace the oldest ship model in existence, believed to have been made as early as 1450. Found in a chapel in Matero, Spain, it was acquired by a German antiquary, who sold it to a rich Dutch amateur, and the latter presented it to the Prince Hendrik museum in Rotterdam.

When Mr. Culver, some years ago, founded the Ship Model society of New York, Franklin Roosevelt was glad to accept the honorary presidency. He recalled that President Roosevelt is an honorary member of a Parisian society, the Sabord, devoted to naval archæology, and that one of his rarest treasures is a contemporary portrait of Paul Jones. Mr. Culver is the proud possessor of a copy, with autograph dedication, of Franklin Roosevelt's book "Our First Frigates."

Recalls Early Incidents.

Another guest at the Culver dinner happened to be President Roosevelt's junior by two years, but like him had been on the board of the Harvard Crimson. He remembered how "Rosy," as his own club crowd called him, was apt when chief editorial writer of the Crimson to assert views which often ran counter to those of his friends on the gold coast.

Mr. Culver recalled that he was present at the big luncheon when the Arkansas was launched. Franklin Roosevelt, as assistant secretary of the navy, happened to be smoking a cigaret in precincts where smoking was forbidden. A zealous official reproved him before learning his identity. Secretary Roosevelt passed the incident off with a smile, and went on smoking.

Mme. Paul Dupuy, the former Helen Browne of Chicago, has just returned to Paris from her stay of some weeks in the United States, where she observed many things closely from the journalistic and political standpoint, for she directs the Excelsior, the most richly illustrated morning daily in Paris, and the Petit Parisien, with its circulation of over 2,000,000, said to be the largest of any daily in the world.

Two Recent Events.

Be that as it may, Mme. Dupuy was the chief guest the other day at a luncheon at the Plaza-Athénée, when a small group of business and professional women gathered to consider the idea of creating a kind of informal luncheon organization with limited membership. Mme. Dupuy is a great admirer of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as a newspaper entity, and as an influence.

One of the most interesting charity performances from the talent of the participants and the mundane character of the audience was the musical given by Mme. Misia Sert and Mme. Marcelle Meyer. Both of these virtuosi have played much together, and Mme. Sert, the first wife of Jose-Maria Sert, the Spanish mural painter who decorated the ballroom of the new Waldorf-Astoria, has many friends in New York social and musical circles.

Concert on Two Pianos.

Mms. Sert and Mme. Meyer gave a brilliant interpretation on two pianos of Schumann, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, and Debussy. Among the Americans in the brilliant audience were Mrs. Marte Leishman Hyde, Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, Mme. Ganna Walska, Lady Mendl, the Baronne Eugene de Rothschild, Princesse Edmund de Polignac, who was Miss Singer; Comte and Comtesse de Vallambrosa, who have recently returned from America; Countess Mercati, and scores of well known French musicians. Mme. Sert, by the way, is related to such celebrated musicians as Liszt and Rubenstein.

Writing Women Sharpen Pencils for Jabs at First Lady

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—When Mrs. Roosevelt accepted the invitation of the Women's National Press club to be the guest of honor at its stunt party tomorrow night she added that she'd love to be made fun of. The writing women have taken her at her word; have sharpened up their pencils, and are going to take a few gentle jabs at the first First Lady ever to attend one of their parties.

● Mrs. Roosevelt is, of course, No. 1 guest at this dinner tomorrow, but there will be plenty of lesser lights whose names shine in headlines. Mrs. Garner will desert her typewriter in the V. P.'s office long enough to come to the party. Mrs. Rainey, spouse of the speaker, will also be there. So will Amelia Earhart, and Margaret Sanger, and Mrs. Charles Sabin. Senator Hattie Caraway, with her black shawl; Representative Florence Kahn, with her persistent pompadour; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, with her orchids—they will all be there. And all the wives of the cabinet ministers save only Mrs. Harold Ickes, who is a working wife and is now on the job in the Illinois legislature.

● Just because I, along with Kipling and S. S. Van Dine, am a

"mild maniac" on the subject of Scottish terriers and especially the lady who lives with us, I don't want to press agent that aristocrat of dogdom too much. But do let me tell you a little about Meggie, the Scottie who is Mrs. Roosevelt's particular pet. She has been in Washington only a fortnight, but she's been more places than many of us get to in a year.

She went to Mount Vernon and wagged an appreciative tail. She went, with her mistress, to call on the venerable Mr. Justice Holmes on his 92d birthday, and she bore herself with characteristic patrician demeanor. She runs up and down the corridors of the White House with that mingled eagerness and aloofness that is her heritage.

● If anybody had told the policeman who is on night duty in front of the White House that one wet March evening he'd permit twenty or thirty newspaper men to stand in the rain and harmonize, loudly and lustily, as important men of the nation were in conference within, that policeman would have told you that you were just plain crazy. But that very thing took place last week.

It was during one of the banking conferences which President Roosevelt was holding. Marvin McIntyre, one of his secretaries, came out to tell the newspaper boys that there wouldn't be a statement for an hour at least. It was late. Everybody was tired. Somebody started a song. Somebody else took it up. And before any of them realized the momentum of the music everybody, including Secretary McIntyre, was singing.

Pity the poor policeman. He'd take two steps forward, intent on putting a stop to such nonsense. Then he'd spy McIntyre, the presidential emissary, and he'd back away two steps. The music would mount to heaven—and the White House windows. Forward again would come the policeman. A glimpse of McIntyre, and the law would retreat.

It was all amusing and, to those who remember their Washington, thoroughly amazing. When the men had sung two or three songs, Mr. McIntyre went back into the White House. The reporters stood silently waiting the forthcoming statement. And all was quiet along the Potomac.

All because on inauguration morning she spied the flag flying at half-staff over the center of the capitol. Half-mast over the senate and the house—in memory of the late Senator Thomas Walsh. That was correct. But not over the center, she insisted. She backed up her insistence with information, got the officials to raise it to full staff.

But she is an expert on the etiquette of the flag. Back at their Illinois farm the Raineys have a tall flag pole in front of their home. Every evening at sundown all the children in the neighborhood assemble there. When she is home Mrs. Rainey leads the ceremony of lowering the flag as the children pledge allegiance.

Inauguration morning the two were leaving their apartment. The telephone bell jingled.

"We haven't time to answer," counseled Mrs. Rainey, looking at her watch.

"Hello," came the voice over the wire. "This is Mrs. Gann. You are supposed to call for me and I understand they've given you the wrong address, ten blocks out of the way."

A short week before, Dolly Gann's address was known to every tourist in town. She, with "Brother Charlie," the Vice President, lived at one of the most elegant hotels. But she and her husband and brother moved out of the hotel into private life and their suburban home.

Wales Escorts Argentineans About Windsor

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON.—[Special.]—The king and queen returned to Buckingham palace just in time to find London blanketed with snow and ice. The pond in Buckingham palace grounds was frozen hard enough to permit the king to get out his skates again as he did at Sandringham.

While the king and queen were returning to London the prince of Wales was at Windsor castle escorting a party of distinguished Argentineans through the place and explaining, in very good Spanish, its historic treasures. The prince, who has been guided on ten thousand sightseeing excursions, must have enjoyed the chance to do a little guiding himself.

Socially the members of this delegation from Argentina have given a great filip to entertaining. They also have done some handsome entertaining themselves. Lady Curzon of Kedleston, wearing a beautiful rope of pearls, was one of their guests at a big reception at the Argentine embassy.

But the return of their majesties to London will in itself start the social wheels revolving.

Loyal to U. S. Manners.

Another Anglo-American marriage has hits the rocks with the filing of a petition for a divorce in France by Mrs. Blanche Erskine-Bolst, the American born wife of Capt. Clifford Charles Erskine-Bolst, M. P.

Mrs. Erskine-Bolst was the daughter of Senator Maguire of Massachusetts, though California is, I believe, her native state. She is very wealthy. What makes the breach somewhat curious is the fact that both husband and wife were deeply interested in the work of the English Speaking union in cementing the bonds of good will between the two countries. Mrs. Erskine-Bolst pleads mental cruelty in the refusal of her husband to live with her in the south of France.

There is a curious difference between marriages of American women to Englishmen which have taken place since the war and those which took place before the war. At least I have thought so for a long time.

Generally speaking, the generation of American women before the war succeeded somehow in sinking into the English "scene"; they adjusted themselves to a new environment. They were interested—apparently—or if they were bored they concealed it successfully.

Revere "Prince's Brew."

But American wives of the post-war generation have come and remained all but wrapped in the Stars and Stripes. They have been impatient and critical of English housing, English tastes, English "pokiness." Perhaps America's post-war rise to affluence unconsciously affected them. At any rate, whatever the cause, I have been rather struck with the number of post-war Anglo-American unions which have failed to bring happiness.

Nearly four years ago the prince of Wales flew to Burton-on-Trent to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the town's incorporation. During his rounds he visited Bass' brewery and with his own hands mashed a brew to be known as the "Prince's brew."

He did a thorough job of it, mashing enough for 200 barrels [of 36 gallons each] and it was all subsequently bottled. Now Col. John M. Gretton, M. P., has secured several cases of this all but priceless beer to be offered as prizes at a charity entertainment to be given shortly in Burton-on-Trent.

His son, Albert Gallatin, was the partner of John Jacob Astor and created a great fortune, which, however, with many other traditional American fortunes, has greatly diminished. Under the Bermuda Moon.

The famous villa, Deepdene, in Bermuda, which C. Ledyard Blair built at a cost of more than half a million dollars, is still on the market at half its cost price, but since it is not yet disposed of Mr. Blair is now in residence with a house party holding forth. Among the Blair guests are Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer and that other charming widow, the Princess Miguel de Braganza. And, of interest to society, another member is Charles Hayden.

The gossips will have it that matrimony is in the air—very much so—for the widowed Mr. Blair is decidedly fond of Mrs. Tailer and many believe that Charles Hayden will discard his bachelordom the moment the former Anita Stewart gives in.

Prefers the Latins.

Divorced ladies, according to tradition, always remarry, but Virginia Willys de Aguirre, having once had a Latin husband, not only chooses to remarry but to marry another Latin. For ages now we have known that the daughter of the former ambassador to Poland and Mrs. Willys was romancing with José de Landa, son of a former president of Mexico. But from Palm Beach has come the announcement of their engagement and the wedding presumably will take place quietly at Casa Florencia, the Palm Beach villa which the Willyses bought from Dr. Preston Pope Satterwhite.

Virginia's marriage to Luis de Aguirre lasted scarcely longer than the gossips predicted, but every one has greater expectations for her forthcoming alliance. De Landa, known as "Pepe," is a brother of Guillermo de Landa Escandron, who married Lady Kathleen Drogheda, first wife of the present earl of Drogheda.

British Visitors.

Seen about town is Lord Revelstoke and his heir, the Hon. Rupert Baring, who arrived from London last week to visit their Lorillard kin. It was os the Hon. Cecil Baring of the famous banking house that Lord Revelstoke came to New York in the '90s. When the late Maud Lorillard divorced the late T. Suffern Tailer she became the bride of Cecil Baring and went with him to live in England. A son of her first marriage is Lorillard Suffern Tailer.

By her second marriage Lady Revelstoke had three children, two daughters, now the Hon. Mrs. Arthur Pollen and the Hon. Mrs. Guy Liddle, and the youngest, the Hon. Rupert Baring, who is 22.

enna, and even Paris are doing the same. Slums and narrow, sunless streets are disappearing all over Europe. Apropos, I am told that the worst slum in the world is in Chicago, near Hull house. Its denizens are Mexicans. This housing show is not backed by any long haired critics of our social order, but by a National Society of Engineers. It is called "A Gallery of Modern Life."

Members of the advisory committee are Dr. John Nolan, president of the International Federation for City Planning; Dr. Frederick Bigger, New York, president; Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Louis Brownlaw of Chicago, and Jacob Crane, Prof. Robert M. Lovett, Richard J. Noutra of California, Prof. Donald Schlesinger of Chicago, Mrs. Henry Wright, and Edith E. Weed of New York. Very clever Chicago artists executed the scenes: Ethel Speare, Julie de Diego, Clarice McKeever, John Stenvall.

Lots of Lecturing.

There was a lot of lecturing last Saturday: Two men from France at the Alliance, Jean-Paul Freyss and Pierre de Lanux. The former is quite a fellow. I met him later at Robert Hall McCormick's tea for "les jeunes" of the Alliance Française. Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Ira Nelson Morris, and I came under the wire among "the youngs," and we were glad. For, after all youth is its own reward.

So I met this smiling, blond young man, and heard that his first approach to America was in a small fishing smack. He had fallen in love with an American girl and crossed the Atlantic to win her. He did, and they were married. A very amusing, brilliant chap, he r ade you laugh, even if he were French. Mrs. Dewey told him that during the great war he must have been in a go-cart with buckets and shovels. But no, he was chaperon of the cows, was this rising litterateur.

Pierre de Lanux, secretary of the Paris branch of the league of nations, for whom Francise, popularly "Baby" Clow, has been turning things upside down, has spoken quite a lot this week in clubs here and in Winnetka. Largely propaganda for the league of nations, it is a sort of bootleg conversation that one lends only an indifferent ear to, because after all, what have Americans to do with the league of nations?

Mr. de Lanux also speaks English in so choppy a way that it sounds like Chinese. I wish these Frenchmen would speak French.

A Pretty Tea.

Mr. McCormick's French tea was very pretty and very crowded, only people didn't speak much French, hélas. Helen McCormick did the honors of her père, and Marjorie Goodman officiated for the first time as chairman of "the young." Charles Dewey Jr., Mlle. Louise Dewey, Miles. Litsinger, Swift, Page, Borland, and sixty others were present.

A very good looking chap with a streak of gray in his hair turned out to be Baron Tinty of Austria. The baron came for a fortnight last June and is still here, with his plans and hopes for the ancient schloss of his family. Indeed, he remarked that his success was now assured—somebody had approved his plans—I believe it was the league of nations. I don't quite know what the plan is, but American money is a part of the recipe.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett closed their town house for three weeks yesterday. With their children, Edward Bennett Jr. and the young Meads, they opened their Lake Forest place at the corner of Deerpath avenue and are reveling in the crowded moments that precede the spring. Next Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are asking a large number of their friends and all the youngsters for a party of the great game of keno. The proceeds of this riotous affair, played with numbers and buttons, goes to some church fund—and there is tea and excitement without end. Keno has been the game at several recent large dinners, and not contract.

Bank holiday in the United States! Now we know what it means in England the first of every August. English bank holiday is a real moratorium, when English towns are quiet as cemeteries.

En Route for Italy.

People coming up from Florida a fortnight ago to sail for Europe found themselves in New York without a nickel. But the Laurance Armours, going straight from Chicago, had their tickets already, and so went away with the big Italian boat. Their little boy is with them. Never having been in Italy, they are getting off at Naples for the Italian spring—orange blossoms, Parma violets, olive orchards in the Alban hills.

They will pause a few days in Rome to present letters to the John W. Garretts, still functioning at our embassy in spite of the change of administration. Mrs. Armour, a tall and most lovely blonde, "Lacey," to her friends, is a sister of Mrs. Clive Runnells. Laurance Armour, popular president of the Arlington club, is a younger brother of A. Watson Armour. They have a house in the Green Bay road, Lake Forest.

Prentiss Coonley arrived in town ten days ago, the vanguard of the Coonleys, arriving for the wedding yesterday of Connie Hasler with Jack Simpson. Mrs. Coonley, who was Mary Lord, is a sister of Mrs. Hasler, the bride's mother. In spite of the importance and the social connections of the principals in the Hasler-Simpson marriage, the wedding invitations were simply notes written by Mrs. Hasler. A ceremony at the Lake Forest Episcopal Church of the Holy Spirit was followed by a small reception at the Hasler house.

Mrs. Edward Hasler is one of the most admired women in Chicago. Very distinguished and very pretty. Her husband, the late Edward Hasler, was an Englishman, wonderful looking and of very aristocratic ancestry. One of his ancestresses was a beautiful Polish princess. Thus, Constance Hasler Simpson, tall, dark, and beautiful, is the half English bride of Jack Simpson. Mrs. James Simpson came from Scotland and Mrs. Simpson's maiden name was Jessie McLaren. The young couple have leased a very trick little house on the lake at Shore Acres, the very same occupied by Lucrezia Bori during her summer singings at Ravinia.

A Delightful Couple.

Gilbert Hitchcock of Omaha, who will head the federal reserve bank, is a former senator and one of the most charming men there is. He married some years ago a girl we knew well in Chicago, Martha Harris of Nashville, a favorite niece of Mrs. James T. Harahan. Charming, too, most amiable and always dressed like a dream. I lunched with the Hitchcocks last year at the Ritz in Paris and found them one of those happy, delightful couples one finds mostly in novels.

Mrs. James T. Harahan, who dashed through here some time ago, was stopping over with the Hitchcocks in Omaha en route to a midwinter cruise to China and the Philippines. This does not seem the ideal moment to go to China—but then there aren't any ideal moments any more. Mrs. Harahan had recently moved out of Pierre's, where she lived for years, to a new apartment on upper Fifth avenue, New York.

Also going to China is David Adler. And this seems a strange moment for China, with Japan menacing its ancient capital, Peiping. Mr. Adler is one of the brightest feathers in Chicago's cap. An architect and artist in interiors, he has left much beauty of line in Chicago, and much that is restrained and new and charming and old in our houses. His taste is perfect, if one can say that of anybody or anything.

His small country house and garden in Libertyville are modeled on very simple lines, and his town house in North State street, gray, plain, with iron balcony and clipped thin shrubs, is one of a row of English basement houses of which the John R. Winterbothams, Kellogg Fairbanks, Augustus Eddys, and George Paysons are owners. It is Georgian in décor.

Spends Much Time in Travel.

Since the death of his beautiful wife, Katharine Keith, Mr. Adler has led a retired life and traveled much. Last summer in passing magnificent old Bayeux cathedral in northern France, with its strange central dome and beautiful towers, I thought of Katharine Adler. Beautiful and gentle, young but spiritually wise, her last act was to enter with her husband this old, old church and kneel for a moment at a little side chapel in prayer. I can see her pure, exquisite profile, like a young saint, against the bright glow of votive candles.

It was a saint's day, and with a sudden impulse she bought two candles from the old caretaker and left them burning for "the good of their souls." Ten minutes later, at the foot of a steep hill, she had passed out of life in a motor accident.

So David Adler travels to China. He was ready to go earlier, but several commissions for large and lovely houses came his way.

Friends of Music Meet.

Last Friday after the symphony audience had surged away, a great pleased crowd which had adored the playing of Myra Hess, another group eddied into Orchestra hall — the Friends of Music. On the very large stage was Mrs. Arthur Meeker, chairman, in vivid blue; Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor; Dr. Allen Albert, envoy of the Century of Progress, and three club presidents, ladies.

The question before the scattered audience was—What next? The drive for $100,000 to build a summer concert hall for the Chicago orchestra having failed, what to do with the $30,000 already raised? Mrs. Meeker hoped that subscribers would leave their dollars with the committee for the use and support of music in Chicago.

Dr. Stock affirmed that the Century of Progress people and the Friends of Music were the best of friends—really very sympathetic. And Dr. Allen Albert, one of the best talkers in the world, explained at some length that the music at the fair had been considered and planned for five years. It would consist of twenty-seven national choral societies, which would give concerts, and also the music of high school chorals.

Dr. Albert said the World's Fair would coöperate with the Friends of Music ardently. They offered them acres of room in the Science and other buildings, and also the shelter of the Science open court, with a possible shell to hold the players. He and Dr. Stock had prospected madly. The meeting dissolved without any definite results.

But the Poles of Chicago came to the rescue. Not the Polish government, but our own local colony made the beau geste. They are having their own Temple of Music on Northerly island and gladly offer it to the Friends of Music. A charming location betwixt the lagoon and Lake Michigan.

Buried in Kenosha.

Mary Hale Matteini was buried last week in Kenosha. An older sister of Harriet Hale Woolley, first wife of Clarence M. Woolley, colonel of industry, she married many years ago an elderly but charming Florentine and lived in romantic splendor on the hills that dominate that ancient town. When her husband died she moved into Florence and later came into a large fortune and beautiful villa left her by Mrs. Woolley. But she continued to live at the quaint Anglo-American hotel, resort of queens of Greece and Italian royalties. Her will disposes of a quite large fortune for the times—a very fine sum for the symphony orchestra of Florence, another for the American church, and the remainder to Baroness Levasso, a close friend, who also acquires her jewels, motors, furnishings, bibelots, and collections, which were large and beautiful. Mme. Matteini was very, very tall and slim, a splendid figure in the foreign set of Florence, which has much liveliness.

Leaving Florence, too, are the Haskells, Mrs. George Haskell and her daughter, Mrs. Haskell Sands, who have had a delightful installation since the war, a villa in Florence with small gardens, not on the hills. They have now moved down to Rome and taken an apartment with a second daughter, Mrs. Dupuy. Rome, it seems, is filling up with good looking apartments.

A Generous Gesture.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank made the announcement at the Paderewski concert, saying very charming things about the Poles, their love of music, their national love of beauty, their warm-heartedness, etc. Mr. Buojonowski, Polish conductor, was on the stage, and Paderewski, looking perfectly leonine and grand, and there was lots of kissing on one cheek and the other, and pretty Mrs. Charles Howard, publicity chairman, projected into the scene, also several Polish citizens.

History says, via a wild grapevine, that during the World's Fair of 1893 Theodore Thomas, disgusted by public lack of support of his symphony concerts, discontinued them. Officials of the fair, with their eyes fixed on financial success, encourage everything that they believe will succeed. But music has come a long way since 1893. It's a great little world, with so many nice Poles!

And there is Baron Sardi, in the van of all the charming Italians coming—one hundred in the flying squadron of Gen. Balbo. There is a probability that Augusto Rosso, very popular new Italian ambassador at Washington, will arrive in Chicago for the first time by plane with Gen. Balbo. Sig. Rosso goes to Nova Scotia later on to welcome the air fleet.

A Party for Baron Sardi.

Baron Sardi is a not tall and a very dark Italian, a bachelor, very lively, good looking and full of the joy of living like most Italians. Here to speed the Italian building at the World's Fair, he is a busy man. And, by the way, Italy, although the poorest of the great European powers, is to have a building at the fair.

Mrs. Edward Leight asked a rather small group of people to meet Baron Sardi Sunday night before a supper given by Giuseppe Castruccio, consul general. There were several foreign men there besides, Baron Meydell, a Russian, and Maurice Sachs, who, by the way, recently married, is coming here to live with his bride. Rudolph Reuter, Charles H. Chadwick, just up from Florida, Robert Mooney, Mrs. Leonard Busby, Miss Narcissa Swift, and David Leavitt were among the score or so who ambled in to the party, which was continental, amusing.

RETURNING FROM SMITH COLLEGE FOR HER EASTER VACATION

Miss Chloe Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius B. Watson of Winnetka, is returning the middle of this week from Smith college to spend the spring vacation with her parents on the north shore. Miss Watson made her debut in the early autumn of 1931, but did not stay at home long enough to enjoy all the festivities of that season. She returned to her studies in college shortly after her debut tea.

When Chicago Was Young

Mid-Victorian Days in the Mid-Continent.

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 22, 1882.

DEAR JULIA: Will and I have been dining at the Palmer house where we saw such an interesting painting, recently hung in the rotunda. It about 25 feet by 15 feet in size, we were told. It represents a tally-ho coach on the way to the races. The view is taken at the corner of Ashland avenue and Jackson street and includes in the background the residence of Mayor Harrison. Inside the coach are seen such well known men of Chicago as Joseph Medill, Judge Drummond, Gen. John A. Logan, the Hon. C. B. Farwell, the Hon. William Aldrich, and William Henry Smith. On the outside are shown Jesse Spalding, Potter Palmer, Franklin MacVeagh, Mayor Harrison, Gen. Sheridan, William Penn Nixon, and one or two others. I am disappointed that the artist didn't put Will in the group, but I suppose he couldn't get all the great men of Chicago into one coach! I do really think Will belongs among those men, seriously speaking.

As we sat at dinner Col. Dick Taylor entered the dining room and Will rose and asked him to come and have dinner with us, for he is very fond of this gallant old gentleman. He lives in Mendota, Ill., a small town about seventy-five miles southwest, but comes up to the city on weekly trips, though he is now an old man. I wish you could have heard his stories. He is a fine type of Chicago pioneer and Will says his deeds form a dashing page in Illinois history.

He came from Virginia, a mere lad, traveling by flatboat up the Mississippi river, trading salt and provisions in return for furs, with the Indians. When he was only 32 he was appointed land agent by Andrew Jackson for Chicago and the surrounding territory. His bond, he told us, was $30,000, more than enough to cover the sales he would make, thought President Jackson.

But the young land agent surprised him. At the first sale of land, including the site of the present Palmer house (at $1.25 an acre), he sent to the subtreasury at Detroit $432,000. This sum forwarded to Washington brought from the amazed Jackson the inquiry: "Where in that vast wilderness did all this money come from?"

Then followed "boom times" in Chicago. The west went on what Col. Taylor called a "huge spree" of speculation. When the usual headache followed (the panic of 1837, with its subsequent hardships) Chicago real estate went backward instead of forward. Sad days here!

Then, the young Taylor (called "Ruffled Shirt" Taylor because of his dandified dress) opened a dry goods store. Later with Mr. Scammon he founded the Marine bank, which continued until after the fire. He opened the first coal mines of the middle west at La Salle, Ill., this departure marking the change from wood to coal in stoking the steam engines of the railroads. He made a fortune in the Galena lead mines.

Such a varied career! We laughed with him as he recounted some of his experiences. The most thrilling of these were his stories of Lincoln. Stephen A. Douglas was a personal friend, and Mr. Taylor being a Democrat supported him, but after Lincoln's election to the presidency "Ruffled Shirt" Taylor gave Mr. Lincoln his undivided loyalty. Much of his private fortune went during the war toward supplying provisions for the disheartened soldiers.

He told us his first Chicago home was on the site of the old Tremont house, his garden covering a square block there ("a darn poor garden it was, too," he added). Later he joined the southern colony on the west side, building a large mansion on Washington boulevard opposite Union park. He later sold this to Bishop Whitehouse.

Will is calling me and I must run.

Lovingly yours,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Revolutionary War Generals In Color Today

"Mad Anthony" Wayne, Count d'Estaing, John DeKalb, Thomas Sumter.

By James O'Donnell Bennett.
(Pictures in rotogravure section.)

THREE generals who were lesser factors in the revolutionary war but who, as to character, were far from being lesser men are pictured in their buff and blue this morning on the color page of THE TRIBUNE's rotogravure section.

"Mad Anthony" Wayne — if everybody were no madder than he was there would be no insane asylums; Sumter, "the Carolina Game Cock," as the British called him, and old Kalb, the German who fell at Camden with eleven wounds, are men whose tireless fortitude we ought, for our own good, to acclaim in these trying times. As to Count d'Estaing, how he got into their company on the color page I know not. Perhaps as a warning, for though he had fortitude of a kind, it certainly was not tireless.

ANTHONY WAYNE

"General, I'll storm hell if you'll only plan it!"

On a July day of 1779 when George Washington and Anthony Wayne were studying reports and maps, Wayne burst forth with that spacious promise.

At midnight ten days later Anthony Wayne kept his promise to the letter, for to storm and capture principally with sword and bayonet so beautifully fortified a position as Stony Point on the Hudson while grapeshot and cannon balls were falling on the attackers may fairly be regarded as the equivalent of storming hell.

The event still ranks in our annals as "the most daring exploit of the War of Independence" [Enc. Brit.] and it won the young brigadier general from Pennsylvania a congressional gold medal and his strange misnomer of "Mad Anthony Wayne." The truth is that as a strategist he was the soul of caution. He believed in preparedness to the minutest detail, but when he knew he was prepared, then, and then only, did the fur fly. "Mad"—yes, mad enough to capture, with a loss of only 15 killed, stores and ordnance worth $180,000 that were defended by nearly 600 Scotch Highlanders.

Foolish—Like a Fox.

Foolish! "Yes, foolish—like a fox," the boys say nowadays of a clever person clever enough not to tell the world how clever he is. In the same degree was Anthony Wayne "mad."

For example, hours before the attack on Stony Point he had all the dogs within three miles quietly rounded up, brought into camp and destroyed. Surprise meant everything in the fulfillment of the promise he had given Washington, and the barking of a dog roused by the approach of his men to the Point might in turn rouse a British sentry and ruin all. Nor was a gun to be loaded by one of the 300 men who were to lead 900 more in the attack, so that no panicky shot early in the stealthy approach should waken Col. Henry Johnston and his Highlanders. That opening part was to be all sword and bayonet work.

The orders to the men were brief and pointed, like all of Wayne's utterances.

At sunset of July 15, the night set for the attack, a regimental adjutant read them to the silent 1,200.

Should any soldier skulk or retreat one foot the officer nearest him was to put him instantly to death.

Instant death was to follow any disobedience of orders.

The first man to enter the enemy's works was to receive $500, the second $400, the third $300, the fourth $200, and the fifth $100.

With Powdered Hair.

Earlier in the day, before the 15 mile march to Stony Point began, every man had been ordered to shave and to powder his hair, for Wayne was a martinet in such matters.

At only one moment was there any confusion. That was when junior officers fell to quarreling as to who should have the privilege of leading the column of 300 which, with unloaded muskets, was to bayonet a way through for the 900 whose weapons were loaded. The dispute had to be settled by drawing lots.

No doubt you have seen Stony Point a score of times as your train glides along the east shore of the Hudson, but perhaps not with the kindling eyes with which every American ought to view it. Forty-two miles from New York City the stocky promontory juts out from the west shore, a hundred acres of solid rock. The British when they held it called it "Our Little Gibraltar." Steep on all sides, it was in the days when it was a fortress almost perpendicular on the west side. There it was 140 feet high at high tide and was connected with the mainland by a marsh and sandbar along which our people were to advance to the attack with their muskets and powder boxes held above their heads, for the backwash of the tide reached to their waists. The British had pickets on three sides of the Point. The deep waters of the Hudson were supposed to give ample protection on the east side.

The Zero Hour.

Eleven thirty o'clock of the night of July 15 was the zero hour. The freshly shaved and powdered men fastened bits of white paper in their caps to distinguish themselves from the foe. Wayne whispered "Forward!" Along the submerged sand bar the soldiers moved. Inevitably there a sound of splashing water. It roused a sentry. He fired. But the 1,200 were well on their way. Shouting now "Advance! Advance!" Wayne led the way. Onward, upward went the Americans, completing the enveloping movement under a storm of metal. Wayne was struck in the forehead by a musket ball. His heavy beaver cap saved his life. Blood streamed over his face. His knees were sagging. He had strength to shout "March on!" and then in gasps to his aides, "And do you two carry me into the fort so that if I am to die it can be in possession." Amid the cries of "Mercy! Quarter!" from the British and jubilant shouts of "The fort is ours!" from his own men, his brain cleared and his first act was to give orders to stop the bayonet work. By two o'clock in the morning he was writing this dispatch to Washington:

"The fort and garrison are ours. Our officers and men behaved like men who are determined to be free."

Long after the revolution he performed great military services for his country. His campaigns in Ohio and Indiana from 1792 to 1795 against the Indians confirmed the work of George Rogers Clark, of whom we wrote last week. Clark wrested the northwest from the British. Wayne, by his victories at Fort Recovery and at Fallen Timbers, and by the treaty of Greenville, made the northwest — our Chicagoland — safe for settlement, and it is fitting that Fort Wayne, one of the finest of the smaller cities on the American continent, should bear his name.

A year after the signing of his great treaty of Greenville he died at the age of 51, of gout, at Fort Presque Isle —now Erie, Pa.—and his last words were, "Bury me at the foot of the flagstaff, boys."

THOMAS SUMTER

Gen. Sumter had a marvelous career in both length and usefulness.

At the age of 21 and as a Virginia volunteer he fought with George Washington at Braddock's defeat in 1755—and that was 21 years before the Declaration of Independence.

He lived until 1832, fourth year of the first administration of Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States.

Colonial wars against the French and Indians, the Revolutionary war, the organization of the new republic, the rise and fall of Federalism, and the incoming of Jacksonian democracy—he saw them all and of them all he was a part.

His death at the age of 98 removed the last of the general officers of the revolution.

Bedeviling Cornwallis.

Gen. Sumter's greatest service to his country was performed in the summer and autumn of 1780, when there were nearly 30 battles and skirmishes on Carolinian soil. He and Francis Marion made the Carolinas too hot for Cornwallis and his brutal cavalry leader, Tarleton, to hold. Tarleton, indeed, found Sumter even more annoying than Marion. "Come," he said, "let us leave hunting this damned Swamp Fox" — meaning Marion—"and see if we cannot find the Game Cock"—meaning Sumter—and Cornwallis fervently responded, "He certainly has been our greatest plague in this country. But for him and Marion South Carolina would be at peace."

Ever Up and At 'Em.

His method of fighting was very wearing. He was here, there, and everywhere, and when you sought him he often seemed to be nowhere. His specialties were destroying supply trains, taking prisoners, and so harassing the British as to prevent them from foraging and hence making them dependent on the ships that brought them beef and biscuit from England. Sometimes he won, as at Hanging Rock, S. C.—where Andrew Jackson, aged 13 and to become the last of our Presidents who took part in the revolution, fought—and sometimes he was beaten. But when beaten he soon was up and fighting again. Of the kind of warfare in which Sumter and Marion were so proficient Cornwallis could stand no more. Giving up his attempt to conquer the Carolinas, he withdrew to Virginia and to doom.

JOHANN KALB

He who has passed into American history as "Baron de Kalb" neither was a baron nor had a right to the "de." But he was a brave man and accomplished soldier, and when blundering, shilly-shallying Gen. Horatio Gates, for whom Daniel Morgan, Philip Schuyler, and Benedict Arnold had won the battle of Saratoga in spite of himself, scooted like a poltroon in 1780 from the disastrous battle field of Camden, S. C., old Kalb, unhorsed and fighting on foot, fell with three wounds from musket balls and eight from bayonets in his body. Glorious end for a man in his sixtieth year!

Lord Cornwallis bent over him as he lay dying and said, "I am sorry, sir, to see you; not sorry to see you vanquished, but sorry to see you so badly wounded"—and he gave orders for his good care. But naught could save him. Three days later he died and almost his last words to the British officers attending him were, "I thank you for your generous sympathy, but I die the death I always prayed for—the death of a soldier fighting for the rights of man."

Johann Kalb was born of peasant stock at Hüttendorf, near Wagner's Bayreuth, in 1721. At the age of 16 he began wage earning as a butler. Ever restless and ambitious, he had somehow at 22 gotten himself made a lieutenant in a German regiment in the French service, and it was then that he changed plain, peasant "Johann Kalb" into "Jean de Kalb." His service with the French in European wars was distinguished. He sailed on the Victory with Lafayette from France in 1777 to join our cause and to it the experienced veteran was useful because in council he was honest and sagacious and in action energetic. Long after his death Washington, whom he adored, standing beside his grave in Camden, said, "So here lies the generous stranger who came to water with his blood the tree of our liberty. Would to God he had lived to share its fruits!"

JEAN D'ESTAING

"God in heaven," said Gen. von Hindenburg when the Austrians by delay wrecked his beautiful enveloping movement against Warsaw—"God in heaven, they have a genius for being too late!"

Such was the genius of Count d'Estaing. Either he would spoil nicely calculated plans by being too late, or, if by some chance he was on time, he would exhibit another phase of his genius, which was suddenly to discover a reason why he should at once be elsewhere.

He dropped anchor in American waters in July, 1778, as vice admiral commanding 12 ships of the line and 4 frigates sent by France to keep British ships out of our harbors. By his fiddling around he botched a fine plan to expel the British from Rhode Island. "Nothing," says Lossing of the admiral's dilatoriness at that time "could have saved the British army from capitulation had d'Estaing co operated."

At the siege of Savannah in 1779 he was on time and, leading land forces, he was twice wounded. O, he was no coward, for in that attack "whole ranks were mowed down like grass before the scythe." But he left beforetime, saying that he must instantly seek safe winter quarters, although it was then only October. And so a siege which, with the aid of his 3,000 French troops, might have been pressed to a successful conclusion was a failure.

Poor Count d'Estaing! In his great book, "The Art of Fighting," a book which every American would be a better American for reading, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., curtly disposes of him as "an incompetent strategist." But no coward. I repeat, for in 1794, at the age of 65, he died on the guillotine because he had tried to save the life of Marie Antoinette.

Art Institute Announces Competition for the Decoration of Its Michigan Avenue Facade

Flags, Pennons, Signs to Be Used There During Century of Progress Exposition.

By Eleanor Jewett.

As another portent today that interest is being centered on the opening of A Century of Progress in June, the Art institute announces a competition for the decoration of the Michigan avenue facade of the museum building. The decoration, comprising flags, pennons and lettered signs, will be used during the exposition. Designs, 20 by 30 inches in size, must be drawn to scale in color. They must show the complete Michigan avenue facade of the Art institute building with full decorative treatment, together with detail drawings of lettering and flags.

The following lettering must be used: "The Art Institute of Chicago. Official Art Exhibition, A Century of Progress Exposition." Three prizes of $125, $50, and $25 are offered by Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the Art institute and chairman of the committee on A Century of Progress exposition. The Art institute reserves the right to accept any drawing submitted in whole or in part, or to combine any detail of any submitted drawing with suggestions received from other sources.

An exhibition of selected drawings, including the prize winners, will be held in the Art institute during the month of April. All drawings must be delivered at the Art institute shipping room between March 20 and March 30. All drawings must be legibly marked on the back with the artist's name and address. The jury for the competition will consist of Eleanor Jewett, Inez Cunningham, C. J. Bulliet, and Thomas Tallmadge.

Annual School Exhibit.

The annual school exhibition of the Art institute opened last Thursday. About May 1 preparations will begin for the installation of the Century of Progress exhibition. This promises to be a magnificent showing of great pictures. The contemporary work will be fairly representative of what is being done in the United States at present, with a majority given to Chicago artists.

There is a League of Professional Artists of America and it is possible that it may succeed in showing a selected group of our finest American paintings in some hall or building on the exposition grounds. It is hoped, too, that the Art institute can maintain some sort of headquarters for the league and its distinguished visitors, possibly in the clubrooms. An open forum with discussions of the various trends and features of contemporary art would be much worth while. There are many different angles of approach to complete satisfaction in a close union between all the different local art enterprises during the exposition and the Art institute.

Advice of Saint-Gaudens.

Meanwhile it seems of importance to refer to some recent advice given to artists by Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie institute, printed in the Carnegie magazine and quoted in the Literary Digest. The meat of Mr. Saint-Gaudens' reflections is this: "I believe that for the last decade artists have leaned far too heavily on their attempt to emphasize to the public the cleverness of their miscellaneous thoughts—that is to say, their new deductive qualities as contrasted with their old intuitive sensitiveness. As a result the artists have lost a large portion of their power of technique." This, as we know, who have followed the moderns at the Art institute and other exhibits, is a home-thrust.

He continues: "Thoughts are not enough. When the public turns to art, it wishes to gaze upon not only an emotionally enticing object, and in the case of the modernists an intellectually stimulating object, but also on a well made object. The public has shown once more its old demand for the inclusion of technique.

"Be warned. Prize your individuality. But also prize your technical skill, and never be discouraged. Hold in your mind one short lession contained in the remark of Ingres, which tells us that drawing is the base of art.

Master Drawing First.

"Therefore, as a layman speaking to artists, I say to you draw, and then continue to draw. Then, knowing your technique, put it to work, go on a rampage for your enthusiasms, and let no one stop you."

The effort that it requires to follow this apparently simple advice of draw and then draw is one which has been too much shirked during the last fifteen years. If the value of contemporary artists were judged by their ability to draw, however, and their output juried on that same basis, there would be a remarkable and instantaneous improvement in our exhibitions. Bad drawing, bad color and lack of intelligible significance have been modernism's three obvious achievements. Remedy the first and, probably, that will correct the other two.

A Magnificent Exhibit.

The Anderson galleries, 536 South Michigan boulevard, offer a magnificent exhibit in which technique is far from lacking. The pictures give an interesting cross-section of French art, covering seventy-five years. A particularly beautiful Monet, finer even than that of the same subject in the Art institute, shows the Thames and London Bridge in blues undershot and deepened with rose. A little landscape by Corot is an exquisite delight, a gem, small, but full of charm, and the warmly picturesque interpretation of nature which marked Corot's most lovely landscapes.

The Daubigny is dark and intense; the Harpignies, austere, aloof and beautiful. The mother playing with the child in her lap is a striking Bouguereau and the fascinating, Puck-like child in Eugene Carrierre's "Favorite Toy" is irresistible. A fine example of Jules Breton, a peasant woman in a field, fixes the attention. Two cheerful and debonnair Paris street scenes by A. G. Warshawsky lighten the importance of the show and are pleasing in themselves.

A most unusual Puvis de Chavannes, "Crowning the Fairy Queen," is an enchanting fantasy, impetuous, colorful, delicate, utterly unlike his sober murals, yet every inch an inch to be studied. A gorgeous "Roses" by Henri Fantin-Latour is richly effective and, for foil, there is the beautiful pastel by Leon L'hermite, which was his last Paris Salon picture before he died.

This exhibit is something no one should miss.

News of Art and Artists.

Mrs. Charles R. Dalrymple of Highland Park, president and founder of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts, which is now showing a preview of its A Century of Progress art exhibition at the Stevens hotel, announces that her son, Frederic Dalrymple, is having a one man show of water colors in the education room of the Peoria Public library to April 1.

Paintings by Hermine Stellar, finest among them the portrait of her mother, are hanging this month in the Chicago Woman's Aid.

Line drawings by A. Raymond Katz may be seen at the Allen gallery, 940 North Michigan avenue, and at the International Guild, 660 North Michigan avenue. Mr. Katz has a rich imagination and an admirable technique. He is a craftsman first, a modern afterwards.

"Babette," by Othmar Hoffler, awarded the Municipal Art league popular prize in the Chicago Artists exhibit which has just closed in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The painting will go into the Municipal Art league's permanent collection.

Smoke—a new fabric, is yarn dyed and then woven. It was named Smoke because of an indefinite hazy color quality that even in these exquisite half tones is intensely practical. It took Mandel fashion scouts to discover that the Hockanum Mills, celebrated for over a century for fine men's wear fabrics, could loom the new yarn dyed woolens about which every designer in the country is in such a furor. Now we present it as an exclusive Mandel Fashion in striking new spring.

They raced up the trail and back again to the starting point, where Mr. Wolf led by a length, winning the race amid great applause. A few years ago every one rode bicycles in Palm Beach, but the growth of motoring lately has put a damper on this sport.

Brilliant French Diplomat Given Washington Post

PARIS.—(AP)—Andre Lefebvre de la Boulaye, who is to replace the retiring, poetical Paul Claudel as French ambassador in Washington, is a brilliant conversationalist and esteemed as of the highest type of French diplomat.

M. DE LA BOULAYE.

His task will be to settle the war debt question and create a better feeling for France in the United States.

A personal friendship with President Roosevelt, knowledge of American affairs, and a fluent command of English recommended M. de la Boulaye when a successor to M. Claudel came up for consideration. His wife, the former Mary Hely d'Oissel, speaks English as well as her husband and is equally at home in an American atmosphere.

He twice served in Washington, becoming acquainted with President Roosevelt when the latter was assistant secretary of the navy.

This friendship has been maintained. On a trip to Paris a year ago the President and M. de la Boulaye renewed Washington memories.

An elegantly groomed man of 57 years who looks much younger, M. de la Boulaye is a welcome guest in Paris salons. His ability to discuss affairs of wide import has brought him renown in smart circles.

He comes from a family of diplomats, waiters, and politicians, and entered the foreign service in 1898 after leaving school. His first assignment was in Bucharest. Later he was sent to the Vatican, Berlin, Moscow, and Washington. Since 1927 he has been in the Quai d'Orsay, first as assistant director for American affairs and then as assistant director for political affairs, both high posts.

He is a commander of the Legion of Honor.

Indian Dances Menace Farms; Out in Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., March 11.—After grave argument the Canadian house of commons has decided that Canadian Indians may not don aboriginal costume and attend pageants or dances without special permission from the nearest Indian agent. The amusement and entertainment with which they have provided the white man has been the ruination of many an Indian farm, wrecked through neglect, it was stated by the government.

"I see no reason why if an Indian wants to deck himself out as an eagle and put feathers on his head that he is any more reprehensible than the ladies who go to the governor general's reception and put feathers on their heads," declared Alan W. Neil, British Columbian, in defense of the Indian's rights to do as he pleased. "And," he added, "let me say I have never seen the Indians at any of these Indian dances in the condition of decollete that I have seen——"

Members—"O, O!"

Mr. Neil [abruptly abandoning that line of argument]—"I move the restriction be struck out."

A former Liberal minister of agriculture, William R. Motherwell, however, came to the defense of the present Conservative government in its proposed regulation. He said one Indian sun dance would put back an Indian community ten years. And Mr. Neil's appeal for the red man's right was ignored.

the informal meetings have been so thoroughly delightful that all the guests are sorry to see the end of the season approaching.

Chicagoans present were Mrs. William Wrigley, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Nelson Buck, Mrs. James McMillan, Mrs. Joseph J. Bagley, Mrs. Joseph Cremin, Mrs. Franklin Martin, Miss Nora Carney, and Mrs. W. H. Wilder.

Two Golf Tournaments.

The sporty golf links at Chandler, Ariz., has recently been the scene of two interesting tournaments in which Chicagoans played leading rôles. In the handicap event for women Mrs. Charles Edward Brown won the championship by defeating Mrs. Katherine Lauder Dewing, sister of Mrs. Gene Tunney, in the final match. Mrs. Brown's golf game has improved tremendously of late, and she is one of the most feared contenders in the annual hotel open, which is now in progress.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis lost, 2 and 1, to Rollin White, Cleveland, who won the men's handicap in the finals by a 4 and 3 victory over Albert Newton of Chicago.

These golf activities brought the Chicago colony at the San Marcos out in full force—if not to play, to follow the various matches around.

Return to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Darling, who have come to the San Marcos for each of the last ten winters, have returned to Chicago. Prior to their departure they enjoyed a week's sojourn in California, where they visited Mr. Darling's mother in Del Mar. They also made a short expedition into Mexico.

Col. and Mrs. Nathan L. Howard of Winnetka are the most recent additions to the Chicago colony. They are old guests and have a wide circle of intimate friends at the hotel.

John Levis Jr. is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Levis. John made the trip from Chicago with his nurse, and since his arrival he has "gone western" in approved fashion, donning cowboy hats and boots and completing the picture by riding a real Arizona pony.

Japanese Bears Face Extinction by the Hunters

TOKIO.—[U. P.]—Bears in Kokkaido, northernmost of the main island of Japan, are being killed at the rate of 300 a year and will be extinct within ten years unless the government takes measures to protect them, Prof. T. Inukai of Kokkaido Imperial university told the Imperial academy here.

The speaker said that years ago there were thousands of deer and Siberian wolves in Kokkaido, but they all were exterminated by hunters. At one time factories were established on the island to can deer meat. Upward of half a million deer were killed to supply the factories.

Weasels are the only wild animals in Kokkaido which are increasing in numbers despite the activity of trappers.

The bears of Kokkaido have been famous in Japan for centuries. The Ainu, original inhabitants of Japan, captured bears, chiefly in winter, by entering caves in which the animals hibernate and killing them with spears.

GOING TO MARYLAND FOR THE SPRINGTIME

Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler Jr. is one of the attractive young matrons who came to Chicago as brides. She is the former Marian Roberts of Baltimore and every spring she goes to Maryland to visit her family and renew friendships. This year she is leaving on March 22.

Capital of Porto Rico Is Oldest City in New World Under the American Flag

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—When tourists arrive here they find the stars and stripes flying over the oldest city in the new world under the American flag. This city, the capital of Porto Rico, was a settlement half a century before St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest city in the United States, came into being, and a full century before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock.

Despite San Juan's age, it is a thoroughly modern metropolis of some 115,000 people. Skyscrapers peer over the old Spanish fort that pretends to guard the entrance to the magnificent harbor. Bustling traffic fills the narrow downtown streets, and a network of modern bus lines carry hundreds of commuters to work from the suburbs daily.

Many monuments survive from the old régime of the Spaniards, who held the island continuously from 1509, a few years after Columbus discovered it, until 1898, when the United States came into possession. Moss grown forts, with thick walls and stone sentry boxes, flank the modern city. Convent and cathedral, presidio, powder house, and hand paved military roads—all of these are ancient Spanish works. Contrasting sharply with them are 5 and 10 cent stores, huge flying boats, and pretty Porto Rican girls gamboling on the beaches in one piece bathing suits.

American rule has brought a measure of prosperity to Porto Ricans. Since the United States took over the island the population has grown from 900,000 to 1,500,000. All of these people are crowded into an area a third less than that of the state of Connecticut. Passengers on local air liners may see how crowded the island really is, with tiny huts standing in every nook and cranny and clinging even to the hill tops to save the level space for crops. Children fairly swarm.

Like New York City, San Juan is built upon an island which is separated from the mainland at the eastern end by only a narrow channel of water. The island curves protectingly around its harbor, leaving a wide entrance at the western end.

San Juan has been called oriental-Spanish in aspect. The old Spanish part of the city is flat, chimneyless roofs, jutting balconies, grilled windows [without glass], central patio gardens, and pastel shaded plaster walls. The modern sections of the city and the suburbs on the mainland boast of wide asphalt boulevards, marble government buildings, modern high schools, theaters, and churches.

It will be remembered that Ponce de Leon left San Juan in search of the Fountain of Youth, hoping to find it, drink of its waters, and thus be permanently rejuvenated in order to live here forever to enjoy the exquisite beauty of the scenery and the balmy air.

Novel Entertainment.

They arrived just in time to join a large party from El Mirador which was driven to the big sand dunes in stage coaches and buggies by local cowboys and there entertained by the 63d coast artillery anti-aircraft regiment band. The same group participated in a moonlight picnic at El Mirador open air grill. While the chefs grilled steaks the party was entertained by cowboy singers and players, while Al Jolson and his wife, Ruby Keeler, contributed a couple of songs.

Speakeasies in London Are Big Problem

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Due to taxation and repressive legislation Britain has a speakeasy problem as grave as any which ever beset America.

The speakeasies are called "tote clubs." They are wholly within the law. As now interpreted in the courts, the law allows anybody to operate an ostensibly respectable place where betting and drinking go on as openly—at hours and in places meant to be forbidden—as in any legal resort where either is allowed.

"Tote clubs" take their name from the totalizator, a form of the pari-mutuel machine. "Totes" were introduced a few years ago at race tracks. The law made pool betting legal on the condition that 10 per cent of the take went to the betting control board. The 10 per cent was to be used for the encouragement of horse breeding.

Organizers Get Busy.

Members of parliament, who had also restricted by rigorous control the hours of drinking during the war, had previously passed laws against gaming houses. The laws forbid the owner or lessee in any "place" laying bets against persons who frequent his establishment.

With the laws all pat against them, "tote club" organizers got busy. Actually, as owners of saloons, they would be unable to serve alcoholic drink outside certain stipulated hours, and these hours not exceeding nine in every 24. By law they cannot bet against their members, which rules out roulette, faro, chemin de ferre, poker, dice or any other form of gambling.

But today there are nearly half a million tote clubs in Great Britain. In every one betting and drinking go on throughout the afternoon and evening, all contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the law. The growth of tote clubs is quite recent, and staggeringly rapid.

It is done by a series of clever dodges based on police regulations for the organization of clubs. All that any one needs to organize a club is a place to house it, a list of 25 founder members, and a set of rules.

Some Clubs Honest.

With this comprehensive set of rules, plus the 25 charter members' names, and a fee of five shillings the club organizer goes to the nearest police station and obtains a license. He is then allowed to serve drinks for nine hours of the 24, and at any time he chooses up until midnight.

The totalizator machine dodge is simple. The owner of club cannot bet against the members. That kills the bookie doing business on the sidewalk or at an obscure billiard hall. But there is nothing to prevent club members betting against each other. The tote is a pool. The owner merely levies 10 per cent of the takings to defray expenses of the club.

Some of the clubs are honest. The money on each horse or dog is tabulated on the wall. The odds are determined as in any pari-mutuel machine, minus the 10 per cent which goes to the house. But some judge the pools to shorten the odds, after the telegraphic results from horse or dog racing tracks have been received.

Saloons Hard Hit.

The chief complaints against tote clubs come from the owners of the various tracks and the brewers. Saloons are the hardest hit of all. A publican can keep his house open nine hours daily. The time is regulated by his borough or county council. Usually the hours are from 11 o'clock in the morning until 3 p. m., and from 5 p. m. until 10 in the evening.

Generally the first race is run at 2 p. m., and the last at 5 p. m. This bridges the hours between closing and opening time in the saloons. Instead of going to the track, the race follower drifts into a nearby tote club.

There his membership costs one shilling, or the par equivalent of a quarter, per annum. The race track suffers and both the saloon and dog track suffer at night, for bets can be made on the dogs on the same premises during the evening.

The saloons suffer chiefly because of the stiff licenses and rates on property which their owners have to pay. Most of the saloons are "tied" houses, meaning that the brewers own them. Only one brand of brew is sold there. The amount of beer and spirits sold in each house determines the amount of the governmental assessment. In any case, it reaches a figure many times the five shillings paid by the club owner, who besides his five shillings pays in addition only 2½ per cent on total sales as revenue.

An Example Cited.

An example since the sudden mushroom growth of tote clubs is supplied by a public house owned in London. A tote club was opened alongside his premises. Business immediately fell off. This particular club, like many others, sold drinks at reduced prices because it escaped the heavy license duty. The publican threatened to allow his license to lapse, and then to reopen as a club, paying $1.25 for the right to sell drinks against about $500, representing his annual assessment.

He could then operate as a speakeasy. He might even convert his dining room upstairs into separate premises and organize two clubs. In this way he could serve drink at the old bar for nine hours, and then ask those in the house to kindly step upstairs into another club, where they could become members for 25 cents, and there drink for another nine hours, or until midnight.

Brewers, race tracks owners and churches have combined against the new speakeasy, and a bill in parliament is being considered.

Meanwhile club owners are making hay. One big syndicate controls over 100 clubs in London and the provinces. They canvass for members in the saloons, and some salesmen, working on commission, pay half the admission fee. In Scotland competition has forced the price of admission in some cases down to 2 cents.

A Taxi for Your Shopping Tour

It doesn't seem to call for much speed, but it serves the purpose for tourists bent on shopping on the island of Madeira, one of the points of interest on a Mediterranean cruise.

WHITE COLLAR EDUCATION OF IRAQ DEPLORED

BAGDAD.—Protests against white collar education in Iraq are beginning to appear in the newspapers, which are now emphasizing the fact that practically the whole output of the schools and colleges which have sprung into existence during the last ten years has consisted of clerks and officials.

It is a fact there are practically no literate artisans or mechanics in the country, and the educated class will not engage in manual work of any kind.

"Can you find jobs as apprentices for some of my pupils who will be leaving at the end of this term?" asked the principal of a school here to the manager of an engineering concern.

"Yes," was the reply, "if they are willing to dirty their hands."

None of the graduates appeared. The result in a few years will be that the ranks of the lower clerical and civil service grades will be flooded, and wages will tend to fall.

As things are, a large number of minor government officials are in the hands of money lenders, who are protected by a law providing that when a decree for debt is given against a government official, one-third of his salary is stopped and paid over monthly until the debt is cleared.

Money lenders know this well, and are always eager to advance funds to these officials, even if they are already collecting a previous debt, for they know that in due time their turn will come and they will be able to recover, with interest. If the clerical jobs are over-filled and salaries fall this money lending evil will be greatly increased.

The protest is also directed against a system which makes the education of the country lopsided, although Iraq still feels that any training at all is better than none.

WATER PAGEANT PLANNED FOR ST. PETERSBURG

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — [Special.]—This city's leading musicians, choral singers, military organizations and members of the theatrical profession will be included in the cast of more than 1,000 persons who will take part in "Triumph," a spectacle climaxing this year's Festival of States.

Presented on the waterfront, a procession of illuminated boats will open the pageant, which will be directed by Senia Solomonoff, former dancing partner of Pavlowa, and master of the St. Petersburg Civic ballet.

Selection of the reigning beauty of the festival will take place at the annual queen's review in Williams park the first day of the carnival, March 30.

An event to which society is looking forward is the Bon Voyage ball at the St. Petersburg Yacht club the night of March 31, on the eve of the fourth annual international sailing race from St. Petersburg to Havana, Cuba.

Guests at the Vinoy Park hotel include Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Harris, Robert Rockford, Robert Hession, and Mrs. R. F. Hession, all of Chicago.

Among those stopping at the Soreno hotel are Mrs. C. M. Hoof of Evanston, and R. H. Post, Mrs. Frances H. Ehman, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kimball, all of Chicago.

They All Go in for Shopping Orgies on These Cruises

AMONG the interesting experiences of any foreign trip or cruise are those connected with the purchase of the curios, souvenirs and whatnots for gifts or keepsakes. They are the illustrations for the travelers' stories of romance and adventure.

"What did you buy?" is the usual greeting of one passenger to another when returning from shore trips on a cruise around the Mediterranean, the most varied shopping district in the world. Upon comparing purchases, a disappointment and a determination to return to that city may be carried in a tourist's heart for the rest of the cruise. Or perhaps a sly expectancy to have an opportunity to buy that same object at the next port city. But at the next stop there may not be any similar products, as each city around the Mediterranean seems to be a kingdom apart as far as shopping is concerned.

Most of the masculine cruisers are more intrigued by native canes, a comfortable wicker chair for the summer cottage, an odd pipe or brasses for his den, but a woman is in her favorite hunting field and goes in for competitive shopping orgies. She may be collecting cream pitchers, necklaces, bracelet charms, jewels, shawls or whatnots, and when she finds a fellow traveler with a similar fad the battle is on.

Italian Aims in Balkans Given Sharp Setback

VIENNA.—(AP)—Central Europe is seething.

There is tension between Italy and Jugo-Slavia and their respective allies and friends and a revival here of the "anschluss" cry for union with Germany.

The bonds of the little entente—Rumania, Czechoslovakia, and Jugoslavia—have been strengthened, there is Fascist ascendency in Germany, a dictatorship of the center in Vienna, and a still echoing hue and cry over an arms shipment from Italy, ostensibly to Hungary.

All these spell to observers in this "listening post of the Balkans" a hastening of the time when revision of the post-war treaties must be seriously considered by the chancelleries of the old world.

Benes, Astute Diplomat.

Always in the forefront of opposition to the revisionist cause are the little entente nations, France, their "big brother," and Poland, formed, like them, from the scattered pieces of the world war puzzle.

And keeping a watchful eye on every move is Europe's most experienced veteran in the international game—Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia. Cabinets come and go at Prague, and many a world figure has exited from the international stage in dramas of post-war politics, but Benes remains.

He has been foreign minister of his country since the autumn of 1918, occupying the office before Czechoslovakia was on the map.

Originated New Bonds.

He was a university professor before the war, immersed in theoretical economics and sociology. The big conflict made him a revolutionist and disciple of Thomas G. Masaryk, perpetual president of the new nation.

He is credited now with having originated the new bonds for the little entente. Under them the three countries act as one in foreign affairs. None will sign a treaty without the consent of the others, and if one signs all sign.

Obviously this forms a solid antirevisionist bloc to offset the hopes and aspirations of Germany, Austria, and Hungary, supported though they are by Italy.

Further, it is viewed as a sharp setback to Italian aims in the Balkans. Talk of an Italian-Rumanian accord, isolating Jugo-Slavia, has faded.

Rumania Sees the Light.

Some commentators here have asserted that the temperature in which Benes forged the three states into one international power was high enough in Belgrade and Prague, but had to be fanned at Bucharest.

In Prague the proximity of a Hitlerite Germany was enough to melt resistance to a closer alliance; in Belgrade the fear of Italian aims had a similar effect, but in Bucharest there was reluctance until exposure of an Italian arms shipment through Austria, seemingly toward Hungary, reminded Rumania of her war won province of Transylvania.

A Touch of the Oriental

Montreal Is 237 Miles Closer Than N. Y. to Old World

MONTREAL.—Few persons appreciate, nor can they be convinced until they have studied the map, that Montreal, an inland port situated a thousand miles from the sea, is actually nearer Europe than United States ports situated on the Atlantic. Montreal is 2,773 miles from Europe; Boston, the nearest Atlantic port in the United States is 2,810 miles, and New York is 3,010 miles.

The traveler leaving for Europe by Montreal journeys for about a thousand miles in the shelter of the banks of the St. Lawrence river before the vessel reaches the open sea and encounters rougher conditions. In other words, travel on the ocean is cut down by approximately one-third.

Some tourists choose the gulf route because it takes them at the outset of their vacation into a new land. They are really "abroad" a week sooner than they would otherwise be. An overnight's journey from many points in the United States brings them to Montreal, and they get a taste of the old world before proceeding to Europe.

Then the two days' journey on the calm waters of the St. Lawrence often proves, in beauty and enjoyment, one of the high lights of the trip.

Americans to Use a Great Fleet in Summer's Tours

AN original new service to American travelers, which will place at their disposal this summer liners of the six leading trans-Atlantic steamship companies, forming what is said to be the greatest fleet ever featured by one organization, was announced last night.

"The plan means that Americans of moderate means, who have long contemplated a European tour, but who have hesitated to fulfill the ambition of a lifetime because of the expense, need no longer defer their trip abroad," it was set forth. "The travelers will go in six of the largest, fastest, and most modern liners afloat.

Tree Over Gold Base.

DEBRECEN, Hungary. — (AP) — A half pound lump of gold, believed to be 2,000 years old, was found under a tree in a state forest near here. The forester who made the discovery got one-third of the value, the balance going to the government.

SPRING IS WHEN CALIFORNIANS GROW ECSTATIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Spring has come to the San Francisco Bay district and the hills are a lush green; the acacia trees are golden with blossoms, and the wild purple iris and the orange poppy are beginning to flood the meadows with color.

An hour south of San Francisco by train or motor lies the Santa Clara valley, a great bowl thirty miles square which the prune and apricot and almond have claimed for their own. One-third of the world's prunes are grown in this valley. Each year in March the valley celebrates spring by an almost instantaneous bursting into white and pink blossoms of all its millions of trees. Seen from the foothills where San Franciscans build their country homes, the valley seems flooded with whiteness.

At Saratoga a blossom festival is staged each March. The dates are set only a few weeks in advance in order that the height of the blossom season may be chosen. For the blossoms go almost as quickly as they come, giving place to the beginnings of what by late summer become purple plums destined for drying, packing, and shipment to the far corners of the earth.

In San Francisco spring brings forth the white sailed yachts on the bay. Golden Gate park blooms the year round. March and April, however, bring out most of the color of the 4,000 different kinds of plants growing in the largest man made park in the world.

Stories of Chain Gangs Frighten Away Tourists

SAVANNAH, Ga.—[U. P.]—Word has reached here that recent descriptions of life on Georgia chain gangs have so affected northern tourists that they are asking automobile clubs to confirm or deny all sorts of wild tales about the dangers of traveling through Georgia.

The Savannah Motor club received a letter from a New York motor club asking for information regarding a report that if persons driving through the state carry more than four passengers in their automobiles they are liable "to be held up and possibly lose their car."

The letter advised that a member was driving a seven passenger car to Florida, "but there will be only six in the car." Club officials promptly replied that "there is absolutely no truth in the report."
